Dreadful Accident on the C. & P. Railroad.

Wednesday morning, the 6th inst., as a young adv named Mary Might was leaving the cars of the she alighted just as the morning accommodation was coming up, and before she could escape the train struck her and the wheels passing over her, crushed both her legs, and otherwise mangled her in a most horrible manher Surgical aid was called as promptly as possible, and the mangled limbs of the unfortunate and slaughtered to base another train, stopping at a Station, whilst passengers are getting on and off. If the company has a rule prohibiting such passing it is certainly every day violated by the officers in charge, endangering the lives and limbs of those who are necessarily there. At any rate, in the above case, the train could have been stopped in time to save the girl life. It is but one of the many instances of the reckless and criminal indifference of vanductors and engineers on our railroads, and calls loudly for some change in their management. In this case we feel satisfied there was something wrong, and it certainly demands, at the hands of our authorities, a full and fait-investigation, and if the persons in charge of either train was guilty of gross negligence, or wanton diregard of human life, let them be promptly arrested and purished. It is time that a public example should be made of such persons. Let us not hear of the stereotyped report of those who are interested, that "No one was to blume." We hope the Coroner will attend to this matter promptly, and it any one is found to be guilty of negligence, or to the officers of the law, that he may be punished as he deserves. This the public and the cause of justice and hu-

The Progress We Have Made.

People of all classes in the North grow impatient at what they call our slow progress in carrying on the war and restoring the beceded States to the Union, and the vations of Europe anxious to get cotton, or see the total distruction of this great Republic, complain loudly of the slowness of our movements. They forget how tardy England and France were in the Crimean war, and that Mexico, a small and unwarlike people, destitute of means of any kind to defend themselves, held out for more than a year against France, now considered the first among the military powers of Europe. The rebels, by rapid and most unscrupulous violence, seized every position of defence, overpowered and disarmed every loyal man in the South. To over come these great advantages, has re quired all the working powers of our Government and our loyal armies, and against which their heroic courage and untiring energy could not accomplish much in a short time. Yet with all the disadvantages against us, we will show that great success has been held in the Court House, Beaver, on wards restoring the Union and com and comfidence, and bandle it with energy and ability.
