I thought I had killed him, as the mark of my bullet was to be seen on the left side of his head; it had torn off the lower part of his car, but when I returned the next morning there were no traces of the villain.

Did you ever hear of him since? asked one of the party.

No, gentlemen, I never saw him since till to night.

As Larkey said this the intruder, whom we had not noticed till now, jumped up, and making a bound toward him, shricked:

You ite?

We caught him, and after overpowering him, found the identical scars that Larkey had mentioned the saber sear, the lost thumb, and the saber sear, the lost thumb, and the colleped ear.

If he buys two cents worth of peanuts, his father says, "Remember what Franklin said, my son: 'a great a day is a penny a year," and the comfort is all gone out of those peanuts. If he wants to spin his top when he is done work his father quotes: "Procrastination is the thief of time." If he does a virtuous action he never gets anything for it, for "Virtue is its own reward." And that boy is hounded to death, and deprived of his natural rest, because Franklin once said in one of his inspired flights of malignity:

"Early to bed and early to rise, Makes a man hearthy, wealthy and wise."

And Jack picked up his basket, and started on, followed by Sarah and Betty in Indian file. Five or six miles to the best buck leberry field would seem a long way to you, but the children's brown, bare feet never tired.

Before long, they passed a little lake, stopped there a moment to drink, and soon reached the opening where the berries grew thickest. What with finding better and better places, and stopping, sometimes, to watch the scolding squirrels, and then to eat dinner, they went swiftly by, and it was almost sunset when they turned toward home, with heavy pails and baskets. Betty lagged behind for she ached with long stooping, and Jack and Sarah grew more impatient.
