It's Deacon Brown yer askin' sbout!
He hain't been round for a year:
They planted him last cabbage time,
Which is why he fau't here.
Fur pr'aps ye've obsarved us a gin'raf thing
Thet this ly n' under ground
The again of the don't make one feel
Pretty much like sloshin' round. His kerricter, eb? What, old Descon Brown?
Well, I'm rether shamed to say
That he wan't much the sort o saint
Sot by Harte and Hay.
He never cussed in his nat'ral life— I mention this with consarn—
le didn't know how, though he might a known
Ef he hed cared ter larn.

But it makes it rough for the chap thet gets
The writin of his blog.
To hev to confess he's a slingin link
Over sich a hump on a log.
Who didn't amount to shucks in a row,
Who never war out on a tear.
And for tacklin's neat little game of "draw,"
Couldn't tell a "full" from a pair. Pur the deacon just war a common cush O' the most ornariest kind.
Who never looked out o' the windows o' sin,
And dursn' raise a blind.
Ye've no idee how parvarse he was:

net though he were raised in a Christian land, One wife war enough for him. His canal boat one't—it was years ago.

When drivers both draw and steered.

Run agin the bank jest above Penn Yan.

And some o'the help got skeer'd;

The pilot sot in the injin room.

And the deac spread bisself at the gang plank.

A handin' the ladies sabore.

P'rape the deac, if he'd had the rearin's aome Prape the deac. If he'd had the rearin's same.
Would a ninned out better that tries:
But, considerin' of his broughtens in:
He didn't quite lose his grap:
On fortunit like the the dean as' med party of the dearty Or the rough of a mining camp.
With a hushel of sin in his kerricter, An's touch of Bairey Gamp, Or an injineer or an Injut thar— Any kind of a rum-h isting lout

Per'aps he'd a done some pretty big thing.
For me to be splargin' about. But he just plugged on in his no 'count way, A leadin' a good squar life,
Till the war kom on—then he pulled up stakes
An' sed good-by ter his wife 've hearn tell a gritter man nor him In battle never trod, An' he didn't let down in the race of death, Although he believed in a God.

It's queer how he fout at Predricksburg --The desc lest went in wet.
A pray'n sn' shoot o, an' every time
A fetchin' his man, you bet:
Yet be wan't sustained by the soothin' thought,
When he fell—October 'leventh—
Thet he'd knock'd spots out the commandments
An' been special rough on the seventh.

Just over beyont thet turnip-patch,
Rome twenty holes yer kin see
Thet air filled by chaps who went from here
To fight 'gin Gineral Loe.
They went from here 'bout plantin' time,
'they kem back when corn was ripe.
An' we buried them by that wainut tree—
All chaps of the deacon's stripe. An' I guesa I'll be glitin' then— Yer pardin, stranger, I allars unroof At the grave o' that sort o' men, I've been gassin' away promiseus like But now I make bold ter say.

I know come folks reck'n contrary-wise, An' sling their ink quite free: But they hain't got hold the right end on it.

Aladdin was an Arabian knight, who reached a high degree, although Aladdin was one of the most careless good-for-nothing boys I ever knew, and Mrs. Aladdin were at getting T.J. CHANDLES. He wouldn't learn a trade, unless it was to trade jack-knives, but loitered away the most of bistime on the street. His father worked himself up so because he couldn't make his son work, that he died in a fit—the only filt as his customers said, that ever came out of his shop. Then Aladdin te-came more indolent than ever. Yet, as showing the enduring love of a mother, although he nearly bored
