[From the Boston Journal.] THE FULFILLED PLEDGE.

In the still midnight, Colonel Fry, with a band of followers, assembled in a dimly lighted cabin, and with their left hand on the flag, swore to defend it and redeem Old Tennessee.

Richard Cecil said in the introduction to his sermon on The True Patriot: "To meet every where peaceable citizens in arms! to hear fields and gardens daily echo with the din of martial exercises! surely this is a time when a minister cannot but feel, and ought not to neglect."

THE MEN FOR THE TIMES.

Richard Cecil said in the introduction to his sermon on The True Patriot: "To meet every where peaceable citizens in arms! to hear fields and gardens daily echo with the din of martial exercises! surely this is a time when a minister cannot but feel, and ought not to neglect."

INTERVENTION.

A vast deal of anxiety, quite superfluous, as we think, is expended upon the question of intervention—that is to say, upon the infinitely debatable question of probabilities, whether France or England, or both, will meddle in our American affairs.

A CHAPTER ON YOUNG MEN.

Alexander of Macedon, extended his power over Greece, conquered Egypt, rebuked Alexander, overran all Asia, and died at thirty-three years of age.

A TERRIBLE STORY OF THE REBELLION.

A correspondent of the New York Times, who dates from Springfield, Missouri, tells the following sad tale of the consequences of the rebellion.

THE TRUE ODDS.

It is a matter of surprise to persons at home and abroad, says the North American, that the conflict in which we have been engaged for fifteen months has not long since been terminated by the complete suppression of the revolt.

JOHN QUINCY ADAMS.

When John Quincy Adams was minister to the Court of Holland, he joined a society of learned men who met once a week for mutual improvement.

THE REBEL INKERMANN GUNS.

The rebel journals report the arrival at Macon, Georgia, of "twenty-two of the cannon captured by the English from the Russians at the Battle of Inkermann," and presented to the rebels by certain English merchants.
