

Union Men, Preserve Your Organizations.

We have endeavored in our last, to show the great results of the last election, and that the loyal men of Pennsylvania sustained at the ballot-box the great principles for which we contend.

That the people did not want any change in those representing them in the National Government, is perfectly certain, from the hearty support which all truly loyal men gave to the measure and policy of Gov. Curtin.

Every Northern State in which elections have been held—in Maine, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, &c., the people have spoken at the ballot box in unmistakable tones that this great and good Government shall be maintained at all hazards, at any cost, or price.

Then as the late election resulted so gloriously for the cause of the Republic in this State, how much more important is it that we should be prepared to stand by and support the cause of civil and religious liberty, in the approaching great National contest.

Then what is the duty of true and loyal men? It is to watch the copperhead leaders closely, suspect something wrong when you see them smile and prate of the Constitution and the Union.

Already we find the enemies of the Government preparing all their party machinery, for the purpose of overthrowing our free institutions, and to enable them to give such aid and comfort to their Southern allies as will make the rebellion a success; and how much more does it become every loyal man in the North to be prepared to meet them and defeat them again most triumphantly, as we have already done.

Let them disseminate useful information among the people—arouse them to vigorous action, for the most momentous question which ever came before any people is soon to be decided.

The Future Course of the Democratic Copperheads.

The men who now claim to be the leaders of the Democratic party North and South, have been engaged for some years past in devising plans, by the success of which they hoped that the American Union, and civil liberty, might be forever destroyed.

Every Northern State in which elections have been held—in Maine, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, &c., the people have spoken at the ballot box in unmistakable tones that this great and good Government shall be maintained at all hazards, at any cost, or price.

The next State Treasurer.

During the next meeting of the Legislature of the State, a Treasurer will be elected, and as the Union men have a majority on joint ballot they will elect a good and undoubtedly loyal man to fill that important place.

We hope most sincerely that the Hon. HENRY D. MOORE, of Philadelphia, may be chosen. We have long known him, and he is well known to the people of Pennsylvania as one of our most talented, honorable and upright men.

We hope, also, that when again placed at the head of the Treasury, Mr. Moore will appoint our esteemed and excellent fellow-citizen, THOMAS NICHOLSON, Esq., to be his Chief Clerk or Cashier.

A Correction.

In the Western Star, issued Oct. 2d, it was stated, upon what we then thought reliable information, that while at Rochester on the preceding Friday, Gov. Curtin had been drunk.

We have no desire at any time, to conceal, or suppress the truth, even though its disclosure may benefit a political or personal foe, and had we known before its publication that the story of Gov. Curtin's drunkenness was unfounded, it would certainly never have appeared; or had we known its falsity before the election, as we know it now, this correction would have been published then.

We learn that in consequence of the above recantation, the prosecution against Mr. Long for libel has been withdrawn. We publish the article, leaving our readers to draw their own conclusions as to the motives that prompted its publication, as well as the article of the 2nd of October.

Death of Capt. Elliot S. Quay.

To mingle with our hours of pride and triumph, some dispensation of casting shadows and inflicting pain. At the first call for three months troops, among the patriotic hearts that responded in Ravenna, were two young men upon whom the promise of long life, usefulness and honorable position, seemed securely set.

One fell early, stricken by a swift and fatal malady; the other, after longer service, and a protracted frustration has followed the dear friend and companion, who went before. Nearly side by side, in the already well filled cemetery, have we with grief swollen hearts, deposited the earthly tenements of Lieut. Robinson, and Lieut. Quay.

At Winchester he was wounded in the head, and narrowly escaped death. Before leaving the army he was prostrated with ill health, and came home to recruit; but the exigencies of the service called him back before a favorable reaction commenced.

Capt. Quay formerly lived here, and at one time was employed in this office, and is well known to many citizens of Beaver county. He was a brother to Col. M. S. Quay.

EDITOR ARGUS:—I see that the Governor of this State is out in a patriotic call for volunteers to fill up our portion of the President's requisition of the 300,000 to be raised.

Now, Mr. Editor, I believe this to be the true method to fill up the ranks of our army; and it should be done by volunteering; and at this stage of the war, it will all come up to the work, it is this way its moral effect upon our enemies will be very salutary.

Now as the political contests are over and generally people have some leisure at this time of year, I would suggest that a County Convention be called at an early day, with the object to attract our County Commissioners to our Government, which I believe is $102. Then if the county will give $100, which will make $202 bounty to our brave and worthy volunteers who may go out in defence of our Government at this time, her hour of need; if any one objects to our county offering a bounty for volunteers, then I say let him be the first man to go without any bounty, and then by Mr. Editor, I am not subject to Military duty, and never was; but I am willing to bear my portion in this war, and would be glad to see our noble and brave soldiers, who go to sustain our liberties, amply rewarded.

A Falsehood Nailed.

During the late political campaign, the Beaver Star, a Democratic journal of the ultra stripe, made a statement, which was extensively copied by the Democratic papers throughout the State, that Governor Curtin, on the occasion of his visit to that place, got beastly drunk, and had to be assisted to the cars by several of his friends.
