From the N. Y. Tribune of April 13. Women in Society.

A large and intelligent audience assembled in Mr. Frothingham's church, on Fortieth st., between Fifth and Sixth ayes, last evening, to listen to his discourse upon "Women in Society."

Mr. Frothingham commenced by saying that by society he meant the world of opinions and sentiments which is called by that name. The powers which govern it are secret, but silently they are obeyed. Nothing may resist it. It undertakes and accomplishes, and confuses no responsibility to anything.

Education of the Freedmen in the South. The report of Rev. J. W. Alvord, superintendent of schools under the Freedmen's Bureau for the six months ending December 31, 1866, contains much interesting information relative to the education of the freedmen in the southern States.

Position of the Union League of Alabama. The Montgomery (Ala) Advertiser of the 2d inst, says that the Alabama Grand Council of the Union League of Alabama has just completed a session in that city.

Education of the Freedmen in the South.

The report of Rev. J. W. Alvord, superintendent of schools under the Freedmen's Bureau for the six months ending December 31, 1866, contains much interesting information relative to the education of the freedmen in the southern States.

There are 623 schools sustained wholly or in part by the freedmen, and 236 of the buildings in which these schools are taught are owned by themselves. There are also 576 Sabbath schools, many of them with a large proportion of colored teachers, in operation.

Industrial schools are becoming more numerous. In them sewing, knitting, straw braiding, cutting, repairing and making garments are taught, and many teachers of the ordinary schools spend their spare time in imparting knowledge on domestic affairs from house to house.

That we hail with joy the recurrence to the fundamental principle on which our forefathers achieved their independence—"that all men are created equal"; that we welcome its renewed proclamation as a measure of simple justice to a faithful and patriotic class of our fellow men, and that we firmly believe that there could be no lasting pacification of the country under any system which denied to a large class of our population that hold upon the laws which is given by the ballot.

Russian America. The following is the substance of information in regard to Russian America, derived from Professor Baird, of the Smithsonian Institution.

MEDIA OF INFORMATION.—Has had two explorers in that field between one and two years, who returned last autumn, bringing a collection of specimens of natural history, extending from the British possessions to the shores of the Polar Sea.

CLIMATE TEMPERATURE.—The coast from Prince of Wales' Island to the entrance of Behring's Straits during the winter months about the same as at the city of Washington. Little snow, much rain. During summer months very foggy.

TIMBER.—Whole country well up to the northern coast heavily timbered, chiefly hard pine forests, small trees up to the very apex. Some of the islands heavily timbered with pine forests and dense underbrush; some of them destitute of timber, and covered with grass of luxuriant growth. Soil on the West Coast produces excellent barley and rye, such as radishes, turnips, and cauliflower, such as lettuce, cabbage, &c.

An Important Thought. When Daniel Webster was Secretary of State he wrote in one of his private letters to a friend that he had never seen a man who had been so often rebuffed as he had been rebuffed, and that some of his friends should be invited to dine with him the same evening. There were about twenty or so at the table, and Mr. Webster seemed weary by his attire, and speaking but little, if at all, plunged into a darksome sort of reverie, not well calculated to entertain his friends.
