Tuesday evening was the fatal time. Spelling-school was the fatal time. Bud was the victim. Pete Jones had his revenge. For Bud had been all the oven-ing trying to muster courage bhough to offor himself as Martha's escort. He had spelled even worse than usual, while Martha had distinguished herself hry holding her ground against Jeems Phil-lips for half an hour. But he screwed his courage to the sticking place, not by quoting to himself the adage, "Faint heart never won fair lady," which, inauoting to himself the adage, "Faint deed, he had never heard, but by reminding himself that "ef you don't resk noth in' you'll never git nothin'." So, when the spelling-school had adjourned, he sidled up to her, and looking dreadfully solemn and a fittle foolisti, he said : "Kin I see you safe home ?"''(' And she, with a feeling that her uncle's
