

D. C. INBRIE, Editor & Proprietor.

For President in 1864, ABRAHAM LINCOLN, OF ILLINOIS.

For Vice President, ANDREW G. CURTIN, OF PENNSYLVANIA.

A good Adams printing press for sale at this office, price low.

We call attention to the advertisement of John Reeves who offers a farm for rent.

We will not condescend, at present, to notice the imping and brainless Jack-ass that furnished the editorial squibs for the last issue of the Star.

Our thanks are due Messrs. Henry and Negley of the House, and Conwell of the Senate for documentary favors.

Dr. Thos. Donohoo, late of Wallsville, Ohio, having located in Beaver, will receive calls at his office, in the Southern extremity of the National Hotel, in this place, or door next the river.

AGRICULTURAL MEETING.—The annual election for officers and managers of the Beaver County Agricultural Society, will be held in the sheriff's office in Beaver, on the first Monday of March, at 1 o'clock, P. M. A full attendance is requested. By order of the President.

Correction.—By the notice of Justices of the Peace in our last issue a number of mistakes in words and punctuation were made. In one or two instances it is difficult to understand the meaning from the change of words. We have not room to republish, and hope our readers will overlook the mistakes of the "Devil" who set up the piece.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK.—At an adjourned meeting of the subscribers to the stock of First National Bank to be located at Beaver, Pa., the Committee was not prepared to report and requested an adjournment to Saturday the 13th day of February, at 3 o'clock, P. M., at the Court House, agreed to and a punctual attendance of the subscribers to said stock are respectfully requested.

THOS. MCCREERY, Chair.

Gen. Hancock. We take great pleasure in calling the attention of the people of Beaver county to the advertisement of Maj. Gen. W. S. Hancock the gallant commander of the 2d Army Corps.

Gen. Hancock has received an order from the Government to raise fifty thousand men in Pennsylvania for special service, and will receive volunteers for various Pennsylvania Regiments.

The officers of the Government and the people have entire confidence in the great military skill and ability of Gen. Hancock, than whom a braver or better man does not live. He is exceedingly kind to the men under his command, and careful of their lives and health, never leading them into danger without a reasonable prospect of success. He has proved himself upon a hundred battle fields one of the best and most valuable officers in our army. Those who enter the service in his corps may feel assured that they will be under a commander, who will lead them as but few can do. For prudence, bravery and heroic action he has no superior in this or any other country.

We are glad to see that our highly esteemed and gallant fellow-citizen W. S. Shallenberger, Adjutant of the 140th Regiment, has been detailed for special recruiting service in this county for Gen. Hancock's corps, and will receive volunteers for the 140th or any other Regiment. The bounties which are liberal will be promptly paid to the patriotic men who may enlist.

Adj. Shallenberger although young has already distinguished himself by his heroic conduct on several battle fields, especially at the battle of Gettysburg in defence of Pennsylvania, under our lamented friend Col. Roberts. He is certainly a most excellent, gentlemanly and kind hearted man, and those who serve with him, will be glad they have such an officer in the Regiment.

The 2d Corps is famous for its admirable and superior officers for its discipline and bravery, among whom there is no one superior to Adjutant Shallenberger, who devotes his whole mind and energy to the duties of his profession and the care of his men.

The Reign of Terror.

The present state of affairs in the revolted States presents the most complete picture of a reign of terror, since the horrible days of Robespierre and his associates, filled France with blood.

The soldiers who enlisted in their armies at the breaking out of the war, have been ruthlessly reconscripted, after the expiration of their time of service. Those who furnished substitutes have likewise been conscripted in the army, notwithstanding the protestations of the Government, that such should never be the case.

Thus the Rebel Government has deliberately falsified its most solemn promises to its citizens, and not content with this has actually employed the agency of blood-hounds to pursue the trembling fugitives who are compelled to hide in the swamps and wilderness from the merciless press gang.

The Rebel Government, has also deceived its citizens in the matter of currency. The miserable apology for currency which it has issued, has compelled them to take, as worthless at first, and the Government compelled its acceptance at the point of the bayonet.

Now that its notes have run down so that they are quoted at five dollars for a hundred, the Government, coolly proposes still further, to compel the holders of the notes to refund them in Confederate bonds which will create a still greater depreciation.

Add to this, that the tenth of all that every farmer has is impressed by the Confederate authority for the use of the army, besides enormous taxes which are levied upon every branch of industry, and we have a picture of robbery not paralleled, by the worst despotism of the Old World.

The Veterans of the Union Army.

In a few months the term of service of a large portion of our armies will expire, and without the re-enlistment of our gallant and war-weary veterans, the Government would be forced in the next spring to depend almost entirely on fresh and new troops, unacquainted to the hardships of the camp, or the march of the field.

Although we have the material in great abundance yet at home to make armies of as good men as ever fought on any battle field, yet men unaccustomed to war can never fight like veterans, such a State of things might, and would probably prove disastrous in the approaching first conflict for the maintenance of the National authority and the overthrow of this mighty rebellion.

It must therefore be truly gratifying to every friend of his country that the soldiers of the army of the Potomac and the Cumberland are willingly accepting the generous offer of the Government, and are re-enlisting in such large numbers, that it is more than probable that the organization of those armies will be maintained in all their original power.

The soldier who has carried a musket since April 1861, and who has survived the diseases of the camp, the fatigue of the march, and the dangers of the battle field, we feel confident is worth five new recruits who have never smelt powder.

The veterans in the Virginia campaigns are soldiers who have no living superiors in the world, for courage, in patience, in physical endurance, and unswerving devotion to the flag. The men now composing the splendid army of the Potomac, and our armies everywhere have lost in suffering, that romantic courage and spirit of daring adventure, which at the beginning of the war hurried them into the ranks.

Without a murmur they have performed the most arduous and severe trials in doing their duty, and ready and willing at all times in obedience to command to charge in the most splendid manner in the very face of certain destruction.

The Presidency.

For many months it has been apparent to the intelligent men in the North that the friends of the President would be likely to be disappointed.

No man in the nation would at this time be so safe to conduct our public affairs. He appears to be peculiarly adapted to the great emergency through which we have thus far so honorably and triumphantly conducted us; and hence we feel that he ought to be continued for another term in the office, until this tremendous treason is completely crushed out, and every traitor North and South is brought into entire subjection to the laws of the Union.

It cannot be denied, even by Mr. Lincoln's enemies, that he possesses an extraordinary degree, great prudence and boldness, and a peculiar adaptation of mind to the circumstances which surround him, and just that character which can alone save the Republic from destruction at the hands of conspirators.

His extraordinary frankness has inspired every man with a sense of his thorough honesty of purpose and aristocratic honor as a man and which has been mainly the thing that has prevented secession from obtaining a fatal ascendancy during the war.

By common consent having entire confidence in him, the people have been willing to trust him with an amount of power to save the nation, which they would probably have been unwilling to have given to any other man.

The Sinner and incessant abuse heaped upon him by demagogues and ignorant and unprincipled partisans, sympathizing with treason, styling him a grasping usurper, a mean and selfish tyrant, a subverter of the constitution and the Government, was felt by every good and loyal man to be utterly absurd and false.

They Have Lost Their Old Cunning.

In looking fairly at the proceedings of the Senate and comparing the acts of the present Democratic leadership with the course of the leaders of that party years ago, the most casual observer cannot fail to be impressed with the fact that they are losing their old cunning.

It had been possible for the Republicans, as partisans, to have marked out a course for the Democracy from which to make capital against them; it could not have been done better to benefit our friends than the Democratic leaders themselves have furnished.

They have proven to the nation as to the Commonwealth that office and not order—patronage and not justice, is the object of their aim and labor. Almost any other set of men but those who now rule the Democratic party, would have yielded the organization of the Senate to the majority, to whom it rightfully belongs.

Almost any other set of men would have announced to the public that they came to the Senate to secure and promote the public interest to facilitate and push on the business of legislation, and instead of obstructing organization, to hasten its completion, by yielding it gracefully to those who have the right to fill its offices.

But the Democratic leaders have lost their old cunning, but it has blinded their consciences, but it has blinded their eyes. They have no other objects in view now but those which confer present benefits. They have no country to defend, and hence their hand, like that of the Ishmaelites, is against all men.

They have no cause to uphold, and hence they are never satisfied unless they are assailing truth and justice, or jeopardizing law and order. Truly we may repeat, the Democracy have lost their old cunning. The once powerful leader of Democracy—men of soul and brain and heart and honor, have passed away, to give place to the leaders who represent the imbecility of the age, an imbecility animated only by the rancor of treason and the petty spite of party.

Beaver Markets.

Table listing market prices for various goods including Flour, Beans, Potatoes, Corn Meal, Eggs, Butter, Lard, Candles, Molasses, and Carbon Oil.

Time Table.

Table showing train schedules for Beaver Station, Cleveland & Pittsburgh, R. R., and Rochester Station, including arrival and departure times for various routes.

Quarterly Statement of Bank of Beaver County.

Financial statement table for the Bank of Beaver County, listing assets such as cash, bills, and securities, and liabilities.

Notice in the Orphan's Court.

Notice regarding the settlement of the estate of John H. Miller, deceased, and other matters related to the Orphan's Court.

List of Causes for Trial March Term, 1864, Commencing 1st Monday.

Table listing legal cases scheduled for trial, including names of parties and attorneys.

List of Letters.

Table listing names of individuals and their corresponding letters or notices.

Administrators Notice.

Administrators notice regarding the estate of James W. Cowan, Sr., and other matters.

For Rent.

Advertisement for rent of a well cultivated farm near New Brighton, Pa., with details on terms and contact information.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

Register's notice regarding the settlement of the estate of James W. Cowan, Sr., and other matters.

Administrators Notice.

Administrators notice regarding the estate of James W. Cowan, Sr., and other matters.

For Rent.

Advertisement for rent of a well cultivated farm near New Brighton, Pa., with details on terms and contact information.

Administrators Notice.

Administrators notice regarding the estate of James W. Cowan, Sr., and other matters.

For Rent.

Advertisement for rent of a well cultivated farm near New Brighton, Pa., with details on terms and contact information.

Administrators Notice.

Administrators notice regarding the estate of James W. Cowan, Sr., and other matters.

For Rent.

Advertisement for rent of a well cultivated farm near New Brighton, Pa., with details on terms and contact information.

Administrators Notice.

Administrators notice regarding the estate of James W. Cowan, Sr., and other matters.

For Rent.

Advertisement for rent of a well cultivated farm near New Brighton, Pa., with details on terms and contact information.

Administrators Notice.

Administrators notice regarding the estate of James W. Cowan, Sr., and other matters.

For Rent.

Advertisement for rent of a well cultivated farm near New Brighton, Pa., with details on terms and contact information.

Administrators Notice.

Administrators notice regarding the estate of James W. Cowan, Sr., and other matters.