Shocking Suicide,-The Most Perminent Rusiness Man of Resrer County Sheets Himself.—On Wednesday, 2d inst, about 8 o'clock, this county was considerably startled by the announcement of the suicide of Mr. William Kennedy, the most prominent business man of New Brighton, who shot himself in the forehead with a pistol, and died within fifteen minutes of the fatal shooting. A few weeks ago, and Quincy road, and thence by roads as it will be remembered, he told the diverging in different directions weststory, he had gone to Beaver Creek to look at some property he had there. About three weeks previous to his death he borrowed a pistol from his brother-in-law, Frank Hoopes, jr., on the pretext that he wished to guard his premises from burglars. On the morning mentioned during the temporary absence of his wife, about 8 o'clock, a pistol shot was heard emanating from his residence. and the immediate neighbors of the deceased rushed into the house and found Mr. K. supported by an easy chair, holding a pistol in his hand and with a bullet nole in the centre of his forehead. Refore medical assistance could be rendered he was dead. Mr. Kennedy was, up to the time of his death, the most extensive business man of Beaver county, dealing in ev erything, and having business transactions with everybody. It was said of him he could sell a man anything he tune is assured there in stock raising. might want, no matter how great or small. He dealt in all kinds of merchandise and bought and sold coal, wool, real estate and everything else that anybody wanted to buy or sell. His business thus came to be widespread and extensive, and his books were in a confused condition. It is said neither he nor his book keeper could tell how he stood with the world, but it is believed his assets are in excess of his liabilities. He had several farms in manent improvements. MR. EDITOR:-Having recently returned from the direction of the setting sun, I am induced to transmit some thing of my observation on paper for any of your numerous readers who may he interested in hearing from the west. To those going to Iowa, I would unhesitatingly recommend them to go—if possible-by the Chicago, Burlington ward from Burlington.

The Burlington Cedar Rapids and Minnesota route runs through the most The country between Chicago and Burlington, in Illinois, where we have magnificent levels of green ocean and finely improved lands, and complete in every devise to utilize labor, to prepare and bring of the cereals and products

However, this is no more peculiar to Illinois than Iowa, and when the latter State is more filled up we shall see her eclipse all her sister States in this respect; for in either State you never see even a hamlet without its churches and school building, whilst it seems that in the country there are excellent schools every mile. Does not this prognosticate greatly for the future of the West? We, in this too much settled country, seem to have but a faint concention of the thrift and plenty that crowns the labors of our western friends, and whose only trials are that they cannot make money fast enough-be always the possessor of large flocks of cattle, swine, etc., and Short Sermons .- Now that the hot weather months are upon us, the clergy are advised to shorten their sermons. One of the most trying things on a hot day is a long sermon, and many a poor soul is driven from the church by the infliction of a discourse that forever makes him averse to the balance of the service, which otherwise would be acceptable and pleasant to him. Two of the best sermons ever delivered probably did not occupy over ten minutes each. We allude to Christ's sermon on the Mount, and Paul's discourse on May Hill. Let the preacher boil down his sermon instead of boiling his andi-was an assurance of this character that induced an adventurous scribe, with a friend, to journey Beaver-wards on Pnesday to take a hand in the "elegance" of the exercises that have been engaging the attention of the townspeople for the past week, and which have been incidental to the closing of the eighteenth year in the history of Beaver College and Institute. To the twain the peculiar felicity of the occasion at the outstart was doubly enhanced by the refusal of the courteous conductor to stop the train at the proper station. Two "country miles" away from the destination in view, with about half a dry goods box of flowers on hand and the only outlook ahead, that of being transformed into pack horses for the transportation of the fragrancy, over a dusty road and under a smiling and very ar dent July sun-such a combination of fortuitious circumstances is very conductive to meditation, and the metaphysics of profanity are likely to be singularly attractive. Time, however, and necessity, and a reasonable amount of vitality will generally bring all such matters even,-as was the result in this case,-and thus it came that the twain at last scaled the heights of Beaver, in season to have a couple of hours ahead of them, to bind up their wounds of body and mind, to recover partially from the parboiling suffered in their perambulations, and to restore a mental serenity in consonance of the happy spirit that seemed to everywhere pre

Under ordinary circumstances would be unniessant for one to hear that his coming had been "rather late," but there are times, and this was one, when the intelligence that a part of the "feast of reason" was over came as a soothing balm, for it brought the end nearer. Whether this one would answer to that comprehensive description transgress the lines of accuracy to say that the Eighteenth Commencement at Beaver was eminently enjoyable, and one, that by those who made it such, can right worthily be recalled with pride and pleasure, long after they have passed beyond the bloom and beauty of youth's verdurous shore. - Pittsburgh

The chief then said he would leave early and walk. Others followed by the railway track, and after some time pursuing the tenor of their way, found themselves opposite a brick yard in the village of Vanport. As its shed had been originally erected to shelter clay, our travelers deemed it not inappropriate to cover their own, which by this time, was moist enough. Some of the good brethren of Industry had taken to their homes all those who could not or would not walk, and cared for them until the next day. So after some pleasure and much trouble we were once mor safely home with friends.
