THE Conference Committee on the Currency bill has resolved to increase the amount of the new issue from forty-five to fifty-four millions, and the House will have to content itself with what its inflationists will doubtless grumble at as no expansion at all. Let us hope that it is all they are to get. The currency is ample enough for all legitimate business. Its expansion is an encouragement only to meculative enterprises.

THE convention of "True Republicaus" which assembled in Pittsburgh on last Wednesday, was tolerably well attended and seems to have been composed of intelligent, substantial and well meaning Republicans. It was presided over by R. B. Republican, and a stanneh advocate of honesty in politics. The resolutions adopted on the occasion are very guarded and constitute a healthy, practical party platform .-The convention selected the following standard bearers for the fall campaign:

Congress, 22d district—Major Wm. Frew, Pittsburgh; Congress, 23d district-Felix R. Brunot, Allegheny. State Senator-Alexander Gordon Wilkins. Assembly-Alex. Nimick.

DUBING the debate on-the Naval appropriation bill, in the Senate last week, a very interesting discussion occurred relative to the present condition of themany. The general opinion seemed to be that it is in a worse condition than it was prior to the late war of the rebellion; and, in case of sudden war, it would be found entirely inadequate to the emergency. It was said that the millions appropriated since the close of the war, were worse than thrown away, and that there were twice too many officers.

Hollman and Prhyn learning with carness and conscientious conviction to these great truths, we can support as candidates for oilice only those who in good faith substantially entertain and endorse their jet of the pending canvass, irrespective of former political designations, we pledge our cordial and hearity support; that in John T. It was said that the millions appropriated since the close of the war, were worse than thrown away, and that there were twice too many officers. Hollman and Praya being Denored the number of seamen was voted down; as also a large uppropriation for an increase of yessels of war. The above state of facts take the public by surprise, when it is remembered that at the close of the late war, our navy was considered second only to one of the Great Powers, in the number of its iron-clads, guns, transports and general appointments. "What has become of all these?" is a question the late of the late war, in the number of all these?" is a question that the better of all these?" is a question that the better of all these?" is a question that the better of all these?" is a question that the better of all the decided as a long to for consistency's sake, it should to dow denounce it for paying the belst, should the down that find subject to the National Charles and the vector of speaks for itself. However, assuming the truth of the condition of the navy to be as stated, we doubt the propriety of the immediate expenditure of large sums for its recuperation. Too much of such appropriations are exhausted by political stock-jobbers (in time of neace) and too little for the real object to render it an economical policy. Besides we are now in a much botter condition to construct a navy, on the spur of the moment, than we were at the outbreak of the civil war, having the tools, machinery, experienced workmen, and the material ready for immediate use on the happening of get witness to testify in his behalf. an emergency.
