A Word to Loyal Democrats.

We desire to address a few lines, dictated only by a spirit of kindness, to the loyal Democrats of the country. When we speak of loyal Democrats, we mean the great mass of the Democratic party. That some of the leaders of the party are disloyal has been clearly shown by their conduct, voluntary admissions of themselves and friends, and more recently by the testimony of Lord Lyons. But we have always, and still have, abiding faith in the loyalty and patriotism of the masses of the party. Many may, in the heat of argument, when aroused by adverse and unceasing investigation against the Administration, that they believe and know to be governed in every measure by honesty and patriotism, they may when thus excited say hard things of the opposition and unjustly accuse the party. Remember, however, that equally bitter reproach to the term abolition is equally unjust when applied to us as a party.

The charge of crimination and re-crimation belongs equally to both parties. That it is uncalled for, wrong and injurious to society national welfare, we admit, and hope it will not continue. But starting now upon the assumption, or rather assertion, of a well known fact that the Democratic party as a mass are loyal, we intended to show it all candor and kindness, that you are fast drifting to a position where you must give up loyalty or forsake party. And first, we allege that the man who to day stands highest in your party, who is endorsed by your leaders, by your press—whose speeches are circulated and referred to as the exposition of your political faith, and who in fact is the leader of your party, is a disloyal man. It is not necessary to enter into an argument to prove this, as your own admissions are sufficient for this purpose. Less than six months ago it was found necessary for your public journals to prove, by a laborious defence, that he was not endorsed and not recognized by the party. In this District your papers had to resort to the record to show that your candidate for Congress had not even voted with him. In your papers, speeches, and conversations, you denounced him as bitterly as we do. Why this sudden change?

Calendingham says he stands where he always did, in opposition to the war and the Government. It is clear, then, that you have drifted along with your meetings in the last six months, and your disloyal leaders, unperceived by you, have skillfully guided the back-draw in the stream that ends eventually in disloyalty without guise. Again you are educated by the teachings and publications of your leaders to believe the laws are oppressive, unconstitutional and impliedly that they should be resisted. — The Conscription Act is pointed at us as wrong, hard and oppressive in its operation, and it is artfully said, it is but little wonder such laws are resisted. Cannot you see that such teachings are intended to arouse the timid and fearful to resist the law? Look at its effect already. In Ohio armed men, of your party rescue and protect deserters from the army from arrest. In Pennsylvania we find, in one county alone, a thousand men enlisted, armed and sworn to resist the law. All over the country the same intention is proclaimed by some of your party. Those who are the most zealous of all, under the swiftness of alarm, your party, who heretofore were loyal are now in open hostility to the laws, and are guilty of treason.

You hear men say almost every day that they will fight before they will submit to the enforcement of the conscript act. They are traitors so denominated by the constitution, yet they justify their conduct by quoting the speeches of your leaders about the unconstitutionality of the act, its oppressiveness or the transgressions of the Administration. The constant abuse of those in power, the continued cry of violated constitution and usurpation, denouncing, deriding the laws is insidiously leading you to believe that those in power are not entitled to your respect, or the laws to your obedience. Hence the thousands of sword trutins in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania and elsewhere in the North. Treason and insurrection always begin in this way. Every man who refuses obedience or resists, or even counsels or intends resistance to the laws, is a traitor. We ask you caudiously, do you not hear men of your party counseling and threatening resistance? Do you not know that the laws have been resisted and unions formed to resist? You cannot help but know, it is the fact that old saying, "thou art the hopes of my country." Perhaps we are too fondly attached to the interests of common schools, and may, therefore, be considered partial, in thus expressing our preference for a different man.

from the Southern papers showing that the press of the South are leading the people to believe that our divisions and dissensions promise great things for them. They are much encouraged and rejoiced at it. They argue from the fact as they allege that the Democrats are getting into power that we will soon have to stop the war on them and settle our difficulties at home. In short they bring up a Democratic triumph in the North as a triumph for them. Not that they expect so much favor from the Democracy as they calculate upon the opposition to our Government from your success. Thus they confidently expect to perform the selection of our war upon them and settle our difficulties at home. Although he did not consent to become an applicant for the important post, his numerous friends in this section of the State had fondly hoped for the interests of education, that he would have accepted.

The Directors have an important duty to perform in the selection of a County Superintendent. We are not informed whether Mr. Carters again desires the appointment, but if not, we hope to see one fill his place with credit and efficiency, as he has deserved the approbation of all true friends of education.

Mr. McGregor had lost his mysterious dispensation of Providence, and where the enemies of the Government are encouraged and strengthened. We conceive we have now shown that your party is in a wrong position and that as patriots you cannot ought not, to remain with it. You must then reform the party, forsake the leaders or forsake the party. Recolect the action and position of every one will be remembered. For the sake of yourselves and your children, don't allow yourselves to occupy a position for a moment where your loyalty may justly be suspected.

Jesus Agnew delivered his highly celebrated lecture on the adaptation of the Federal Constitution to a State Insurrection, before the "Union League," in the M. E. Church, Bridgewater, on last Thursday evening. Although the evening was very unpleasant, there was a respectable and intelligent audience present. And never, we think, was an audience better entertained or paid for their attendance. The lecture occupied two hours in delivery, and was listened to with undiminished attention throughout.

It was a calm, dispassionate, logical and unanswerable argument, showing the proper adaptation of the Constitution to every want of the nation in a state of rebellion. The authority of the President to suspend the writ of Habeas Corpus, make seizures and arrests, issue the Emancipation Proclamation and declare martial law, was clearly proved. Every objection urged by those who seek to embarrass the Government by pointing out the alleged violation of the Constitution and exercise of power not there contained was met and conclusively answered. The President might take this lecture and write upon it as president Jackson did on the speech of Douglass, "this is my defense."

We cannot, and will not, attempt to give an outline of the argument, as we would only do injustice to the subject. We understand it is being published so all may obtain it. It should be in the hands of every loyal man, adapted so completely as it is, to the time and to the want of the loyal people of the nation.

SCHOOL EXHIBITION. — We learn from Mr. S. H. Piercel, Principal of the Union School of Rochester, that an exhibition will take place in the school hall of that place, on Friday evening, May 1st. All are cordially invited to Common Schools.

Our system of education in Pennsylvania has frequently been spoken of by persons, who were wise in their own conceit, with indifference. Playing upon the word common, and distorting its true meaning from that intended by the authors of the benign institution, it is perverted to mean schools for the common people. We know of no order of nobility in our country. Here the high, the low, the rich and the poor, upon republican principles, meet together on the same common basis, and it should not be, and really is not, a test of respectability, whether your child is taught in the common school or at the most renowned and time-honored college on the Bench. His legal mind has not only familiarized itself with the ordinary principles of his profession, but it has grasped those great Constitutional truths upon which our Government is based. His exceedingly able lecture on "The Constitution as applied to a state of insurrection," has attracted the attention of the leading minds of the land, startling the loyal lovers of their Country's flag in their peaceful homes, it struck the key-note of each true-hearted breast and removed from their eyes the film which so long had held them in blindness and awakened them to the full knowledge of the deeply laid, long-hid and devilish plot to wrest from them the heritage of freedom won for them and bequeathed to them by their glorious sires, and their purpose to maintain their country's rights and glories, unimpaired, was

But prominent as he is in his profession for his learning, he is much more so in the private walks of life for his social and moral virtues. He is truly a pure and upright man—one who is loved, admired and respected by all who know him for the virtues more than for the laurels he has won in his profession.

Judge Agnew has been a citizen of this country for thirty-four years, and every citizen, irrespective of partizan feelings has a natural pride in his abilities and the honors he may attain. May we not expect that the Convention that meets at Pittsburg will recognize the claims due to the Western part of the State, and at the same time pay tribute to the worthiness of the Nicholsons, Esq., of this country. Although he did not consent to be an applicant for the important post, his numerous friends in this section of the State had fondly hoped for the interests of education, that he would have accepted.

The Directors have an important duty to perform in the selection of a County Superintendent. We are not informed whether Mr. Carters again desires the appointment, but if not, we hope to see one fill his place with credit and efficiency, as he has deserved the approbation of all true friends of education.

Treason Again Rebuked.

The following resolution was reported and adopted at a meeting of the members of the 169th Regt. Pa. M. inst., commanding the Hon. DANIEL AGNEW, to the favorable consideration of the people of the State, as a candidate for Supreme Judge. All who knew Judge Agnew believed that he possessed those qualities necessary to the position. Of his legal knowledge and sound judicial mind, every lawyer is convinced. His opinions are moderate, as terse, energetic, concise rhetoric, and on the Supreme Bench would display a vigor of thought and style not seen since the days of Chief Justice Gibson. His acute perception of the mysteries of a cause, and the rapid application of correct principles of law to the same, has often astonished those who, for the first time, have seen him in blood at Sumter—fit child of such parents! May it die, as it was born, in its own blood!

Resolved, That this Rebellion against the authority of the Government of the United States, was in its inception begat by the ambition of wicked men, aiming at their own personal advancement, nourished in the Southern womb for thirty years, on the passions and prejudices engendered by the States of Slavery, and brought forth in the Boroughs between 7d and 8 P.
