The boys listened in allent awe to the eloquent appeal of the great statesman; but it was all Cherokoeto Billy, who—the ungreate-ful scamp—aroso majestically on his hinder legs, and made a despetato plung at his friend and advocate. Mr, Cay, although he had not "slain a Mexican, proved too much for his horned assaliant. He selzed both horns of the dilemma, and then came "the tug of war"—or Greek had met Greek. The struggle was long and doubtful. "Hah!" exclaimed the statesman, "I have got you fast, you rascall with two for works.

The membership, taken all in all, presents a most remarkable aggrega-tion of persons and a singular coal-cescence of characters. The personage whose presence in such a community will probably excite most surprise in the fashionable world is an English gentlewoman. Lady Oliphant by name, the widow of Sir Anthony Ol-iphant, C. B., formerly Chief Justice of Ceylon. But the most romantic case, not only in this particular mov-ment, but so far as we know in any similar movement, is that furnished by Mr, Laurence Oliphant the son of Lady Oliphant, well known as nu-thor of several books of travel, and as the companion of Lord Elgin on Dehate in the Home of Commons —Speech of John Bright. On April 21, the bill for legalizing, not merely paspectively, but retro-spectively, marriago with a deceased wife's sister, occupied the House of Commons. The discussion naturally traveled over familiar ground. On the other hand, it was contended that these marriages, while free from scriptural prohibition, were recom-mended by convenience and expedi-ency, that the hwa gainst them was frequently violated, and that in other countries no objection was made to them. The opposite view was, that custom and sentiment were opposed to such unions; that to legalize them now would shock and disturb the sct-tled notions in regard to marriage; that an element of distrust would be introduced into the domestic rela-tions between a man and his wife's sister and the rest; and that the loose-ness of the marriago law in other countries was rather a warning than an inducement to England to follow in the same course. Mr. Bright said: I have never opened my lips upon have referred, it is a question of sen-timent rather than of argument. I have never heard yet—and I feel sat-isfied I shall never hear—an argu-ment such as an honest and learned judge against the proposition. I will not follow the ecclesiastical speeches. I think the leas we have of ecclesias-tited discussion in this House the bet-ter. I recollect a distinguished rela-tive of my honorable and learned friend, the Solicitor General, in one. of his poems, speaks of "warriors not sand priests," asills that vex and lords as devastators and rulers of mankind, I am not sure that the mischiefs which they have inflicted upon our race have been greater than those we have suffered from the dom-ination and tyranny of priests. Gen-enally it is admitted that there is no authority in the Old Testament to support or justify the present state of the law, but, if there be no dlivine first opinion was that the whole was sing interest to those who are con-cerned in it, and you propose to in-terfere with their national liberty in regard to it—I ask whether you ought not to have a clear and over whelming case for-such interferency. The case has never been fairly stated. The asset me ver been fairly stated. The asset me ver been fairly stated. The asset me ver been fairly stated.

In the same course. Mr. Bright said: I have never opened my lips upon this question in the House, and for this reason, that, like the bill for the admission of Jews to Parliament, I have never heard an argument against it that required to be answer-ed. Like the measure to which I have referred, it is a question of sen-timent rather than of argument. I and third mates. The men have received excellent characters from their own captain, as characters from their own captain, as well as from the captain or officer of the bark New Orleans. They are all young, and while admitting that "two of their crowd" killed their mates, refuse to divulge the names of the murderers. They complain of the harsh treatment they received on board their vessel and while in jail, and seem cager to have their case disposed of.—N. Y. Tribune, May 6th.

ought not to have a clear and over-whelming case for-such interference? The case has never been fairly stattd. The arguments relied upon in support of the law as it now stands are purely visionary and prophetic; but not only is the principle of the law denied by multitudes in this country, but it is also disregarded by that nation which most nearly resembles ourselves—the charge the state of the stage.
