THE BEAVER ARGUS.

J. WEYAND,
EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

March 20th, 1867.

The Local and Senator Taylor's Vote.

The Local is in trouble in point of fact. Figuratively speaking it is hors de combat. Its editor was wishing, and possibly praying, (if he ever does such a thing at all,) while the Free Railroad bill was pending in the Senate that Senator Taylor would vote against it. In that event his paper would have "groaned" with phrases like this: "Senator Taylor votes against a Free Railroad law," "The Pennsylvania Railroad buys him up," 'His Constituents' betrayed," "The people indignant" &c., &c. But as Senator Taylor voted as all practical, sensible men would have done themselves or desired their representatives to do, the editor of that paper has been deprived of the use of these startling headlines, and is said to have been visibly "down in the mouth" ever since. To keep up appearances, however, he last week made a feeble attack on Senator Taylor for voting for the bill, when every person hereabouts knows that if he had voted against it, just the sensational headings that we have quoted above would have appeared in the Local, and "we told you so" would have been seen in every article of that paper for a month to come. Disappointed, aint you?

The Connellsville Bill.

The Connellsville Railroad bill came up in the House on Thursday last, and was defeated by the following vote:

Defeated in the Senate before, and now in the House, kills it this session, without a doubt. We are sorry that this is so.

New Hampshire Election.

The election on Tuesday last in New Hampshire resulted in a thorough Republican triumph. Gen. Harriman is chosen Governor by about three thousand majority over John G. Sinclair, Democrat. Three Republican Congressmen are elected by majorities avering 1,000 each. We have nine State Senators out of twelve, four out of five Councilors, and seventy-five majority in the lower branch of the Legislature.

This is the first election held since the passage of the Reconstruction law by Congress over the President's veto, and shows that the people of the Granite State, have an abiding faith in Congress and its Reconstruction policy, and none in President Johnson, and no sympathy with his ill-concealed rebel opinions.

Cowan's Rejection.

Cowan's name as Minister to Austria was again before the Senate last week, and as was expected, his rejection followed. The vote on his confirmation shows him to have had quite a number of personal friends in the Senate, but a large majority of the members of that body, believed that a person who had acted the part he did throughout the rebellion, and who entertains the views he now does, should not represent this Government at a foreign Court. This was sensible.

Gov. Swann of Maryland, having resigned what little claim he had on the United States Senatorship of that State some two weeks ago, ex-Gov. Thomas was on Monday last chosen to fill the vacancy. The latter is an Andy Johnson" Democrat.

The "Sober Second Thought."

A week or ten days ago, several of our cotemporaries, among them our neighbor, the Local, went off at "half cock," on the vote in the Senate on the Free Railroad bill. They denounced every Senator that voted for the act, and would not for a moment entertain the idea, that quite a number of these same Senators had done their utmost in the committee of the whole to have the bill properly amended, and failing in this, finally voted for it as the best that could be obtained this session. This, they averred was all "gammon," but now the "sober second thought" together with additional light on the subject, has shown them the injustice of their remarks, and with one accord they all, excepting the Local, take back their offensive insinuations, and admit that the free railroad principle has no better friends than quite a number of Senators who were the recipients of their abuse—The following extract taken from a long article in the Harrisburg Telegraph on this subject, evidently gave the Senate vote a phase which these papers never saw it have before, and which no doubt brought about the retractions and apologies subsequently made by them. The Telegraph of the 11th says:

Senator Bigham, of Allegheny, one of the most cautious and candid men in the Senate, prepared the free railroad bill at the instance of the Railroad Committee. After it had been read in place, it was referred to the Railroad Committee by Speaker Hall, the Senate instructing the Committee to report the bill at a certain date. At the proper time the bill was reported with certain amendments attached.—Senators Billingtelt, Brown, of Mercer, Coleman, Cowles, Davis, Taylor, Wallace, White and Speaker Hall, voted, in committee of the whole, against all the amendments incorporated in the bill by the Railroad Committees.—The same Senators afterwards in the Senate, on calls of the yeas and nays, recorded similar votes. The record shows all these facts. A majority of the Senate preferred the bill as it came from the Railroad Committee, and the amendments inserted by that Committee were adopted in the Senate.—We are bound to respect the majesty as well as the integrity of that major ity. All the interests at stake were fairly considered at the time. The debate elicited was one of the ablest ever had in the Senate. It is, therefore, too late now either to slur those who voted for the bill on its final passage, or to threaten any man for his vote during the legislative stages of the bill, because every candid man who watched those proceedings is convinced that they were honorably and fairly conducted.

Senator Bigham, whose vote is recorded against the bill, on its final passage, clearly and emphatically stated, prior to voting, that, although the bill was not perfect, HE DESIRED IT TO PASS. Senator Bigham never drops inconsiderate words in the Senate.—He drew this bill. Notwithstanding its amendments it yet contained all the important features he had created therein. Senator Bigham withheld his vote (although his name is first on the roll) until the yeas and nays had been called, STATING THAT IF IT WAS NECESSARY TO PASS THIS BILL, HE WOULD VOTE FOR IT RATHER THAN HAVE IT DEFEATED.

The Pittsburgh Commercial, after bitterly denouncing the Senators referred to by the Telegraph for having voted for the bill on its final passage, takes back its reflections on their integrity and acknowleges them to be the real friends of a general railroad law, in this State; and the Gazette in the same spirit makes use of these remarks:

That we may do no injustice, we here state that the bill was originally prepared by Mr. Bigham; that the alterations which made it offensive were fastened on it by the Railroad Committee; that in Committee of the Whole all these alterations were voted against by Billingfelt, Brown of Mercer. Cowles, Davis, Bigham, Graham, Lowry, Taylor, Wallace, White and Hall.—Afterwards, in the Senate, the same Senators remained true. So far therefore, as our remarks tended to disparage either of those gentlemen they are withdrawn.

Thus while one after another of the newspapers who attacked these Senators, recall their offensive language, the poor, spiteful, little Local will hardly venture upon doing so of its own accord, and no person is sufficiently interested in its opinions or attacks to ask it to.

District Commanders.

Dispatches from Washington last week were to the effect that the President had appointed Generals Sherman, Scofield, Meade, Hancock, McDowell to command the five Districts created by the Congressionall Reconstruction Bill. The official order, announcing these appointments changes the commanders, and Gen. Grant, after reciting the act of Congress for the more efficient government of the Rebel States, concludes as follows:

In pursuance of this act the President directs the following assignment to be made:

First district, State of Virginia, to be commanded by Brevet Major-Gen. J. M. Schofield headquarters at Richmond, Va.

Second district, consisting of North Carolina and South Carolina, to be commanded by Major-Gen. D. E. Sickles, headquarters at Columbia, S. C.

Third District, consisting of the State of Georgia, Florida, and Alabama, to be commanded by Major-Gen. G. H. Thomas, headquarters at Montgomery, Ala.

Fourth District, consisting of the States of Mississippi and Arkansas, to be commanded by Brevet Major-Gen. E. O. C. Ord, headquarters at Vicksburgh, Miss.

Fifth District, Consisting of the States of Louisiana and Texas, to be commanded by Major-Gen. P. H. Sheridan, headquarters at New-Orleans, La.

The power of Department commanders are hereby delegated to the above named District Commanders.

By command of Gen. Grant.

E. D. TOWNSEND, A. A. G.

THE Local of last week says that Quay voted for the Free Railroad law. We have no means of knowing what Mr. Quay's views on the subject are; but we do know that he has not indicated them by his vote, for the bill has not yet been touched in the House of which he is a member.—Another evidence of the Local's reliability on matters of legislation.

Sound Views.

At the recent session of the Pittsburgh Conference of the M. E. Church, at Massillon, Ohio, the following preamble and resolutions were adopted:

The state of the country is at the present time peculiar and anomalous. The war for the preservation of the government and the Union has closed, but the conflict has not terminated; it has only been transferred from the field to the forum; from the camp to the council. Ideas, not armies, are the forces which now confront each other, and the real issue is whether treason shall recover what it lost in the field or whether the sublime truths expressed in the Declaration of independence shall have a distinct and emphatic recognition and application in the reconstruction of the government and its future administration. Your committee, therefor, offer for adoption the following resolutions:

Resolved, 1st. That we hereby and emphatically endorse the action of the thirty-ninth Congress on the question of reconstrucion, and approve the measures adopted for the final settlement of that question.

Resolved, 2d, That, believing christianity to be the basis and bulwark of civil liberty, we hail with joy as among the auspicious signs of the times the congressional temperance and prayer meetings.

Resolved, 3d, That as "righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people," we will not cease to pray for our rulers, and will give our influence and suffrage to elevate to offices of profit and trust men of unbending moral integrity.

Correspondence.

The following letter should have appeared last week, but came too late for insertion.

MASSILLON, OHIO, Mar. 11th, 1867.

Editor Argus: As we are enjoying the hospitality of one of the enterprising merchants of this city, together with that of his accomplished lady, we are minded to give our readers a few jottings of our impression of the place as also some items in relation to the M. E. Conference now holding in the city its forty third annual session. Massillon as many of your readers know, is located on the line of the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago rail road, twenty five miles west of Alliance, and eight miles from Canton. Like most cities and towns we have visited in Ohio, it has very broad streets, and ample grounds inclosed with nearly all its dwellings, which are ornamented with luxuriant evergreens, many of them having attained a large growth. The present population of the city is estimated at about six thousand. The people are intelligent, industrious, and hospital. The latter quality appearing to great advantage, and making a most favorable impression on the members of the Conference. There are several manufacturing establishments in the city, we mention that of Brown, Seibeling & Co., for the manufacture of the "Excelsior Reaper & Mowers" and employing over three hundred men. There are several large rooms well stocked with dry goods, and doing a thriving business. There are also several groceries, and prominent among them one large wholesale house owned by Mr H. K. Dickey. This gentleman furnishes everything in his line, fresh from New York, to the grocers here, and in the county sourrounding, on the most reasonable terms. This strickes us as a good arrangement, and one that might be safely imitated in some other places we know of.

The Conference is making an excellent impression on the community here, by the dignified bearing, eminent talents, and social manner of its members. Bishop Thompson, the presiding officer, has long been distinguished as a man of sound and varied learning, and more recently as one of the best business men in the Episcopal board. His Sermon on Sabbath morning will not soon be forgotten by those who were privileged to hear it. The Conference is also honored with the presence of the venerable Bishop Moiris, whose godly life and sound administration have justly entitled him to the affection, and gratitude of the whole church. Dr. J. P. Durbin, corresponding Secretary of the missionary society was present during a part of the session, and preached in the Episcopal Church on Sabbath morning a sermon of great power. His name is a household word, and a tower of strength throughout the Christian world. The various Committees ordered by the Conference have made their reports, most of which are gratifying, and show decided progress. The Centenary contributions, will alone amount to about half a million. The preachers are anxiously waiting to hear their appointment read by the Bishop, when they will immediately adjourn, and hasten to their homes, to prepare for another year of labor and toil.—May it be as the past, only more abundant.

Truly Yours,

B.

CONGRESSIONAL.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Mar. 18, 1867.

THE NEW MARYLAND SENATOR.

A three hours debate took place in the Senate to-day on the question of admitting the new Senator from Maryland to his seat. A motion was made to refer his credentials to the Judiciary Committee, which will prevail to-morrow. The objection to his being received as Senator, was based on the statement that he resigned as Secretary of the Treasury from Buchanan's Cabinet, on the ground that it had decided to reinforce Fort Sumter, and collect the duties on ship board at the port of Charleston. Senator Howard, who made the motion of reference, claims that Thomas resigned as Secretary for the same reason that Cobb and Tompson gave. Mr. Thomas was present in the Senate during the discussion, and seemed very much exercised. It is by no means probable that he will get his seat this session.

THE TREASURY INVESTIGATION.

The House placed so little confidence to day in the stories that government bonds have been issued in duplicate from the Treasury that it refused to order a special committee, but concurred with the Senate in authorizing the joint Committee on Retrenchment to make any needed investigation. It appeared, however, in debate that the duplication of numbers of sixteen thousand dollars worth of coupons did not duplicate the coupons, and that the error was made by the American Bank Note Company, and not by the Printing Bureau of the Treasury.

THE NATIONAL BANKING LAW.

Mr. Randall, of Pennsylvania, introduced in the House to-day, a bill to so amend the National Banking law as to substitute legal tender notes for National Bank notes It is the same thing that was pending in last Congress, and has no probability of its being acted upon until next winter.
