CIRCUS AND CIRCUS.—Haight & Cham- pion's Menagerie and Circus will visit Roches- ter, Pa., and exhibit at 1 and 7 P. M. The Pittsburgh and other papers speak highly of the company, and persons desiring to see a collection of rare animals should avail them- selves of this opportunity of doing so.

AGRICULTURAL.—We call attention to the new advertisement of A. B. Smith & Co, manufac- turers of agricultural implements, Rochester, N. Y.

The machinery is new, and has been se- lected from the best Eastern manufactories.

SUDDEN DEATH.—A few days ago, a pauper from Beaver County Poor House, named HEN- DERSON, was seized with Apoplexy, and fell dead. He was in good health a short time before his death, having eaten a hearty meal just before he died, He was ag- ed 72 years.

ACCIDENT.—Benj. Jackson, a colored boy about 15, living in Beaver Falls, fell, a few days ago, while on the way to his work, and ruptured the bowels. The hernia was strangulated, and the physicians were un- able to reduce it until they cut down and relieved the stricture. He died the following day, when a post mortem examination re- vealed the fact that in addition to the hernia, he had broken open an old ulcer of the bowels, which caused his death by inflammation of the peritoneum.

ROAD ACCIDENTS.—On Monday of last week a man named, Robt. McMichael, of Beaver county, while near the rail- road track, was struck by a passing train, and severely injured. He is reported to be in a critical condition.

On the same day, a short distance below Beaver, in this county, a man named Win- ter was also struck by a passing train, and had his head cut about the head.

POOR PAUPERS.—We understand that the number of persons now receiving aid from this county is considerably less than it has been at any time during the last two years.

The persons receiving aid are at the present time employed as follows: at the Poor House 59; Outdoor Aid (outside) 5; at Dixmont 14; at Harrisburg Asylum 2; thus making the whole number receiving permanent and tem- porary aid from the county, 70.

The Steward of our county Poor House was changed some time ago that on and after May 1st, the price of boarding and medical attendance at the Dixmont Hospital would be $3 per week instead of $2.50 as heretofore.— This will make quite a difference in our ex- penses at that institution.

ATLANTIC WORKS.—In glancing over the columns of the Atlantic Monthly, last week, we noticed a notice of the publishers of that valu- able magazine, Messrs. Ticknor & Fields, in which they claim the entire and only right of publishing Charles Dickens' valuable works in America, and prove the same conclusively by letters received by them from that gifted author. They are very energetic accommodating publishers, and we are glad to see that they are the authorized Amer- ican publishers of Dickens' works. They have been bound beautifully and strongly, and sold them cheap. Should any of our read- ers wish to buy, or obtain more particulars thereof, they can address Messrs. Ticknor & Fields, 124 Tremont street, Boston, or 63 Beekman street, N. Y.

CORRECTION.—I had the pleasure of visiting the Poor House a few days since, and many things are due Mr. Shrodes for the courteous manner in which he treated me. I was shown through the different apartments, and was pleased to find the house so well con- ducted, and each room cleaned, and the whole well stored for—at least, as well as can be with the present buildings. Many of the visitors expressed themselves as being well pleased with the manner in which they are conducted by Mr. Shrodes and lady. It is an institution well worth visiting. R. L. I.

NORMAL MUSIC SCHOOL.—We are informed that Prof. Taylor that the Normal Music School will be opened by Prof. Johnson on the 23d inst., and continue five weeks. Arrange- ments will be made so that persons desiring to practice singing can go in one hour of the day, and pay for that hour, thus receiv- ing the five hour lessons for two dollars. We should be surprised if this arrangement is not highly appreciated by our citizen singing public.

The school will be worth any number of singing books, as it will be conducted by one who is a skilled master in his department. Let all make up their minds to give the Professor a hearty welcome in this his third annual meet- ing here.

The Dixmont Murder.

EDITOR ARGUS:—I thank you, Mr. Editor, in the name of the farmers and country peo- ple generally, even for the little you say in the last number of the Argus on the subject of Fogler's confession and execution, the com- plicity of other parties, and especially of the outrageous conduct of the lawyers who acted as the Prisoner's Counsel. I fully believe in the truthfulness of Fogler's statements; for what earthly motive had the dying man to lie? Without prospect of reprieve or pardon, be- lieving that he was soon to appear before his Maker to give an account of his deeds and words, why should he not speak the truth, and why should we not give credit to his aver- ments. On the presumption, then, that he speaks the truth, how terrible the thought, especially for us defenceless country people, that we live in a section of country and among a population where such a murder could be planned and executed. For, the murder of Dinsmore was spoken of both before and after it was committed by the parties implicated, as if it was of no more account than the kil- ling of a dog. Look at Fogler's statements.— In Western Pennsylvania, in Washington county, remarkable for its churches and re- ligion, the sons of a man, deemed by his fellow citizens worthy to represent his district in the Congress of the U. S., concoct a plan to mur- der a friend and neighbor for his money. The Court meets for the trial of the murderers, when one of them, the son of a rich man of high standing, is cleared, while the other poor devil who was an ignorant tool and dupe, is convicted sentenced, and executed; and all this by a Washington county court and jury! From the day I read the account of the mur- der I fully believed that the elder Mongomery, convinced of his son's guilt, would, in some way or other, by hook or by crook, by pardon or by bribery of the jailor, see to it that Fog- ler made his escape, and was not made the scape goat for a greater criminal. But the hair of my head stands straight with horror as I see in the confession evidence that the two "lawyers," Ruth and Little, were assign- ed to Fogler as attorneys, not to defend the poor wretch, but to make a mere bridge of him over which young Montgomery could make his escape from the gallows. To say nothing of the crime of this arrangement on the part of W. Montgomery and these two "gentlemen of the bar," how inexpressibly mean and treach- erous it was. The Montgomery boys are hon- estly born! I would rather to-day have the reputation of Fogler, and fill his grave at Georgetown, as an executed murderer, and take his chance for the world to come, than stand in the shoes of the Montgomeries, father and sons, or of these two attorneys. Fogler is dead, but where on earth can these men go to rid themselves of the reproaches of their own consciences and the scorn of all honorable men? The Hon. W. Montgomery has made an attempt to invalidate the statements in Fog- ler's confession, which shows that even his skill as a county court lawyer has forsaken him in the defence he makes. But I will venture to say that ninety-nine men out of every hundred who make themselves familiar with the case will believe Fogler instead of Montgomery. The first had no earthly or any other interest in lying, the latter has every motive in the world, but one, to do so.

Now, Mr. Editor, what farmer is safe in his house at night if it be suspected that he has a few hundreds of dollars in his possession?— Both in Washington and Beaver counties how many robberies of this kind have been com- mitted, and how few have been punished!— If such men as those who by Fogler's confes- sion were concerned in the murder of Dinsmore are still allowed to go at large, on account of the "glorious uncertainty of the law," will not we defenceless farmers be compelled to form our- selves into Vigilance Committees and protect ourselves against such villains? I am glad you are going to publish even a part of Fog- ler's confession. The rural population of Beaver county, hundreds of whom read the Argus, and all of whom are completely at the mercy of the wicked, have an interest in knowing how plans to murder farmers are concocted in Washington county, and how the murderers go unwhipt of justice. Besides this, the body of the poor man lies in our soil and his friends have a right to lay his dying words before our people, so that they may form correct judgment as to the amount of his guilt.

A FARMER.

SUNDAY LOAFERS.—Beaver, like almost all other towns of the same size, is afflicted with a few Sunday corner loafers. These idlers meet at some convenient corner, as soon as they get themselves "fixed up," on Sunday morning, and there they stand and stare at every church-going lady that passes that way; and not unfrequently, too do they make remarks that should bring up- on them punishment of the severest character. Some of these engage in this unmannerly and pernicious habit with a full knowledge of its meanness; while others do so, more through thoughtlessness than anything else. — To these latter we commend the following lines, which we clip from an exchange, while speaking of the same intolerable nuisance:

"He was standing on the corner,
In the place where loafers meet,
And he watched the dressy damsels,
As they waded o'er the street.
From his mouth came inuendos,
And his eyes were open wide,
As on tiptoe they came dancing
O'er the muddy, sloppy tide;
When a lady and her daughter,
Stepping carefully along,
Closely veiled from street inspection,
Heard his slimy, venomed tongue;
Then the little veils were lifted,
And with shame his head he hung,
For his mother and his sister
Thus had struck the speaker dumb."

A JUMPING MATCH.—Robt. Way of Pitts- burgh, an aspirant for muscular honors, recent- ly challenged any man in the United States to a jumping match. His challenge is accepted, as appears from the subjoined letter published in last week's New York Clipper.

WEST FARMINGTON, N. Y., May 16th, 1867.

DEAR CLIPPER:—I see by your paper of May 11th that Bob Way challenges any man in the United States to jump. I will accept Mr. Way's challenge to jump him one single jump for one thousand dollars a side, with the understand- ing that I will give him one hundred dollars to have the jump come off in New York City, or I will take the stake and have the jump come off at the place he desires. This is to defray ex- penses to the party that gets beat. We are ready to put up at any time he accepts.

Yours Respectfully,
NORMAN P. BORTLE.

THE ARGUS

THE CORONERS INQUEST!

We briefly stated in last week's Argus that the body of Thos Middleton of Fallston, who disappeared so mysteriously last November, had been found near Mr. Dinsmore's, West Virginia, some two weeks before, and an inquest was held over it there at the time it was found, and a verdict of "came to his death by vio- lence" was rendered. But who the murdered man was, or whence the body came, were matters unknown to the Virginia Jury. These facts afterwards came to the knowledge of the Middleton family at Fallston, and the sons of the missing man repaired to New Cumberland, and at once were satisfied that the body upon whom the inquest had there been held, was that of their father. They immediately bro't it home, and a second inquest was held, this time at the late residence of the deceased in Fallston Borough, Tuesday, May 21st, and was composed of Coroner M'Coy, Dr. Garrard, Wm. Henry, Thomas Henry, Frederick Kat- tarrar, Mr. Henderson and Mr. Brumlee, all with the exception of the Coroner, residents of the Borough of Fallston. A post mortem examination was made by Drs. M'Kinney, Stanton and Jackson, in the presence of a large number of spectators. Considering the time the body was in the water, it was in a remarkable state of preservation, showing that it was not exposed long to the air, and must have been sunk during most of the time. The first witnesses called, were the sons and other relatives and friends of the deceased, as to the identity. There was no difficulty in establishing the fact. Every person who saw the body identified it at once from the size of features, whiskers, hair, teeth, &c., and the friends identified the stockings, garters, shoes and the part of shirt left there being no oth- er articles of clothing on the body when found. The physicians having concluded the exami- nation, were next called, and testified that they had made a thorough and careful examin- ation and, were satisfied that death had result- ed from violence. They had found two wounds on the body, one in each breast, and one through the left hand, made by a sharp instru- ment. And the wound in left hand and right breast, bore unmistakable evidence of having been made at one place, while the hand was raised over the breast. Their examination of those wounds satisfied them that they were made in the lifetime of deceased, but that they were not sufficient to produce death. They also found on the neck clear evidence of strangulation, and an examination of the brain satisfied them that death had resulted from that cause. This is a brief summary of their tes- timony, all three agreeing in every particu- lar, and was to all who heard, conclusive evi- dence that Thomas Middleton had been mur- dered. Having reached this conclusion, the Inquest summoned witnesses to ascertian, if possible, who were guilty of the murder.— Two days have been spent and a large num- ber of witnesses examined, but as yet no definite result reached. It was proven that the night he was missing, he was at the Tav- ern of James Parris, in Brighton township, until after eleven o'clock, when he started for home. He had been drinking, but was not intoxicated, he was able to walk as usual. In a few minutes afterwards a man was heard hallowing near Brady's Run, and within a hundred yards of the Tavern. He was heard by a dozen or more persons living around, and the time it lasted was variously estimated at from five minutes to an hour. Yet strange as it may seem, no one went to his assistance, al- though three men were so much alarmed, that they got up, lit their lamps, and listened un- til the crying ceased. By some it was regarded as the cry of one in distress, and by others, as the language of abuse. One wit- ness who lived within a hundred feet of where his hat was found, testified that the last words uttered were, "God have mercy." At first the cry was very loud, so loud as to be heard across the creek, a distance of nearly half a mile, arouse the neighbors out of a sound sleep, and gradually growing fainter until it was heard no more. Wash Gordon testified that he found Middleton's hat next day, near Brady's Run Bridge, and within three feet of the water, but saw no other traces. His account was at best contradictory and unsatisfactory. There is testimony sufficient to excite suspicion as to two or three persons, but we deem it prudent to say nothing more of this at present. The testimony has not yet closed, and something more definite may yet be developed. We trust the Inquest will make their examination thorough, and not conclude so long as there is a probability of unraveling this mystery. Public justice de- mands that no efforts be spared, not only to fathom the mystery, but to bring the guilty parties to justice. Never were our citizens so excited over a crime, and they will not be satisfied with anything short of extraordinary efforts to ferret out the criminals. We may, if the interests of pub- lic justice permit, give more of the testimony taken before the inquest, when their labors close.

BEAVER, May 27, 1867.

Editor Argus Dear Sir:

Sensible of the necessity of treating you with respect, and of the false charges put in circulation for the purpose of damaging me as a candidate for nomination for the Legislature, You will therefore please publish the following card.

Respectfully,

A Card.

MAY 27, 1867.

We the undersigned, officers and members of the 10th P. R. C., of which Mr. J. R. Wil- son was sutler, regret to learn that some evil- designed person or persons have circulated a report that he had sold liquor to the soldiers. There is not the shadow of truth in the assertion, but on the contrary he refused when requested to do so by the officers in com- mand of the brigade. And further, we know that on an investigation instituted by Congress to ascertain who was guilty of so doing, he was the only one in the army of the Potomac who did not sell it, which is a matter of record at Washington City. And we take pleasure in further stating that he never sold any goods on the Sabbath day.

Respectfully,
JAMES T. KIRK,
late Col. 10th Reg't P. R. C.,
C. W. McDOWELL,
Capt. Co. D., 10th Pa., and 29 others.

FOGLER'S CONFESSION.—Much of our paper is this week taken up with the confession of Robt. Fogler. After this confession was pub- lished in the Washington papers, the Hon. Wm Montgomery caused a counter statement to ap- pear, in which he charged Fogler's confession to be the work of other parties, gotten up for the purpose of injuring himself and family.— The witnesses to the signing of Fogler's con- fession then came forward and published the following card, which is certainly conclusive on the subject, and leaves Montgomery and his sons, together with Fogler's counsel, in just the attitude they were placed in by his con- fession.

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.

Our names having appeared as subscribing witnesses to the published confession of Robt. Fogler, who was executed on Wednesday, the 15th inst., for the murder of Mr. Dinsmore, we deem it due to the public, as well as our- selves, to make a brief statement showing how we came to stand in that relation to the de- ceased.

On the 15th of April, at the request of Fo- gler, we went to his cell, when he produced a lengthy manuscript which he stated was his confession, written by himself, and which he asked the privilege of reading to us. He then read it all over carefully in our hearing, from beginning to end, and at the close, in response to questions propounded to him by one of our number, assured us most positively that it was dictated and written wholly by himself—that he had drawn it up entirely of his own free will and accord, without the slightest influ- ence or dictation, or even so much as a suggestion from any quarter. Having signed it in our presence, we at his instance appended our names to it as witnesses. Specially enjoin- ing it upon us all not to make it public until after his death, he then entrusted it to the keeping of one of our number, (Robert Dou- gan) in whose custody it remained constantly from that time, until the day of execution, when he requested the privilege of taking it with him to the scaffold, and, after re-affirm- ing its truthfulness, he wished to hand it over as his dying statement, in presence of the spectators assembled.

With a view to its publication as soon as possible after the execution took place, a copy was made for the purpose of being placed in the hands of the printer, special pains being taken to make no alteration whatever, save to correct the orthography and attend to the mat- ter of punctuation, in which latter respect the original was wholly deficient. The confes- sion as published, is an exact copy of the or- iginal, the only difference being in the par- ticulars already mentioned. The manuscript as written by Fogler, himself, is still at the store of Robert Dougan, where it is open to the inspection of any one who may want to compare it with the confession as given to the public through the papers.

EDITOR ARGUS:—As there is a report in circulation that I had made an arrangement in case of my nomination and election to the office of Treasurer of Beaver county to get Thomas McCreery to become surety for me on condition that I would employ his son-in-law, Capt. H. M. Donehoo, as my assistant, I de- sire you to publish the following affidavit in refutation of the slander. No such an arrange- ment was ever made or spoken of, and further, the report industriously circulated by my en- emies that I had voted the Democratic ticket is equally without foundation.

E. BARNES.

E. Barnes, in case of his election to the Office of Treasurer of Beaver County, on condition that Capt. H. M. Donehoo should be retained as assistant or clerk in his office, is wholly without foundation. That no such arrange- ment was ever made or spoken of.

NEW MILLINERY GOODS!

Having secured the Agency for the Empire Sewing Machine!

I respectfully solicit an examination of the same by the public.

This Machine is constructed on a new prin- ciple of mechanism, possessing many rare and valuable improvements, having been examin ed by the most profound experts, and pro- nounced to be simplicity and perfection com- bined.

In a mechanical point of view, the advan- tages we claim for the "EMPIRE MACHINE," are—

1st.—The method of driving the Needle Bar by a compound crank, which produces the same action as heretofore obtained by means of a Cam; but in a more durable and noiseless manner.

2d.—We use a rotating shaft above the ta- ble, and thus are enabled to give all the room required under the arm; without detri- ment to the durability of Machines: having a bearing directly over the Needle Bar.

3d.—Our Feed Wheel is a friction feed, and so constructed that there is but one joint in transmitting the motion from the rock shaft to the wheel, and unlike all others, cannot be effected by oil or dust.

4th.—The Rock Shaft that works the Feed motion also drives the Shuttle. The bearings of this Shaft and Centres are hardened steel and adjustable, so that we can take up the lost motion at will.

The following are the principal objections urged against Sewing Machines:

1. Excessive fatigue to the operator.
2. Liability to get out of order.
3. Expense, trouble, and loss of time in repairing.
4. Incapacity to sew every description of material.
5. Disagreeable noise while in operation.

The Empire Sewing Machine is Exempt from all these Objections.

It has a straight needle, perpendicular ac- tion, makes the LOCK OR SHUTTLE STITCH, which will NEITHER RIP NOR RAVEL, and is alike on both sides; performs perfect sewing on every description of material, from Leather to the finest Nansook Muslin, with cotton, linen, or silk thread, from the coarsest to the finest number.

IT HEMS, FELLS, BINDS, BRAIDS, TUCKS, QUILTS, PLAITS, and GATHERS.

Having neither CAM NOR COG WHEEL, and the least possible friction, it runs as smooth as glass, and is Practically a Noiseless Machine.
