The California Hough, as Described by Mark Twain.

A curious feature about California life was the breed of despendees she reared and featered on her soil, and afterward distributed over adjacent territories through her vigilance committees; when she had enough of their exploits. These men went armed to the teeth with monstrous revolvers, and preyed upon each othdaily more than 18 the had been in the desert of Sahara.

Bo Frank Payne, the whitom belie of the gay world of fashlon, went to be old Mirs. Scoldall's companion, at fifty deliars per annum and her board.
For three dreary weeks she endured the acrimonious old lady's tongue and temper, and ate the bitter bread of dependence, and then came a crisist. "A headache!" screamed Mirs Scoldall; "Miss Payne has got a headache? How dare my companion presume to absent herself from my table on that plea? I don't pay money for lazy hussles to lie in bed and complain of headaches!
