The Enemies of Our Republic.

Those who undertake to overthrow the Republic, are not its only enemies. If we look for a moment at the whole matter, we will find that it is beset on all sides with the worst enemies...

Our Debt and Resources.

Nothing has surprised or gratified us more in the progress of this war of the resources of the country. Previous to the breaking out of the war...

The Dress Reform.

We notice that the ladies of the country have initiated what promises to be an important movement. We allude to the great National Covenant...

WASHINGTON, May 10th, 4 P. M.

A bearer of dispatches from General Meade's Headquarters has just reached here. He states that Lee's army commenced falling back on Friday night...

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.

Commissions for the following named persons have been received at the Recorder's office, viz: R. S. Imbrie, Johnston Calhoun, Robert Patton, Frederick Waltz, James Ross and Abraham B. Wolf.

the sake of giving their own country with ill-gotten gains, the extortioner who takes advantage of the public calamities and necessities, to charge exorbitant prices for the necessities of life, are public enemies, and the mechanic, miners or laborers who conspire together to obtain unreasonable and unjust wages, particularly in time of the nation's trouble, are enemies of the Republic.

There are many other classes of enemies, but we shall for the present only mention one more. The extravagance of the times is a terrible crime against the Republic. The Capitol city of the nation, New York, and all the great cities of the land are cursed with a class of thoughtless beings, who have suddenly grown rich by shoddy contracts, by robbery and plunder of the soldier, and of the public who are now revealing all the extravagance and splendor of eastern habits to the great disgrace and injury of the Republic.

The people of the United States are now importing foreign goods, at the rate of more than one hundred and fifty millions of dollars worth a year beyond our exports, and the great bulk of these imports are absolute luxuries, which could and should be dispensed with. These one hundred and fifty millions a year must be paid for in gold, and every dollar thus imported and consumed aids to increase the price of gold, and the cost of exchange, increases the amount of paper money, makes, of course, the necessities of life dearer and dearer, and in every way directly and indirectly cripples and embarrasses the Government.

It is certain that the more wise and virtuous and patriotic our people will upon the rockless, senseless and most wicked course of those enemies of the Republic who so far forget their duty to their country, who indulge now in their extraordinary display of indecent extravagance.

The tax on incomes is not burdensome, and yet the yield from that source alone is greater than old economies ever dreamed could be raised from all sources. Having never known what taxation was, or what national debt was, it is no wonder the nation was alarmed at the expenses of the war.

Our debt is not equal to the debt of the war. It is but a tithe of the debt of European nations. We are not yet bankrupt by any means, and will not be, should the war last for years. A simple review and reflection is all that is required to quiet the fears of any one.

There have been several such movements inaugurated in England at various periods of her history, and always with marked success. Such was the law of Parliament enacted in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, by which it was ordered that all the dead should be buried in woolen, in order to encourage the manufacture of woolen goods.

Another example is afforded by the present Queen Victoria, upon the occasion of a great distress among the manufacturers of a sort of woolen goods. The Queen ordered a full suit of the article, and it was announced that Her Majesty would appear on a certain day, arrayed in a full Court dress of the material in question.

Our heads-quarters at noon yesterday were twenty miles south of the battle field. We occupied Frederickburg. The depot for the wounded is established at Frederickburg.

The Situation as it Now Is.

We have the unspeakable satisfaction of announcing to our readers that Gen. Grant has moved with his splendid army upon Gen. Lee and his army of rebels. He has been entirely successful in his glorious opening of the campaign of 1864.

Gen. Grant is now moving against Lee, and will strike his blows against the grand army of the rebels as rapidly as possible, and at the same time that the army of the Potomac is in motion towards the rebel capital.

In the west, Sherman has pushed his gallant army of the Cumberland beyond Tunnel Hill in the direction of Dalton in the hope of finding Johnston. It is now understood that Johnston, who has never successfully made a stand anywhere, has fallen back to Atlanta Georgia, and if he should attempt to reinforce Lee, he will find Gen. Cox to meet him on the way.

From the Army of the Potomac.

GEN. GRANT'S HEADQUARTERS, May 10, 1864.—As expected last night the army came up with the enemy to-day. A battle has been fought between parts of it and the whole rebel army, but as at Getty's battle, the bloodiness of this day was only a prelude to the bloodiest work, and it is to be hoped more auspicious results will follow to-morrow.

Gen. Hancock's corps was to march from Chancellorsville south-westwardly on the Hanbury road to Grove Church, G. P. Warren, from the old Wilderness having to Parkers Store on the Orange Court Plank Road. Sedgwick's corps was to follow behind Warren.

General Grant and Meade came up from Germania Ford, and orders were issued to halt the various columns of infantry, concentrate and form them for battle, at this point. A commanding ridge, running from the north-west to the south-east, across both roads over which the enemy were advancing about half a mile to the west of this point, offered a fine position for the formation of a battle-front, and was selected for this purpose.

OVER EIGHT PER CENT INTEREST.

It is believed that no securities offer so great inducements to lenders as the various descriptions of U. S. Bonds. In all other forms of indebtedness, the faith or ability of private parties or stock companies or separate communities only is pledged for payments, while for the debts of the United States the full faith and credit of the country is held to secure the payment of both principal and interest in coin.

It may be useful to state in this connection that the total funded debt of the United States on which interest is payable in gold, on the 23d day of March, 1864, was $768,985,400. The interest on this debt for the coming fiscal year will be $48,337,126, while the customs revenue in gold for the current fiscal year, ending June 30th, 1864, has been so far at the rate of over 100,000,000 per annum.

It will be seen that even the present gold revenues of the Government are largely in excess of the wants of the Treasury for the payment of gold interest, while the recent increase of the tariff will doubtless raise the amount of importations, to $150,000,000 per annum.

Instructions to the National Banks acting as loan agents were not issued from the State Treasury until March 26th, but in the first three weeks of April the subscriptions averaged more than TEN MILLIONS A WEEK.

conceived attack, constitutes a most substantial success for General Grant. Not quite one-half of the army was engaged to-day. To-night every corps is in proper position. Burnside is being fully up, and General Grant has at his command an ample force with which he will make a general attack upon the enemy at day-break. There was heavy firing on Sedgwick's part of the line after dark, but it was of short duration. It is understood that it was brought about by an advance on our side to clear our fronts.

Washington, May 9.—In the Senate this afternoon, Mr. Collamer read the following telegram from the Secretary of war:

Despatches have been received from Gen. Grant and Meade, stating they were "on to Richmond." Lee was in full retreat, with Gen. Sedgwick, Hancock, Burnside and Warren close on his heels.

U. S. 10-40 BONDS.

These Bonds are issued under the Act of Congress of March 6th, 1864, which provides that all Bonds issued under this Act shall be EXEMPT FROM TAXATION by or under any State or municipal authority.

Subscribers will receive either Registered or Coupon Bonds, as they may prefer. Registered Bonds are recorded on the books of the U. S. Treasurer, and can be transferred only on the owner's order.

At the present rate of premium on gold they pay OVER EIGHT PER CENT INTEREST in currency, and are of equal convenience as permanent or temporary investment.
