 against me upon your table, I respectful-ly present the following statement:
 I admit that there existed between Miss fillie Hawkes and mixel an un-derstanding involving a purpose and promise of marriage.
 That effor much deliberation and montal agony, I asked her to release me irom all obligation in the matter, feeling it my duty to decline the consummation of the marriage.
 I present in justification of my re-fusat to proceed further in the matter a fear with regard to the complete mental restoration which became so fixed upon my mind that I could not remove it.
 I struggled against the power of this impression until others, whose judgment I regarded as reliable, and more than my own, unconscious of the rolation ex-isting between Miss Hawkes and myself gave expression to the same opinion in great risk in entering the matriage rela-tion with her, and that in a matter so solem and important I would be doing a wrong and committing a grievous sin to proceed further.
 It is with the deopest regret, and without any spirit of malles or, resent-ment, I fool constrained to make this allusion to Miss Hawkes in by own vindeation. I am not conscious of over having aid anything derogatory to her moral or christian entaretor.
