The result on the Congressions question surprised almost everybody, preceding the primary meetings that marked changes were observed to be taking place in Mr. Donley's favor. Mr. D., is no favorite of ours, yet we are too good a Republican to do anything else than to give him our support for Congress. It is to be hoped, too, that those who labored so hard and in some instances so unscrupul ously, to nominate Mr. Donley, will not be backward now in taking hold interest and the one-sixteenth of the and helping to do the work necessary to elect him.
