from the Philadelphia Evening Telegraph of the 29th of July.

The Telegraph published a few days since an interview between Col. A. K. M'Clure, the well-known Pennsylvania politician and a reporter of the New York Herald. That report, it afterwards appeared, was incorrect and obscure in some important respects. A Telegraph reporter was therefore detailed to visit Col. M'Clure and obtain from him a correct version of his views upon the present position and the probable future of men and parties. The result of this interview is herewith given :--A TOO ENTERPRISING CORRESPOND
