"INTER-STATE FAIR.—The importance of this Iudustrial and Agricultural Fair is just beginning to be fully understood. It has already reached a mammoth growth, and promises to excel any former enterprise of the kind ever located in Western Pennsylvänia. It is not the ordinary County Fair, nor even a State Fair, but reaching far beyond both in the scope of its influence, it has become, as its name well imports, a Fair between States, not only inviting but receiving exhibitors from the far East and West. Entries are being made from New York ity, Philadelphia, Wheeling, Columbus, Salem. St. Louis, Chicago, and from various localities in many sections of this State.

As a preliminary to the location of this Fair, the citizens of Pfitsburgh, principally merchants, manufacturers and business men, contributed about $3,000. their saver where the second state of this fund, will be expended in the preparation of the greater portion, if not all of this fund, will be expended in the preparation of the grounds: A floral department, a cruelform structure, is now nearly completed, being 139 feet by 30 feet in 100 completed, being 139 feet by 30 feet in 100 completed, being 139 feet by 30 feet in 100 completed, being 139 feet by 30 feet in 100 completed, being 139 feet by 30 feet in 100 completed, being 139 feet by 30 feet in 100 completed, being 139 feet by 30 feet in 100 completed, being 139 feet by 30 feet in 100 completed, being 139 feet by 30 feet in 100 completed, being 139 feet by 30 feet in 100 completed, being 139 feet by 30 feet in 100 completed, being 139 feet by 30 feet in 100 completed, being 130 feet by 30 feet in 10 The greater portion, if not all of the Ru tan, makes a vain attempt at evasion in his self-vindicatory article in this week's ARGUS; but evasion is not now the oristled with the very irrelevantaryuments which Mr. R. thinks "honest men will regard as conclusive answers to Decarme's story."

I will not allow Mr. R. to dodge the point at issue by any sort of equivoca-tion or evasion, and I will now tell him point at issue by any sort of equive that no hard nautes which he may be pleased to apply to me, nor the charge failed to get a place at Harrisburg, will a couple of years past to have this duty have any weight with the good Repubicans of this county in making up their ers, and got Mr. Rutan to agree to have verdict in relation to his guilt in connectability and the Logislature last wintion with the defeat of Arthur Shields.

Mr. Rutan's article is indeed, in itself, cinc sum for doing the work. Is not that legal learning

Again he says that if he had intended making any arrangement with Graebing he never would have taken a babbling Frenchman along with him. Here is ther very remarkable example of legai lore and sequaintance with the law of testimony. No one has charged Mr. R. with making any arrangem

EDITOR :-- Your candid and intrepld exposition in the last number of the Augus of the wily machinations of certain unscrapulous and devouring politicians entitles you to the thanks, esteem, and confilence, of all high-minded, honorable men. It is needless for me to apprise you of the fact that there was a time in the history of both State and Federal govern; ments when the office sought the man not the man the office. It is also a fact which even the most listless or casua observer will not attempt to gunsay, that men in these latter days, have become so stoeped in political vonality that their capacious maw for palf must be satisfied even it it should require a complete immolation of every principle of decency, dignity, and honor—not to say a wanton and contemptuous disregard of the law expose and vigorously repel every unn regulating our action as a political organization. Have we become so tame and submissive as a party that our very thoughts must be crushed in their inception through fear of a few half-fledged aggrandizing politicans? Is our out spo ken condemnation of outrageous political conduct to be husbed and silenced forever by the same criminal timidity? No sir. we should ever be on the alert to fearlessly vation, by whomsever made, upon the law which maintains the purity and vitalizes and preserves the unity of our party. We should keep in view the fact couched in the expressive language of statesman preeminently distinguished for his native vigorous common-sense, "the cunning of the fox is as murderous as the violence of the wolf," and arraign before the bar of public opinion all who are suspected of Punica fides or have,in any way resorted to frau lulent practices to accomplish the end desired-a nomination. This is an antidote, which I apprehend, will eventually prove salutary and of a high remedial nature. You will, therefore, permit me to congratulate you upon being a political doctor of suffici to apply the blister; and if our candidate for Legislature, William C. Shurlock, who is himself a votary at the shine of Æscu lapius finds his skin by this time some what exceristed his own professions knowledge should immediately suggest the balsam which would must effectuall cicatrize the wound if not of an incurable out his private bottle and gave us our nature.
