☞ A Union torch-light procession took place in Washington on Friday night. The parade went to the White House and called upon the President to make a speech. The President spoke as follows: "Fellow-Citizens—I was promised not to be called upon for a speech to night, nor do I propose to make one, but we have been having some very good news for a day or two, so I propose you give three hearty cheers for Sheridan.—While we are at it, we may as well consider how fortunate it was for the recess that Sheridan was a little man. If he had been a large man there is no telling what he would have done with them. I propose three cheers for Gen. Grant, who knew to what use to put Gen. Sheridan; three cheers for all our noble commanders; and the soldiers and sailors; three cheers for all the people, everywhere, who cheer the soldiers and sailors of the Union. And now good night." The procession passed through Pennsylvania avenue, and was an hour and fifteen minutes in passing one point.

☞ Ex-Secretary Chase said in his speech at Covington, Ky., a few days ago:

"When we come to balance up the probabilities in reference to the electoral college, there can be no doubt of the result. You may count against Lincoln every doubtful vote, and there will be enough to elect him and to spare. I believe that by the 8th of November you will find the people very nearly as unanimous as they were when the first gun was fired upon Sumter."

☞ Des Moines, Ottumwa and other towns in Western Iowa, and along the border, have had a slight scare from a raid of five hundred Missouri guerrillas, who cut the throats of Unionists, cheer for McClellan, and vote Copperhead tickets. The gallant Iowans were up and ready for them, and soon put the murderous gang on the McClellan march—in full retreat.

☞ The army of the Potomac is for McClellan," has been the standing boast of the Copperheads, and especially with regard to that portion of the army which is from Pennsylvania. Well, about two-thirds of the Pennsylvania portion of that army has been heard from: Union, 14,690; Democrat, 3,585. If this is not a vote of "want of confidence" in McClellan, we don't know what else to make of it.

☞ A grand political meeting in Springfield, Illinois, was gladdened and amused by a banner, borne by wounded soldiers, which Lincoln was trying up with a rail, while Andy Johnson was seated cross legged on the North American part of it, tailor fashion, sewing up a huge rent. "Old Abe" says to him, "A few more stitches, Andy, and the dear old Union will be mended."

IMPORTANT TO MAIMED SOLDIERS.—The government has increased the allowance heretofore allowed for artificial legs furnished to soldiers. At the present rate of compensation (seventy-five dollars) the several manufacturers who enjoy the patronage of the government can afford to furnish their best limbs without extra charge.

☞ Speaking of the declaration in the Chicago platform that the war is a failure, the New York Herald keenly remarks: "The Convention must have been thinking of the war as conducted by McClellan. But the Convention ought to know that a man by the name of Grant has now taken hold and the war is not a failure."

☞ Gen. John A. Logan is responsible for the statement that William J. Allen, the Copperhead candidate for Congress in the thirteenth District, Illinois, proposed to him in the beginning of the rebellion to divide the State of Illinois on the line of the Ohio and Mississippi railroad, and that the lower half should join the Confederacy.
