one haved multine once wainfut stair-case, the bronze Silence looking down sweetly on the card tray at her feet, unconsciously impressed me at the very entrauce, even while I was thinking how much dearer my own little home with Dave would be.—Aunt Jule was almostan invalid, and so pale and gentle! She took me into the room where my cousins werelor and Bell—whom I had not seen for years. Dorn was fluttering before a mirror, trying on a little Swiss apron, and Bell was at the window arranging hyacinthe glasses. They kissed me affectionately, and were very kind, and very glad to hear of my ongagement.

Dorn was just engaged, too, she informed me; it was not out yet, but would be shortly, as soon as she had her ring. And upon that I said, 'Oh! I was to see about a ring, too, and Dave told me to choose whatever liked.'

'How charming!' exclaimed Dorn. I am to choose mine, too, and we will go to Crosby's to morew morning the first thing. Of course, you will have a diamond,'

'I think not,' I said, difficently.

'Oh, you 'must have a diamond.'

'I think not,' I said, difficently.

'Oh, you 'must have a diamond.'

'Oh, wouldn't have a diamond.'

'Oh, wouldn't have a diamond,' increased Bell. 'Diamonds are so the produced, and read-increased Bell. 'Diamonds are so the produced, and read-increased Bell. The whole of the food is dissolved in the body, and the greater portion is absorbed into the blood to renew the tissues, the nourishment of the body being dependent upon this quality of the blood.

A rich blood fayors, nutrition and growth, whilst a diseased quality of blood depresses and destroys that which is already formed.

Whilst the blood this gives out to each organ or part of the body, the means of repairing itself by furnishing it with material of growth, it at the same time, washes away as it were, whatever elements of their tissues that have become diseased, worn out or uscless.
