The Judgeship of the 27th District.

We have been requested to publish the correspondence between a number of gentlemen of New Brighton and vicinity, and Judge Chamberlin, of that place, on the subject of his being an independent candidate for Judge of the 27th District.

When we became connected with the Argus on the 1st of July, we found Judge Chamberlin's name in it as the candidate of this county for President Judge of the District composed of the counties of Beaver and Washington.

Resolved, That Hon. Jno. H. Ewing, Wm. McDaniel, Esq., and Wm. McKennar, Esq., be and are hereby appointed Judicial conferees; and if Alexander W. Acheson, Esq., will accept a nomination for the President Judgeship of this District, he is declared to be the unanimous choice of this convention; but in any event the said conferees are instructed to insist upon the selection of a candidate for that position, whose recognized ability, learning and professional reputation combined with personal integrity will furnish satisfactory assurance of the fitness of his nomination; and that only such a nomination will be acceptable to the Union party of this county.

Mr. Acheson subsequently consented to be a candidate, but averred that he would take no steps toward bringing his own nomination about.

The conferees selected in this county, it will be remembered, were chosen by Judge Chamberlin himself; and three more upright and reliable citizens could not be found anywhere.

These gentlemen met the conferees from Washington county, the first time, on the 2d of July, at the National Hotel in this place. Those from this county voted invariably for Judge Chamberlin; while the Washington representatives voted as constantly for Mr. Acheson.

The New York Times, whose editor has been the chief bugleman for the Philanthropic Convention, and its subsequent efforts, also sees in these elections, an expression of opinion, that he was not at all looking for. Like the editor of the Herald, he too is taking the preliminary steps toward getting out of the way of the popular condemnation that is sure to overwhelm Andrew Johnson and those who support his policy.

patient because the ticket was not filled up, and numerous were the complaints made that the interests of the party were suffering by the delay.

Resolved, That the conferees of Beaver county meet the Washington county conferees, and make a nomination of President Judge for the 27th District.

Thus instructed the conferees again met at Pittsburgh, and at this meeting the name of Judge Chamberlin was withdrawn from the conference; but as the conferees were not all present, they adjourned to meet at Frankfort Springs on September 1st, at which time and place Mr. Acheson was nominated as the Union candidate for the District—his being the only name then before the conferees.

We have thus sought to give the public a faithful history of the Judicial trouble in this District; and if we have succeeded in doing so, it but remains for us to add, that as we see nothing either unfair or dishonorable in Mr. Acheson's nomination, we can do no less than give him a hearty support.

To do otherwise, and break away from the regular nominee of our organization, would not only be treating Mr. Acheson ungenerously; but it would likewise have a direct tendency to destroy all party efficiency in the District in the future.

To determine who among rival candidates shall be the nominee, in a district where several counties compose it, is the conferees' duty and the object of holding conferences. If the conferees from each county adhered to their own candidate, and continuously arrayed themselves against all others, the party they represented would be surely and as frequently suffer defeat as the experiment would be tried.

With Mr. Acheson we are not intimately acquainted; but those who are united in saying that his eminent legal qualifications and spotless private character admirably qualify him for the position for which he is a candidate. Attending closely to the duties of his profession, he has accordingly mingled but little in political life, and save in the contests of '63 and '64, he has taken no prominent part in local canvasses.

Having a candidate for Judge, then, whose qualifications are undoubted, and whose patriotism is well known, every effort should be made to give him as heavy a vote in this county as we possibly can.

Getting out of the Way. The recent elections in Vermont and Maine have not only opened President Johnson's eyes, but the results in these States are likewise bringing forth fruits elsewhere.

The editor of the Local in speaking of the reception of the President at Pittsburgh some two weeks ago, says that the crowd was going, and with those who occupied the windows of D. S. Haven's building, and who appeared to be the leading spirits, was Jacob Weyand, editor of the Beaver Argus.

Were we accountable to the editor of the Local for our conduct either at Pittsburgh or elsewhere, we would tell him that we could procure a certificate from every person in the room in which we were on the evening referred to, and all stating, that we were as guiltless of making any noise while the President was on the platform as any man in Pittsburgh.

Address of the Executive County Committee.

FELLOW CITIZENS OF THE UNION PARTY: Again our annual duty brings us before you. But how changed the circumstances! In 1865 the contest of arms was over; and believing God had raised up a resolute man, in place of the mild and murdered Lincoln, to punish traitors and make treason odious, we thought the deep waters of national affliction were passed, and that the great Rebellion would be wound up by measures that would forever guaranty national safety and peace.

Andrew Johnson one year ago our head is now their head. To him, (his author and patron) the late Philadelphia Convention, made up of Rebels, with hands uncleaned of the blood of our sons and neighbors, Copperhead Democrats, the sympathizers of Rebels, and false deserting Unionists, rendered its account.

These are the men who come crying peace, when there is no peace; when the blood of loyal men flows like water in the streets of Memphis, New Orleans and other Southern cities; when Unionists and negroes are "massacred" in the language of General Sheridan; and this by authority.

Have we fallen asleep, and are we dreaming that we the Union party of the country, who carried on a four years war against rebellion and against these men to a successful termination, have forgotten and do not know on what side we are?

Having a candidate for Judge, then, whose qualifications are undoubted, and whose patriotism is well known, every effort should be made to give him as heavy a vote in this county as we possibly can.

any true soldier, who fought for his country, be carried away by such pretensions? Surely not.

And what is the issue they present? Representation of the Rebel States in Congress? Granting they are in States in the Union, granting they have the right of representation yet remains, what man in his senses can support them? Were States in rebellion entitled to representation, and thus to vote down the measures necessary to suppress the insurrection? Does that supposition cease, by the mere cessation of arms?

But even if we were answerable to the editor of the Local for what we did or said on that occasion, he would not have been competent to pass upon our deportment; for himself and a few of his associates were so "boozey" at the time, that however willing they might have been, they could not have seen half way across the street, much less have extended their vision across it, and to a third story room where we were sitting.

The Judicial Controversy.

Hon. B. B. Chamberlin—Dear Sir: As the present incumbent of the office of President Judge of the 27th Judicial District, appointed by the Governor of the Commonwealth, and receiving the thanks of the Legislature, I am under the necessity of withdrawing from the office of President Judge.

We, therefore, respectfully request, that you will permit your name to be placed before the people of the 27th Judicial District as an INDEPENDENT CANDIDATE for the office of President Judge.

New Brighton, Sept. 12, 1866. Messrs. Benjamin Wills, G. S. Barker, Wm. B. Lemmon, R. E. Hoops and others: GENTLEMEN: I am in receipt of your communication of the 8th instant, and considering its object, I gratefully appreciate this manifestation of your confidence and regard.

The Union County Convention at Beaver unanimously nominated me as the candidate for President Judge of the 27th Judicial District of Washington and Beaver counties of which I was then the incumbent, as the appointed Judge of the District.

A reasonable expectation prevailed that Washington county, in accordance with all generous usage, would occur in my nomination if firmly upheld. Several Conference meetings resulted in no agreement. Finally a reference to the County Executive Committee, without my knowledge, or the concurrence of advising friends, was obtained.

Very truly your fellow citizen, B. B. CHAMBERLIN.
