

LOVEY-DOVEY.
BY CECILIA WHEATLEY.
Last summer I happened to be in the company of one of the finest young men I have ever known. He was a young man of about thirty years of age, with a face that was as fresh and bright as a flower, and a smile that was as sweet and winning as the melody of a bird's song. He was a young man of the highest caliber, and I was deeply attracted to him from the first moment that I saw him. THE QUEEN'S WEDDING.
For two or three years the young men of Full River, the rural youth throughout the whole of the county, had been in a state of excitement over the charms of Hattie White. Hattie was not a blonde or yet a brunette, but she was a young woman of a most unusual and striking appearance. Her eyes were a deep, dark blue, and her hair was a rich, dark brown. She was a young woman of a most unusual and striking appearance.
