

The Beaver Argus.

BEAVER, PENNA., APR. 17, 1899.

FOR APRIL 17, 1899.

JOHN W. GEARY.

THE proposition of Senator Kellogg to divide out the offices fairly among the seven States in harmony with the expressed purpose of Secretary Fish, but when President Grant was approached on the same subject he denounced the idea, and declared that so far as he was concerned he would take every office of his Administration from Marblehead, in Massachusetts, if necessary to do so, and he would not be divided. He had no patience, he said, with the notion of dividing out offices to the States, as if there were so much plunder to be distributed. The public service alone should be consulted, and not localities.

GENERAL GRANT'S nominations thus far give general satisfaction to interested parties; but there are many disappointed "sore heads," whose grows are deep, and curses prolonged. It is estimated that three thousand persons left Washington on Saturday last, disappointed in not being appointed to office. The cry everywhere is that the gullotine is at work, and the anxiety of office-holders is most intense. It is expected that the good work will now be kept up until the adjournment, and that, if necessary, the Senate will form many portions of the country for an increase of the circulation of National banks. In view of the urgent calls for an increase of the circulation of National banks, the Controller estimates that the additional amount of bonds required for securing another $50,000,000 of currency, might be issued and the total amount of interest paid would still be $2,190,152 less than is paid upon the six per cent. now issued, by way of interest on the amount of the circulation, the Controller estimates that the increased issue of bonds could be sold for legal tender notes to the extent of over $50,000,000, to be cancelled.

YORK COUNTY, in this State, is one of the best agricultural districts to be had in the country. Its soil produces almost everything that is sown or planted in great luxuriance. Its farmers are enterprising, thrifty, well-to-do, and its mechanics and manufacturers are fully as intelligent and energetic as can be met with in any other locality. But York county is a Democratic county, and it is a Democracy from time to time "whereof the memory of man runneth not to the contrary." Its indulgence in Democratic malice or good results, for official figures show York county's indebtedness to be nearly as great as that of any other county in the State. It has sunk so low that neither man nor corporation in that vicinity feel disposed to loan or give any money to it at either a high or low rate of interest. Under these circumstances the County Commissioners, last week, made a trip to Baltimore to borrow forty-five thousand dollars for the county and were refused the amount, even after offering the enormous rate of one per cent. a month for its use! We should think the tax-payers of York county would stand a chance of rulers, just now, with but little murmuring.

A COMMITTEE of seven men, a committee of highly respectable and influential members of the Society of Friends of Philadelphia, visited Washington with a view of inducing General Grant to give the management of our Indian Affairs over to members of that Society. The President, it is alleged, looks favorably upon their request, and in all probability an agreement will soon be concluded by which the "Indian Ring" will be broken, and our relations with the aborigines be characterized with more of the spirit of justice and Christianity of the future, than they have been at any time in our past history. Let us hope that least. Try all means to get the Indian Bureau into the hands of the Friends. If they fail to pacify the "red hunters," no one else can hope to succeed in so doing.

ONE-HALF the Indian war spring from the violation of treaties and bad faith on the part of the whites—usually the necessary consequence of our corrupt and inept Indian Bureau system. The expense of that system are enormous, and the agents are very far from being economical, especially if a friend, relative, or favorite has a contract for supplying commissaries. They have been known to pay three times the amount of what other contractors would charge to throw ten or twenty thousand dollars of the public money into the hands of the "swindling Ring." So if has worked in every department of the Indian Bureau. They have defrauded both the Treasury and the Indian. The sooner that Department is administered by honest agents the better for all concerned.

HENRY MORRY is a lucky individual. He is thirty-five years of age, a tall, well-built man, and a member of the United States Army. He has a rich old cousin named Sullivan, who also resides there. This cousin died some time ago, and left a large estate to Henry, and works on the river near Pittsburgh and St. Louis. He is a member of the United States Army, and is a member of the United States Army. He has a rich old cousin named Sullivan, who also resides there. This cousin died some time ago, and left a large estate to Henry, and works on the river near Pittsburgh and St. Louis. He is a member of the United States Army, and is a member of the United States Army.

For First Congress.

MONDAY, March 20, 1899.

THE VICE PRESIDENT presented the joint resolutions of the Senate and House of Representatives, relative to the admission of the Territory of Oklahoma into the Union, and the amendment to the Constitution of the United States, relating to the same. The resolutions were passed by the Senate on the 19th of March, and by the House on the 17th of March.

THE bill extending the time for the construction of a railroad from the City of New York to the City of Washington, and the bill extending the time for the construction of a railroad from the City of New York to the City of Philadelphia, were passed by the Senate on the 19th of March, and by the House on the 17th of March.

THE bill extending the time for the construction of a railroad from the City of New York to the City of Washington, and the bill extending the time for the construction of a railroad from the City of New York to the City of Philadelphia, were passed by the Senate on the 19th of March, and by the House on the 17th of March.

THE bill extending the time for the construction of a railroad from the City of New York to the City of Washington, and the bill extending the time for the construction of a railroad from the City of New York to the City of Philadelphia, were passed by the Senate on the 19th of March, and by the House on the 17th of March.

THE bill extending the time for the construction of a railroad from the City of New York to the City of Washington, and the bill extending the time for the construction of a railroad from the City of New York to the City of Philadelphia, were passed by the Senate on the 19th of March, and by the House on the 17th of March.

THE bill extending the time for the construction of a railroad from the City of New York to the City of Washington, and the bill extending the time for the construction of a railroad from the City of New York to the City of Philadelphia, were passed by the Senate on the 19th of March, and by the House on the 17th of March.

THE bill extending the time for the construction of a railroad from the City of New York to the City of Washington, and the bill extending the time for the construction of a railroad from the City of New York to the City of Philadelphia, were passed by the Senate on the 19th of March, and by the House on the 17th of March.

General Grant's Nominations.

MONDAY, March 20, 1899.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

General Grant's Nominations.

MONDAY, March 20, 1899.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

General Grant's Nominations.

MONDAY, March 20, 1899.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

General Grant's Nominations.

MONDAY, March 20, 1899.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

General Grant's Nominations.

MONDAY, March 20, 1899.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

General Grant's Nominations.

MONDAY, March 20, 1899.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.

THE President's nominations for the various offices of his Administration have been received with general satisfaction. The appointments are considered to be well-calculated to promote the efficiency and economy of the Government.