THE WORLD MUTUAL INSURANCE COMPANY.
Mr. J. F. Freau of Hollidaysburg Pa. is the general agent of the above named company for Pennsylvania. The plans of insurance are established upon the settled axioms of Life Insurance Companies, and are those which will endure perpetually; dividends will increase annually after two years, with the age of the policy, and arrangements made in preference to the amount of premium loaned to the policy holder when desired.

Cheap Boots and Shoes at Wilson & Dickey's, Beaver, Pa.

Attention is called to the advertisement of Messrs. T. B. Young & Co., 38 & 40 Smithfield St., Pittsburgh, in to-day's paper. Messrs. Young & Co. have an excellent assortment of all kinds of Furniture of their own manufacture and warranted, which they will dispose of at low prices. Call and see them.

Horse Exhibition.—The horse exhibition announced last week did not draw as large a crowd as we anticipated, owing to the storm which prevailed here on that day. The day was too inclement for either man or beast to be out. Notwithstanding this, Mr. Dudley came out with one of his horses, run him up and down the street without bridle or reins, made him perform various "tricks," and all with the voice or motion of the whip.

IMPORTANT TO TOWNSHIP AUDITORS.—An act of considerable importance exists in this State, and which we surmise has been but imperfectly enforced, in this county at least. It requires the Auditor to cause every district in the State to be carefully audited by the township auditors, and whose duty it is to prepare a condensed statement of the condition of these finances and publish the same at the cost of the district for three successive weeks in two papers.

Infanticide.—On Sunday last the appearance of things about an out-house in Rochester, led to the belief that foul play of some kind had taken place within it. A closer search being made a dead male child was found in one of the privies, and suspicion fastened on a young girl named Anne Hultz doing housework for a family near by, she was arrested, and after some time confessed to being the mother of the child, and also that she had given birth to it the night before near to where it was found. On Sunday afternoon she was brought to jail, where she now is.

Whisket Frauds.—Anthony Villinger of this place was detected on Saturday last and his goods seized for violating the revenue laws of the Government. The facts as we learn them are as follows: About the 1st of March, Villinger, provided himself with a small brass "still" and unknown to the Government agents, or to the "common world," commenced distilling out "angle-leg" as a steady if not rapid rate. His fixtures were on his own premises. The Revenue officers, however, not necessary to mention, got talking with Villinger was at, and accordingly made a descent on his establishment, found him fully equipped for doing a thriving business, closed the concern up, and on Monday removed his traps beyond his reach. He had taken out no license to engage in the distilling business, and the penalty for this offense is $1000. Villinger has evidently got himself into a bad scrape, and the cost of his experiment will largely exceed his profits. But a small quantity of the "ardent" was found upon his premises.

From ORIOLE.
We had the pleasure of attending the opening exercises of the School at Ohio, on the evening of the 13th inst.

The opening exercises of the school at Ohio, on the evening of the 13th inst. were a most interesting and profitable one. The exercises were presided over by the principal, and were characterized by the high moral tone of their composition, the neatness of their recitations, the manliness of the "rhetoric," boys, as they faced the crowd, and recited their pieces, the appropriate action and toned of the larger boys, exhibiting a just appreciation of the parts they were performing, all showed a determination that the motto was, "who decorated the front of the stage, should be no vain boaster.

The manner in which all performers acquitted themselves, without even the semblance of a failure, reflects great credit upon the fact and energy of their instructor, Mr. T. J. Reisinger, who by the way possesses the elements of a first class teacher.

That the nursing industry and zeal of Mr. Reisinger for the improvement of his pupils during the term that has just closed, were not unappreciated by them, was witnessed at the close of the exercises in the presentation by a circle of half dozen little girls, in a neat and discrete, spoken in concert, of a wreath of flowers entwined with evergreens; and the presentation by one of the young gentlemen, in behalf of the school, of a neatly bound Bible, which were acknowledged by their teacher in a beautiful and appropriate response, delivered in tones tremulous with emotion as these evidences of their appreciation of his labors for their advancement.

The only drawback to the enjoyment of the evening by all who attended for proper motives, was the smallness of the house, in which only a portion of the large audience could be seated so as to witness the performances. The noise and confusion kept up by those who could not hear or see prevented others, who were more fortunate, from enjoying the exercises.

Editor BEAVER ARGUS: The editor of the local in reply to my article on the license question asserts that it is a friend to temperance, and that those who advocate a prohibitory law are its enemies. If Mr. Odell is sincere in this, and does not oppose the law because Mr. Quay is his political enemy, or because some of his friends are engaged in the business, I hope he will, instead of abusing a candid, unprejudiced statement of the reasoning by which he arrives at this conclusion, be kind enough to show us, in equal candor, the influence of his policy, and the best plan for checking its ravages should, of course, be adopted; consequently, the more light we can have on the subject, the better it is for the community. My original opinion, that if the prohibitory law lately passed for Beaver county is rightly enforced, it will be a great help to the country. It is true there may be some who have a grudge against a law for strong drink who may not be benefited by it. The confirmed drunkard will never be cured, but he will have the means of satisfying his beastly and unnatural appetite; but it will undoubtedly remove a great temptation out of the way of those who have not yet acquired this appetite. It is among the young men of our country that our licensed whisky shops are working their greatest mischief. How many bright hopes have been destroyed; how many happy families rendered desolate, through the influence of these sinks of iniquity, only the worse than deserted wives and a children of the tens of thousands of poor miserable drunks that disgrace our land can tell. Far better would it be for them if the man-killer would take up the pistol or the dagger of the murderer, and deprive the victims of this low, blow, ignominious, and under the guise of a harmless stimulant, a slow but dangerous poison, that will in the end destroy his body and soul, nor would it be a greater sin, if he said, "I would kill you, 'Tis not my will, 'Tis his will," to him that giveth his neighbor strong drink, that putteth thy bottle to him, and maketh him drunken also; and it would also be as creditable for the government to grant a license for his destruction one way as another.

On Tuesday March 12, in Georgetown Church, Georgetown, by Rev. Bishop Kerfoot, Rev. Wm. Adamsy to Miss PATRICK, daughter of Mr. James Lake, both of Beaver Co., Pa.
