PUGNACIOUS JOURNALISM. Mark Twain, who is making a ver

Mark Twain, who is making a very good show as a journalist, relates the following as among his experiences; prefacing his narrative with a quotation from a western paper, which may be regarded as his text.

The editor of the Memphis Ared Market swoops thus mildly down upon a correspondent who posted him as a radical: "While he was writing the first word, the middle word dotting his jeriod, he knew he was concerting a sentence that was saturated with infamy and recking with falsehood."—Exchange.

I was told by the physician that a Southern climate would improve my health, and-so I went down to Tennand got a berth on the Morning Giory and Johnson County War Whoop, as associate editor. When I went on duty I found the chief editor sitting tilted back in a three legged chairwith his feet on a pine table. There was a mother plue table in the room, and another afflicted chair, and both were half buried under newspapers and scraps and sheets of manuscript. There was a wocden box of sand, sprinkled with cigar stubs and "old soldiers," and a stoye with a door hanging by its upper hinge. The chief editor had a long talled black cloth frock coat on; and white linen pants. His boots were small and neatly blacked. He wore a ruffied shirt, a large seal ring, a standing collar of obsolete pattern, and a checkered neckerchef with the ends hanging down. Date of costume, about 1848. He was smoking a cieru.

He was smoking a cigar and trying to think of a word, and in pawing his head for it, he had rumpled his locks a good deal. He was scowling fearfully/and I judged that he was concocting a particularly knotty editorial. He told me to take the exchanges and "skim through to settle with you. Chicago Tribune has the annexed account:

In the early part of June last, Mr. Smith, with his wife, drove in a buggy to a minister's meeting at Elgin. During the evening they set out together in a like manner to go to the house of his brother-in-law, Mr. Benton, about two miles out of Elgin. At half past nine that evening, Mr. Smith arrived at Benton's house alone, much excited, asking if his wife hadarrived, and saying that they had been overturned in a stream and thrown out, as he had not been able to find his wife afterward, he thought she might have come on, and reached the house before. He followed up with several inconsistencies, as that he drove his horse into the stream to drink, though there was water at the

WHEN Napoleon the Third drove out for the first time after his recent illness, he failted after fifteen minutes riding. A strong dose of cognac administered to him by Dr. Corvisart, who was with him in the same carriage are stored him to a little vivacity, but during most of the ride he was unable to open his eyes. The Empress, who was at first in the carriage iollowing that of the Emperor, turned and picture.

The Rev. Dr. Piney, who has by islted Africa, in a recent lecture, expressed it as his belief that Africa would some time or other be the most thickly populated country in insisted upon entering his carriage.

There appears to be many different ways of understanding the true meaning of newspaper patronage, as it is called, and as an interested party age give place to a disquisition of the subject. It will serve, porhaps, 1834, mirror in which certain parties may see themselyes as others see them. Many long and weary years of experience in the publishing business has forced the conviction upon pathat piewspaper patronage is a word of many definitions, and that a great majority of manking are either agnerant of the correct definition, or are distincted in a strict biblical sense of the word. Newspaper patronage is TOS. HOTELE & CO'S be owes you. He files into a passion, perhaps pays, perhaps not, and orders his paper stopped. This is called patronage.

Another man has your paper for a long time, and becomes thred of you and wants a change. Thinks he will have another paper. But he don't pay; oh no! he has to keep your money to buy unother paper. Pay comes when you sue him. Such may be called newspaper patronage.

One man brings in a fifty cent advertisement and wants a two dollar puff thrown in, and when you decline hegoes off mad. Even this may be called newspaper patronage.

Another man don't take your paper—it is too high priced—but he borrows regularly and reads it. And that may be called newspaper patronage.
