

THE BEAVER ARGUS
is Published Every Wednesday, IN MINIS' BUILDINGS,
THIRD ST., BEAVER, PA.
$2.00 per annum in Advance.

Letters and contributions, by mail, will have prompt attention.

J. S. RUTAN & CO., Eds. & Prop.

POETICAL.

WILL AND BE CONTENTED.

He would grow old, and men grow cold,
To seek while seeking treasure;
Ied when want, and care and toil,
We scarce have time for pleasure.

My heart—there is a loss
Which must be lamented;

Its will on gaily if we will,

And smile and be contented.

We are poor, and could be rich;

I will not be a prig;

My heart—there is a loss

Which must be lamented;

Its will on gaily if we will,

And smile and be contented.

When fortune bids us sorrow,

From hope we may a blessing reap;

And consolation borrow.

If there will rise where blossoms bloom,

It cannot be prevented;

So make the best of life you can;

And smile and be contented.

Miscellaneous

Character in Dress

It would seem indeed as if men's faces were fixed beyond all power of adjustment to character; but not laws or repressing influences can read in either a man's showing it in his outer garments. Still, wherever there is a strongly pronounced char acter, a character of such originality, dependence, or crookedness, as to break loose from the habits and tone of thought of the age, though it be a points merely abstract, with no peculiar relation to the coat, or skirt, or arrangement of hair, these externals will be affected by them, and will declare the man a dissident from, or a leader of, the things of the age.

Something about the exterior, or the form of his attire, will be remarkable. This of course applies to speculators and the crux-ter of action, practical men, policians—all who carry on the world's business, whose concern is with men they are, and whose occupation derives on the continuance of the existing state of things—dress, as they are, and act, with the world; but every deviation of thought, every consistent resolution in a man to think and act for himself in any manner, certainly expresses itself in some external peculiarity. It is indeed wonderful how this connection between the inner principle and the outer—how speedily it is manifested in the exterior, or exterior development, will itself in spite of every human that exists, and we might almost say, intention, imposes.

A man cannot be a prig in his now without the tie of his cravat, or one time somewhere, showing it cannot be a sceptic, actively consciously intent on making prosper, without too hot his features is hair, his gait, his back-bowd showing it, but some eccentric upper gangar, cedar, shoes, something about in. A man cannot set about indus-triously subverting the constitution of country without everything, from hat to his boots, and every loose thing interwoven garment, telling a man, cannot be a liberator about some signal, answering to carabelli's shirt; the mantle of the project; such intimate connection is there between man and woman, that immediately sur-surrounds him.

Clothes are but an extension and other emanation of the same subtle force which moulds the features as a reflection of the habitual work of the mind. Until a man's garments are formed, those intimate relations with him, he is an image, a copy of the scene, a活 figure—as can predicate nothing concerning

Who can tell what a king is in his coronation robes? a herald in his stand? or a soldier on parade? Who can tell what a beggar is—hang about garments that have received every tear and fold from other men's hand? Even the dogs bark at him something incomprehensible, and disgust.

Sure Knock Under.—No, never despairingly rally your forces for an adversary assault upon adverse. I am apt to do in such eases part with your traducers, and turn a mody and misanthropic face still, rock to drown your unhappiness in dissipation. Bide your time. Disprove the slander, it you can, if not, live it down. If poverty has pinned you like a thief in the night

Let it rouse you, as the presence of a real thief could do, desperate action. No matter how you may have got into hot water, always provided that you did not tell the father of lies to heat your case, if you are made of the best kind of stuff, is not desperate, but in accord with divine order and a step of things that life should not have difficulties which an honest and determined man, with Heaven's aid, cannot surmount.

We must be unanimous," observed

Franklin, on the occasion of signing the Declaration of the American Independence. "Yes," observed

Franklin, "we must all pull together, so as to make us, mutually, we shall all hang

BEAVER ARGUS.

Vol. 42—No. 17 Beaver, Wednesday, April 25, 1866.

Established 1818.

THE CHOLEHIA.

The following letter was written by Dr. Hamlin, for many years a missionary at Constantinople, and with experience in treating cholera, extended through three visitations of that disease in Turkey:

DEAR SIR: The cholera, which has just left us after committing fearful ravages, is making its way into Europe, and will probably cross the Atlantic before another summer has passed.

Having been providentially compelled to have a good degree of practical acquaintance with it, and to see it in all its forms and stages during each of its invasions of Constantinople, I wish to make to my friends in Maine some suggestions which may relieve anxiety or be of practical use:

1. On the approach of cholera every family should be prepared to treat it without waiting for a physician. It does its work so expeditiously that while you are waiting for the doctor it is done.

2. If you prepare for it, it will not come. I think there is no disease which may be avoided with so much certainty as the cholera. But providential circumstances, or the thoughtless indiscretions of some member of a household, may invite the attack and the challenge will never be refused.

3. Mustard Poultices.—These should be applied to the pit of the stomach and kept on till the surface is well reddened.

4. The patient, however well he may feel, should rigidly observe perfect rest: To lie quiet on the back one-half of the body.

5. Mustard Poultices.—These should be applied to the pit of the stomach and kept on till the surface is well reddened.

6. Mustard Poultices.—These should be applied to the pit of the stomach and kept on till the surface is well reddened.

7. Mustard Poultices.—These should be applied to the pit of the stomach and kept on till the surface is well reddened.

8. Mustard Poultices.—These should be applied to the pit of the stomach and kept on till the surface is well reddened.

9. Mustard Poultices.—These should be applied to the pit of the stomach and kept on till the surface is well reddened.

10. Mustard Poultices.—These should be applied to the pit of the stomach and kept on till the surface is well reddened.

11. Mustard Poultices.—These should be applied to the pit of the stomach and kept on till the surface is well reddened.

12. Mustard Poultices.—These should be applied to the pit of the stomach and kept on till the surface is well reddened.

13. Mustard Poultices.—These should be applied to the pit of the stomach and kept on till the surface is well reddened.

14. Mustard Poultices.—These should be applied to the pit of the stomach and kept on till the surface is well reddened.

15. Mustard Poultices.—These should be applied to the pit of the stomach and kept on till the surface is well reddened.

16. Mustard Poultices.—These should be applied to the pit of the stomach and kept on till the surface is well reddened.

17. Mustard Poultices.—These should be applied to the pit of the stomach and kept on till the surface is well reddened.

18. Mustard Poultices.—These should be applied to the pit of the stomach and kept on till the surface is well reddened.

19. Mustard Poultices.—These should be applied to the pit of the stomach and kept on till the surface is well reddened.

20. Mustard Poultices.—These should be applied to the pit of the stomach and kept on till the surface is well reddened.

21. Mustard Poultices.—These should be applied to the pit of the stomach and kept on till the surface is well reddened.

22. Mustard Poultices.—These should be applied to the pit of the stomach and kept on till the surface is well reddened.

23. Mustard Poultices.—These should be applied to the pit of the stomach and kept on till the surface is well reddened.

24. Mustard Poultices.—These should be applied to the pit of the stomach and kept on till the surface is well reddened.

25. Mustard Poultices.—These should be applied to the pit of the stomach and kept on till the surface is well reddened.

26. Mustard Poultices.—These should be applied to the pit of the stomach and kept on till the surface is well reddened.

27