

The Beaver Argus.

J. W. ANDERSON, Editor and Proprietor.

Beaver, Pa., Nov. 15th, 1871.

This election on Tuesday of last week, resulted substantially as follows:

The Republicans carried the State of New York by about 15,000 majority. In the City of New York the Reform, or Anti-Tammany ticket was elected by about 25,000 majority. The Republicans have both House and Senate by a majority of 15,000.

Massachusetts elected the whole Republican ticket by about 15,000 majority. Both branches of the Assembly are overwhelmingly Republican.

New Jersey seems to have gone Democratic by about 4,000, against the 15,000 Republican majority of last year. In the Legislature, however, we have twelve Senators to the Democratic, and thirty-six Assemblymen to their thirty-four—making a trifling Republican gain.

We have had a Republican Legislature, and a Democratic Governor for some time in New Jersey.

In Minnesota the Republicans have as usual swept the State by a handsome majority, though Austin, the present Governor, runs behind his ticket, on account of personal weakness which attached great disfavor to his name in the canvass.

As in Kansas the Republican has gained an increased majority. Illinois has done nobly; both Republican Congressmen are elected, and the Union, or "Fire-Proof" ticket in Chicago is successful by about 3,000 majority.

Maryland elected a Democratic Governor and a Democratic State ticket, but by a greatly reduced majority. The Legislature is also Democratic, but the Republicans have elected fifteen members this year, to one last year.

On the whole, therefore, the Republican success has exceeded our most sanguine expectations, and the road to victory next year seems almost entirely unobstructed.

In the matter of filling the vacancy caused by the death of Dr. David Stanton, Auditor General, etc., there seems to be some embarrassment.

The act provides that the Governor shall fill a vacancy caused by death, resignation, or otherwise. But says the Philadelphia Ledger:

It is a very curious circumstance, in the case of the Auditor General, that the Governor has been unable to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Dr. Stanton. The act provides that the Governor shall fill a vacancy caused by death, resignation, or otherwise. But says the Philadelphia Ledger:

Even if inclined to do so, our respect for the memory of the late Dr. Stanton, and the esteem in which we hold his many relatives and friends in and about New Brighton, would prevent us from engaging in a discussion just now with the editor of the Press as to what caused that gentleman's death. To us it would be an impropriety which we do not wish to be guilty of. Besides, we have been informed that the moral, intelligent and thoughtful people of New Brighton, generally, denounce the Press article of last week as indecorous and look upon it as an exhibition of obsequiousness wholly inexcusable under the circumstances.

HERE AND THERE. The remarkable self-command of Bismarck was well illustrated during the late interview with General Thiers. The latter began the conversation in French, and in the course of his remarks grew so bitter and personal that Bismarck would have been justified in breaking off the interview. He however mildly interposed, "Let us speak in German, General Thiers."

Most of the Cabinet officers and Heads of bureaus under the new administration are engaged in preparing their reports for Congress. Some have them already concluded and are in the printers' hands, and from these reports it would be judged that they will be satisfactory.

Contrary to the anticipation of furnishing Congress with a schedule of the public debt, the Treasury Bureau finds it impossible to do so, and now nearly the whole force of the Treasury Department is engaged in preparing a bill for the tariff and revenue laws which will be fully discussed and a bill prepared for the meeting of the next session.

MISS ANNA E. DICKINSON'S trade against trades unions, delivered here Friday evening under the name of "The Trades Union," and "Workingmen" appears to have produced in this city an effect exactly the reverse of the one intended; the reverse of the one intended by the newspapers which has not criticized her in terms strangely in contrast with the public opinion which has always been accustomed to speak of her performance. Some of her articles have evoked a degree of indignation and indignation with the subjects which certainly did not appear in Miss Anna's heart, but which she has in fact been convicted of blunders in respect to matters of fact.

THE FUNNY MEN seem disposed to make the most of each other. Artemus Ward, the late comedian, and Mark Twain is to lecture upon Artemus Ward. Next lecture-season Mark Twain may be dead (though we heartily hope not), and then somebody, we suppose, will lecture upon him, unless the Funny Style should have passed into antiquity. The Burlington Herald has a very good article on Artemus Ward, and is not justly justified that we may have a little too much of what has been called (we do not know why) American Humour, a great deal of it consisting of a kind of bad spelling and syntax. The same is the case with the school of literature here, some of them at least plenty of ability for something better.

WHILE SOME men at the Torpedo Station were at work inside of Fort Wolcott, last Friday, the wheel of their cart sank deep into the ground. Removing one of the earth to find the cause for this, one of the men struck against what appeared to be an iron plate. This excited the curiosity of all, and they set to work with all to dig away the earth about the plate. Soon their efforts were rewarded by the sight of an iron door fastened with a rusty bolt. President, however, yield, and order his subordinates in Philadelphia to assist in the unmanly work of defeating McClure for the State Senate, himself, and not the Pennsylvania suffer most, in public estimation, by the transaction.

THE AUDITOR GENERAL QUESTION. The question as to how the place of Dr. Stanton in the Auditor General's office is to be filled is a very important one, and we therefore discuss it in this column, and give the facts and arguments that the discussion of it has produced.

THE RESULT of the recent State elections is exceedingly satisfactory to the different parts of the country save in the State of Virginia, where, had the Republicans been properly organized, it is well understood, the Democratic or so-called Conservative would have met with a most signal defeat.

White Governor Walker ostensibly a Union man and for Grant, when elected, it was early discovered that he had, by pampering for Republican votes, been in the pocket of the President. "Stole the liver of the court of Heaven to serve the Devil in" has all along been active in promoting harmony among his Democratic friends, and breeding discord among the leaders of the Republican party, and other persons, by pampering for Republican votes.

What constitutes a "vacancy" in said office? The answer to the first question would seem to be plain: "First—He must be elected by the Governor. Second—He must be commissioned by the Governor. Third—He must be sworn, or 'qualified' by the Governor. Fourth—He must give bonds for the faithful performance of the duties of his office."

No one, or two, or three of these things would constitute a man Auditor General, and he cannot be "in office" until all of them. Could, therefore, the death of any man who had not been sworn, or qualified, or commissioned, create a vacancy? "In said office?" Colonel Stanton, he remembered, at the time of his death, he had not been sworn, or qualified, or commissioned by the Governor, and he had not given bonds. He was not, therefore, at the time of his death, Auditor.

The second question, as to what constitutes a "vacancy" in said office, is a little more complicated, but not difficult of solution. At first sight it would seem clear that the death of a man elected to an office creates a vacancy in that office, but it does not follow, and this is reflected in the fact, that a man must be in office before his death can create a vacancy in that office. The Governor's power of appointment depends solely upon the existence of a vacancy in said office; and if it can be shown that the death of Colonel Stanton does not create such a vacancy, it follows that the Governor has no power to appoint to the office.

Fortunately we have a judicial decision which seems to cover the whole question. It is a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, in the case of the Auditor General, which provides for the filling of a vacancy in said office, and if it can be shown that the death of Colonel Stanton does not create such a vacancy, it follows that the Governor has no power to appoint to the office.

THE KLU-KLUX. Affairs in York County, N. C.—The late trial of the participants in the outrages held for their guilt. The number of Ku-Klux prisoners now in the State Prison is 102, who were all arrested in this county. Some of those who were arrested in this county have been released, and some have been retained as important witnesses in the case.

THE CINCINNATI LETTER—Another Phase of the Story. In Wednesday's issue we gave a letter from an anonymous writer in Cincinnati, containing the description and particulars of an interview, in a den of infamy, by a philanthropic individual signing himself "R."

YESTERDAY morning another phase of the story was developed, a gentleman from Cincinnati furnishing the following facts from the description given of the girl by the letter-writer. It is conclusively proved that the election alone does not constitute him an officer in a constitutional sense. For there may be cases where the Governor would be bound by an imperious sense of duty to withhold the commission from a person duly elected by the qualified electors; as, for example, in cases of insanity developed since the election, or the conviction of some high crime or misdemeanor.

THE AUDITOR GENERAL QUESTION. The question as to how the place of Dr. Stanton in the Auditor General's office is to be filled is a very important one, and we therefore discuss it in this column, and give the facts and arguments that the discussion of it has produced.

THE RESULT of the recent State elections is exceedingly satisfactory to the different parts of the country save in the State of Virginia, where, had the Republicans been properly organized, it is well understood, the Democratic or so-called Conservative would have met with a most signal defeat.

White Governor Walker ostensibly a Union man and for Grant, when elected, it was early discovered that he had, by pampering for Republican votes, been in the pocket of the President. "Stole the liver of the court of Heaven to serve the Devil in" has all along been active in promoting harmony among his Democratic friends, and breeding discord among the leaders of the Republican party, and other persons, by pampering for Republican votes.

What constitutes a "vacancy" in said office? The answer to the first question would seem to be plain: "First—He must be elected by the Governor. Second—He must be commissioned by the Governor. Third—He must be sworn, or 'qualified' by the Governor. Fourth—He must give bonds for the faithful performance of the duties of his office."

No one, or two, or three of these things would constitute a man Auditor General, and he cannot be "in office" until all of them. Could, therefore, the death of any man who had not been sworn, or qualified, or commissioned, create a vacancy? "In said office?" Colonel Stanton, he remembered, at the time of his death, he had not been sworn, or qualified, or commissioned by the Governor, and he had not given bonds. He was not, therefore, at the time of his death, Auditor.

The second question, as to what constitutes a "vacancy" in said office, is a little more complicated, but not difficult of solution. At first sight it would seem clear that the death of a man elected to an office creates a vacancy in that office, but it does not follow, and this is reflected in the fact, that a man must be in office before his death can create a vacancy in that office. The Governor's power of appointment depends solely upon the existence of a vacancy in said office; and if it can be shown that the death of Colonel Stanton does not create such a vacancy, it follows that the Governor has no power to appoint to the office.

THE KLU-KLUX. Affairs in York County, N. C.—The late trial of the participants in the outrages held for their guilt. The number of Ku-Klux prisoners now in the State Prison is 102, who were all arrested in this county. Some of those who were arrested in this county have been released, and some have been retained as important witnesses in the case.

THE CINCINNATI LETTER—Another Phase of the Story. In Wednesday's issue we gave a letter from an anonymous writer in Cincinnati, containing the description and particulars of an interview, in a den of infamy, by a philanthropic individual signing himself "R."

YESTERDAY morning another phase of the story was developed, a gentleman from Cincinnati furnishing the following facts from the description given of the girl by the letter-writer. It is conclusively proved that the election alone does not constitute him an officer in a constitutional sense. For there may be cases where the Governor would be bound by an imperious sense of duty to withhold the commission from a person duly elected by the qualified electors; as, for example, in cases of insanity developed since the election, or the conviction of some high crime or misdemeanor.

THE CINCINNATI LETTER—Another Phase of the Story. In Wednesday's issue we gave a letter from an anonymous writer in Cincinnati, containing the description and particulars of an interview, in a den of infamy, by a philanthropic individual signing himself "R."

THE AUDITOR GENERAL QUESTION. The question as to how the place of Dr. Stanton in the Auditor General's office is to be filled is a very important one, and we therefore discuss it in this column, and give the facts and arguments that the discussion of it has produced.

THE RESULT of the recent State elections is exceedingly satisfactory to the different parts of the country save in the State of Virginia, where, had the Republicans been properly organized, it is well understood, the Democratic or so-called Conservative would have met with a most signal defeat.

White Governor Walker ostensibly a Union man and for Grant, when elected, it was early discovered that he had, by pampering for Republican votes, been in the pocket of the President. "Stole the liver of the court of Heaven to serve the Devil in" has all along been active in promoting harmony among his Democratic friends, and breeding discord among the leaders of the Republican party, and other persons, by pampering for Republican votes.

What constitutes a "vacancy" in said office? The answer to the first question would seem to be plain: "First—He must be elected by the Governor. Second—He must be commissioned by the Governor. Third—He must be sworn, or 'qualified' by the Governor. Fourth—He must give bonds for the faithful performance of the duties of his office."

No one, or two, or three of these things would constitute a man Auditor General, and he cannot be "in office" until all of them. Could, therefore, the death of any man who had not been sworn, or qualified, or commissioned, create a vacancy? "In said office?" Colonel Stanton, he remembered, at the time of his death, he had not been sworn, or qualified, or commissioned by the Governor, and he had not given bonds. He was not, therefore, at the time of his death, Auditor.

The second question, as to what constitutes a "vacancy" in said office, is a little more complicated, but not difficult of solution. At first sight it would seem clear that the death of a man elected to an office creates a vacancy in that office, but it does not follow, and this is reflected in the fact, that a man must be in office before his death can create a vacancy in that office. The Governor's power of appointment depends solely upon the existence of a vacancy in said office; and if it can be shown that the death of Colonel Stanton does not create such a vacancy, it follows that the Governor has no power to appoint to the office.

THE KLU-KLUX. Affairs in York County, N. C.—The late trial of the participants in the outrages held for their guilt. The number of Ku-Klux prisoners now in the State Prison is 102, who were all arrested in this county. Some of those who were arrested in this county have been released, and some have been retained as important witnesses in the case.

THE CINCINNATI LETTER—Another Phase of the Story. In Wednesday's issue we gave a letter from an anonymous writer in Cincinnati, containing the description and particulars of an interview, in a den of infamy, by a philanthropic individual signing himself "R."

YESTERDAY morning another phase of the story was developed, a gentleman from Cincinnati furnishing the following facts from the description given of the girl by the letter-writer. It is conclusively proved that the election alone does not constitute him an officer in a constitutional sense. For there may be cases where the Governor would be bound by an imperious sense of duty to withhold the commission from a person duly elected by the qualified electors; as, for example, in cases of insanity developed since the election, or the conviction of some high crime or misdemeanor.

THE CINCINNATI LETTER—Another Phase of the Story. In Wednesday's issue we gave a letter from an anonymous writer in Cincinnati, containing the description and particulars of an interview, in a den of infamy, by a philanthropic individual signing himself "R."

THE AUDITOR GENERAL QUESTION. The question as to how the place of Dr. Stanton in the Auditor General's office is to be filled is a very important one, and we therefore discuss it in this column, and give the facts and arguments that the discussion of it has produced.

THE RESULT of the recent State elections is exceedingly satisfactory to the different parts of the country save in the State of Virginia, where, had the Republicans been properly organized, it is well understood, the Democratic or so-called Conservative would have met with a most signal defeat.

White Governor Walker ostensibly a Union man and for Grant, when elected, it was early discovered that he had, by pampering for Republican votes, been in the pocket of the President. "Stole the liver of the court of Heaven to serve the Devil in" has all along been active in promoting harmony among his Democratic friends, and breeding discord among the leaders of the Republican party, and other persons, by pampering for Republican votes.

What constitutes a "vacancy" in said office? The answer to the first question would seem to be plain: "First—He must be elected by the Governor. Second—He must be commissioned by the Governor. Third—He must be sworn, or 'qualified' by the Governor. Fourth—He must give bonds for the faithful performance of the duties of his office."

No one, or two, or three of these things would constitute a man Auditor General, and he cannot be "in office" until all of them. Could, therefore, the death of any man who had not been sworn, or qualified, or commissioned, create a vacancy? "In said office?" Colonel Stanton, he remembered, at the time of his death, he had not been sworn, or qualified, or commissioned by the Governor, and he had not given bonds. He was not, therefore, at the time of his death, Auditor.

The second question, as to what constitutes a "vacancy" in said office, is a little more complicated, but not difficult of solution. At first sight it would seem clear that the death of a man elected to an office creates a vacancy in that office, but it does not follow, and this is reflected in the fact, that a man must be in office before his death can create a vacancy in that office. The Governor's power of appointment depends solely upon the existence of a vacancy in said office; and if it can be shown that the death of Colonel Stanton does not create such a vacancy, it follows that the Governor has no power to appoint to the office.

THE KLU-KLUX. Affairs in York County, N. C.—The late trial of the participants in the outrages held for their guilt. The number of Ku-Klux prisoners now in the State Prison is 102, who were all arrested in this county. Some of those who were arrested in this county have been released, and some have been retained as important witnesses in the case.

THE CINCINNATI LETTER—Another Phase of the Story. In Wednesday's issue we gave a letter from an anonymous writer in Cincinnati, containing the description and particulars of an interview, in a den of infamy, by a philanthropic individual signing himself "R."

YESTERDAY morning another phase of the story was developed, a gentleman from Cincinnati furnishing the following facts from the description given of the girl by the letter-writer. It is conclusively proved that the election alone does not constitute him an officer in a constitutional sense. For there may be cases where the Governor would be bound by an imperious sense of duty to withhold the commission from a person duly elected by the qualified electors; as, for example, in cases of insanity developed since the election, or the conviction of some high crime or misdemeanor.

THE CINCINNATI LETTER—Another Phase of the Story. In Wednesday's issue we gave a letter from an anonymous writer in Cincinnati, containing the description and particulars of an interview, in a den of infamy, by a philanthropic individual signing himself "R."

THE AUDITOR GENERAL QUESTION. The question as to how the place of Dr. Stanton in the Auditor General's office is to be filled is a very important one, and we therefore discuss it in this column, and give the facts and arguments that the discussion of it has produced.

THE RESULT of the recent State elections is exceedingly satisfactory to the different parts of the country save in the State of Virginia, where, had the Republicans been properly organized, it is well understood, the Democratic or so-called Conservative would have met with a most signal defeat.

White Governor Walker ostensibly a Union man and for Grant, when elected, it was early discovered that he had, by pampering for Republican votes, been in the pocket of the President. "Stole the liver of the court of Heaven to serve the Devil in" has all along been active in promoting harmony among his Democratic friends, and breeding discord among the leaders of the Republican party, and other persons, by pampering for Republican votes.

What constitutes a "vacancy" in said office? The answer to the first question would seem to be plain: "First—He must be elected by the Governor. Second—He must be commissioned by the Governor. Third—He must be sworn, or 'qualified' by the Governor. Fourth—He must give bonds for the faithful performance of the duties of his office."

No one, or two, or three of these things would constitute a man Auditor General, and he cannot be "in office" until all of them. Could, therefore, the death of any man who had not been sworn, or qualified, or commissioned, create a vacancy? "In said office?" Colonel Stanton, he remembered, at the time of his death, he had not been sworn, or qualified, or commissioned by the Governor, and he had not given bonds. He was not, therefore, at the time of his death, Auditor.

The second question, as to what constitutes a "vacancy" in said office, is a little more complicated, but not difficult of solution. At first sight it would seem clear that the death of a man elected to an office creates a vacancy in that office, but it does not follow, and this is reflected in the fact, that a man must be in office before his death can create a vacancy in that office. The Governor's power of appointment depends solely upon the existence of a vacancy in said office; and if it can be shown that the death of Colonel Stanton does not create such a vacancy, it follows that the Governor has no power to appoint to the office.

THE KLU-KLUX. Affairs in York County, N. C.—The late trial of the participants in the outrages held for their guilt. The number of Ku-Klux prisoners now in the State Prison is 102, who were all arrested in this county. Some of those who were arrested in this county have been released, and some have been retained as important witnesses in the case.

THE CINCINNATI LETTER—Another Phase of the Story. In Wednesday's issue we gave a letter from an anonymous writer in Cincinnati, containing the description and particulars of an interview, in a den of infamy, by a philanthropic individual signing himself "R."

YESTERDAY morning another phase of the story was developed, a gentleman from Cincinnati furnishing the following facts from the description given of the girl by the letter-writer. It is conclusively proved that the election alone does not constitute him an officer in a constitutional sense. For there may be cases where the Governor would be bound by an imperious sense of duty to withhold the commission from a person duly elected by the qualified electors; as, for example, in cases of insanity developed since the election, or the conviction of some high crime or misdemeanor.

THE CINCINNATI LETTER—Another Phase of the Story. In Wednesday's issue we gave a letter from an anonymous writer in Cincinnati, containing the description and particulars of an interview, in a den of infamy, by a philanthropic individual signing himself "R."

THE AUDITOR GENERAL QUESTION. The question as to how the place of Dr. Stanton in the Auditor General's office is to be filled is a very important one, and we therefore discuss it in this column, and give the facts and arguments that the discussion of it has produced.

THE RESULT of the recent State elections is exceedingly satisfactory to the different parts of the country save in the State of Virginia, where, had the Republicans been properly organized, it is well understood, the Democratic or so-called Conservative would have met with a most signal defeat.

White Governor Walker ostensibly a Union man and for Grant, when elected, it was early discovered that he had, by pampering for Republican votes, been in the pocket of the President. "Stole the liver of the court of Heaven to serve the Devil in" has all along been active in promoting harmony among his Democratic friends, and breeding discord among the leaders of the Republican party, and other persons, by pampering for Republican votes.

What constitutes a "vacancy" in said office? The answer to the first question would seem to be plain: "First—He must be elected by the Governor. Second—He must be commissioned by the Governor. Third—He must be sworn, or 'qualified' by the Governor. Fourth—He must give bonds for the faithful performance of the duties of his office."

No one, or two, or three of these things would constitute a man Auditor General, and he cannot be "in office" until all of them. Could, therefore, the death of any man who had not been sworn, or qualified, or commissioned, create a vacancy? "In said office?" Colonel Stanton, he remembered, at the time of his death, he had not been sworn, or qualified, or commissioned by the Governor, and he had not given bonds. He was not, therefore, at the time of his death, Auditor.

The second question, as to what constitutes a "vacancy" in said office, is a little more complicated, but not difficult of solution. At first sight it would seem clear that the death of a man elected to an office creates a vacancy in that office, but it does not follow, and this is reflected in the fact, that a man must be in office before his death can create a vacancy in that office. The Governor's power of appointment depends solely upon the existence of a vacancy in said office; and if it can be shown that the death of Colonel Stanton does not create such a vacancy, it follows that the Governor has no power to appoint to the office.

THE KLU-KLUX. Affairs in York County, N. C.—The late trial of the participants in the outrages held for their guilt. The number of Ku-Klux prisoners now in the State Prison is 102, who were all arrested in this county. Some of those who were arrested in this county have been released, and some have been retained as important witnesses in the case.

THE CINCINNATI LETTER—Another Phase of the Story. In Wednesday's issue we gave a letter from an anonymous writer in Cincinnati, containing the description and particulars of an interview, in a den of infamy, by a philanthropic individual signing himself "R."

YESTERDAY morning another phase of the story was developed, a gentleman from Cincinnati furnishing the following facts from the description given of the girl by the letter-writer. It is conclusively proved that the election alone does not constitute him an officer in a constitutional sense. For there may be cases where the Governor would be bound by an imperious sense of duty to withhold the commission from a person duly elected by the qualified electors; as, for example, in cases of insanity developed since the election, or the conviction of some high crime or misdemeanor.

THE CINCINNATI LETTER—Another Phase of the Story. In Wednesday's issue we gave a letter from an anonymous writer in Cincinnati, containing the description and particulars of an interview, in a den of infamy, by a philanthropic individual signing himself "R."

THE AUDITOR GENERAL QUESTION. The question as to how the place of Dr. Stanton in the Auditor General's office is to be filled is a very important one, and we therefore discuss it in this column, and give the facts and arguments that the discussion of it has produced.

THE RESULT of the recent State elections is exceedingly satisfactory to the different parts of the country save in the State of Virginia, where, had the Republicans been properly organized, it is well understood, the Democratic or so-called Conservative would have met with a most signal defeat.

White Governor Walker ostensibly a Union man and for Grant, when elected, it was early discovered that he had, by pampering for Republican votes, been in the pocket of the President. "Stole the liver of the court of Heaven to serve the Devil in" has all along been active in promoting harmony among his Democratic friends, and breeding discord among the leaders of the Republican party, and other persons, by pampering for Republican votes.

What constitutes a "vacancy" in said office? The answer to the first question would seem to be plain: "First—He must be elected by the Governor. Second—He must be commissioned by the Governor. Third—He must be sworn, or 'qualified' by the Governor. Fourth—He must give bonds for the faithful performance of the duties of his office."

No one, or two, or three of these things would constitute a man Auditor General, and he cannot be "in office" until all of them. Could, therefore, the death of any man who had not been sworn, or qualified, or commissioned, create a vacancy? "In said office?" Colonel Stanton, he remembered, at the time of his death, he had not been sworn, or qualified, or commissioned by the Governor, and he had not given bonds. He was not, therefore, at the time of his death, Auditor.

The second question, as to what constitutes a "vacancy" in said office, is a little more complicated, but not difficult of solution. At first sight it would seem clear that the death of a man elected to an office creates a vacancy in that office, but it does not follow, and this is reflected in the fact, that a man must be in office before his death can create a vacancy in that office. The Governor's power of appointment depends solely upon the existence of a vacancy in said office; and if it can be shown that the death of Colonel Stanton does not create such a vacancy, it follows that the Governor has no power to appoint to the office.

THE KLU-KLUX. Affairs in York County, N. C.—The late trial of the participants in the outrages held for their guilt. The number of Ku-Klux prisoners now in the State Prison is 102, who were all arrested in this county. Some of those who were arrested in this county have been released, and some have been retained as important witnesses in the case.

THE CINCINNATI LETTER—Another Phase of the Story. In Wednesday's issue we gave a letter from an anonymous writer in Cincinnati, containing the description and particulars of an interview, in a den of infamy, by a philanthropic individual signing himself "R."

YESTERDAY morning another phase of the story was developed, a gentleman from Cincinnati furnishing the following facts from the description given of the girl by the letter-writer. It is conclusively proved that the election alone does not constitute him an officer in a constitutional sense. For there may be cases where the Governor would be bound by an imperious sense of duty to withhold the commission from a person duly elected by the qualified electors; as, for example, in cases of insanity developed since the election, or the conviction of some high crime or misdemeanor.

THE CINCINNATI LETTER—Another Phase of the Story. In Wednesday's issue we gave a letter from an anonymous writer in Cincinnati, containing the description and particulars of an interview, in a den of infamy, by a philanthropic individual signing himself "R."

Large Stock of Fall and Winter Goods Received at SPEYER & SONS', Rochester, Pa.