Beaver County Fair.

THE FAIR OF THE BEAVER COUNTY AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY, will be held in the Fair Grounds, near Beaver...

No PAPER NEXT WEEK.—There will be no paper issued from this office next week.

The Beaver Post Office will be open the 4th of July from 8 1/2 till 9 1/2 a. m. and from 5 1/2 till 6 1/2 p. m.

Read the advertisement of Prof. David Gordon, of Clinton, Allegany county, which will be found in another column of our paper.

ACCIDENT.—On Wednesday of last week while Mr. Wm. Alcorn and Mr. Alex. Clark were riding out in a carriage, the horses took fright and ran away in the Diamond, throwing both gentlemen from the carriage and badly hurting Mr. Alcorn. Dr. McKinney was immediately called in and dressed his wounds. Mr. Clark escaped with but one cut, which was not very serious.

The following is a list of casualties in the 140th P. V. There are more we presume, as the regiment has been fighting or skirmishing almost incessantly since the army crossed the James river.

Lieut. Purdy, of Company F, was shot in the head and instantly killed.

We learn from the Pittsburgh papers that Col. John Frazer, of the 140th, was taken prisoner.

We neglected, a couple weeks since (at which time his advertisement appeared in our paper), to call attention to the musical notice of Prof. Fernando Winters, of New Brighton, who is now engaged in teaching music, and has also charge of a Brass Band in that place.

Prof. Winters is a fine teacher—intelligent, educated and gentlemanly in his manners. Understanding the science of music perfectly, and apt in imparting knowledge to others, we can cheerfully recommend him as worthy of the patronage of all. A good band is a great desideratum in this vicinity; and we are glad to know that he has taken charge of it, and feel assured, from his knowledge of music, with execution and accuracy, that under his management, we will have what we desire.

Kentucky, "the Dark and Bloody Ground."

The raid of that mean and cowardly thief, John Morgan, is over, and after stealing some horses, burning some bridges taking what plunder he could carry, after being badly whipped by such raw militia as could be collected, he has left the State of Kentucky. Governor Bramlette, a man of doubtful loyalty, by slow movements succeeded in defending Frankfort, the Capital, and saved Kentucky from the disgrace of having it plundered and burned.

The disloyal and traitorous papers of that State, for a short time, ceased to abuse the Administration, and meanly begged the help of the Government. We cannot sympathize with Kentucky as we would have done under other circumstances, but feel that she has received a just and severe lesson. No State has been more petulant or required more indulgence in all her relations with the General Government. When the war of rebellion began, Kentucky threw the weight of her influence in favor of the South, and refused her aid to prevent the destruction of the Union.

Her influence in the beginning was practically as much opposed to the Government as any other Southern State. Nothing but stern necessity has compelled her to remain in the Union. But her moral influence is against the Administration. In every step taken by President Lincoln to suppress rebellion, has found Kentucky in the way. She opposed the first and every call for troops, she has opposed the confiscation of the property of the rebels in arms, she has opposed emancipation and the arming of the blacks, and has threatened armed opposition. She has been continually longing for the Confederacy, and yet the Confederacy has done nothing for her but to oppress and scourge her.

Remember the Soldier's Children.

Sergeant Hamilton, of New York State was found dead on the battlefield of Gettysburg, in a sitting posture, holding in his hands an ambrotype of his three little children, and with his eyes fixed in death as he gave to them the last look of life.

There was no mark or name to tell who he was. Dr. Bourne, of Philadelphia, had the ambrotype photographed, and told the story through the papers of the land in hopes of discovering the little ones. He was successful. He is now trying, by the sale of these pictures and a piece of music commemorating the event, to support and educate these orphans.

He sent a lot of them here for sale, which will be found at the Post Office in Beaver, Miss Anderson having agreed to sell them without any compensation for her service.

May I not ask every one who can sympathize with a soldier or his orphan children to purchase these sacred mementoes of the battle-field of Gettysburg?—The whole price will go to the benefit of the children.
