The other day, Mrs. Arabella Mansfield, a young lady of 24, was admitted to practice in the courts of lows. We are heartily glad of it, for we dare say there are many functions of an attorney for which Mrs. Mansfield isadmirably qualified. There is no reason in the world why the great bulk of what is known as men who aspire to be lawyers, com-paratively few, even supposing they had husbands, would be satisfied with such a division of labor. We fear there is a lurking ambition among the feminine students of Chitty and Blackstone to be barris-ters rather than attorneys, and we confess that the substitution of the housebreaker or the distiguished pickpocket, discussing in public the foul details of crime, and going home to the domestic fireside cross, weary, and hardened with the temper-trying labors of the day. We do not believe any woman could practice a year at the bar without losing almost every quality that makes woman charming. But besides this there is a still more serious danger, which we find so pointedly illustrated by a recent occurrence in the British House of Lords, that we copy an account of the affair from a London newspaper: "The Shedden legitimacy case was resumed this morning for the iff-teenth time before the House of Lords. The Lord Chancellor com-
