

| BREHM, Bridge street, Bridgewater, Pa., Dealer in Gold and Silver Watches, Clocks, | TESS BOOM TO | FIRE, LIFE, and ACCIDENT INSUR- | · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · | when we are married." replied | | | panied his father to Maine. He has | |
|--|---|--|--|---|--|---|--|---|
| deweiry and Silver-Ware, Speciacles, &c. Watch- | LESS ROOM TO DO MORE WORK, | ANCE; "Anchor" and "National" Lines | | when we are married," replied Louisa, with a toss of the head. "But | Trived deorge came with a happy, | of those present with unusual good | been in Europe, and is said to be a | plates riveted over their ears, and |
| es, Clocks and Jewelry repaired. [feb15'71;ly | BEST BAKER, | of Ocean Steamers; "Adams" and "Un- ion" Express Agent | BOUGHT AND SOLD. | don't give yourself any uneasiness. | i sminug, noperar race, and onered me | Dature and zest. | very promising young man. The third child, Nellie Wrinshall Grant, | thus continued their dance music for |
| DANIEL MILLER, Fashionable Tailor. None but experienced workmen employed. Shop | DESI DALLI, | lon" Express Agent. All kinds of Insurance at fair rates and | Office Hours from 9 s. m. to 4 p. m | | his arm. | alled the day of the modding of | ung how of Wish ton Wish 2 o por | two days, while the young people |
| | MOSTDURARTE | liberal terms. Real Estate bought and | ne3.71:11 | "Did he offer to wait upon you | "For what?" said I. "For dinner, | called the day of the wedding, 20 | was born at Wish-ton-Wish, ³ a por- tion of the old Dent farm, in 1856. | went through the Lancers from |
| A. C. HURST, Dry Goods, Hats, Caps, Furs, Carpets, Oil Cloths and Trimmings, Bridge | MOSTDURABLE | sold. Deeds, Mortgages, Articles, &c., | J. F. DRAVO. J. H. MCCREERY, | home this evening ?" | | shina when simple Capt Grant was | The fourth child, Jesse Root Grant, | grinders began to appear at the win. |
| St., Bridgewater, Pa. sep141y | ALTOGETHER | written; Depositions and Acknowledge- ments taken, &c., &ć. Goods and Money | J. B. ANGELL, THOS. MCCREERT, Cash'r | "No. He was rather shy of me | I and holong his mount for I tools the | married to plain Julia Dent. Not | was born at the Dent nomestead at | idows, and let their monkeys climb |
| BOCHESTER, | | forwarded to all parts of the United States | Beaver Savings Bank | after supper; and when the party | and the set of the second of t | i one of the large company present at | i white Haven larm 10 1808. Miss | lup on the players' backs and run |
| N | THE BEST STOVE IN USE | and Canada. Passengers booked to and | | broke up I ran on alone. Mr. Pin- | thad always new promises remarking | i the marriage but thought that the | I Neille has been educated by private | faround through the sets, they too |
| J. POWER-Civil Engineer and Surveyer. J. Office near Depot, Rochester, Pa. 642 | | from England, Ireland, Scotland, France | -0 F- | gree overtook me on the way, and accompanied me to the door." | to my lover as I trinned away that | life of the former would be nothing | tutors at nome with Jesse who enters | became discouraged. From discour- |
| CULL DADODROTT D | In connection with the stove I have got | and Germany. | THOS. MCCREERY & CO., | "I think, my child," remarked | the would have to find some one else. | but the lazy, indolent, plodding ex- | Cornell Universary as a student at | agement they went on to remorse. |
| dealer in drugs, medicines, perfumeries, toilet | up a Patent | | | the mother, after another season of | I saw the look he gave me-a look | istence of a regular army officer in | the next term. Mrs. Grant has been | and then on to Mechanicsville, where |
| posite the depot. Rochester, Pa. augo 73-19 | EXTENSION TOP, | ETNA FIRE INS. CO., | BEAVER D. | only very wicked-stop-listen to | of pain, of mortification, and of re- | time of peace, and that the latter | the most devoted and tender of mo- | they committed suicide. Bernstein |
| W. JOHNSON-Dealer in Wall Paper of | EATENSION FOF | UI Hartlord, Conn., | TARA FROM IN | | | | | |
| Chaler in drugs, medicines, perfaminerie, toilet articles, choice brands of tobacco, cigars &c. Op- posite the depol, Rochester, Pa. aug 73 iy W. JOHNSON-Dealer in Wall Paper of all kinds; Oil.Club, Window Blinds; Trunks; Satchels; Basets; Toy Carts; Wagors; | which occupies little room, no additional | Cash assetts$6,000,000 | | ne. You know that Henry loves you most truly—that his whole soul | felt a little uneasy: but I said to my- | hearted helpmeet of a poor and ob- | pense for all her care in the reflection that she has never toot a think by | Cu Derstein. Iney natieu each other |
| thairs and Toys of every description. Near De- | | "By their fruits ye know them." | EXCHANGE, COIN, COUPONS, | is devoted to you—and that his | self-'He will come around all right.' | scure man. Mrs. Grant, even as a | death. The lour children are now | Lof the other |
| THUS. KENNEDY & CO, (successors to Wm. | ses with all pipe, can be put on or taken | Losses paid to Jan. 1, 1873$39,000,000 | And Bankable Paper. Collections made in all parts of the United States. Special attention to | attention is but the result of his affec- | and thus I tried to pass it off. To- | girl, was as a girl, was known for her | all here and participated in the en- | Now, the organ grinders took the |
| Bueching,) Drugginus and Chemisus. Fre | | One of the oldest and wealthiest Compa- nies in the world. | parts of the United States. Special attention to Collections and Remittances. Interest on time | tion-a demonstration of which you | wards the latter part of the afternoon | strong character. I have it from one | joyments this evening. Mr. Dent. | botoly there exercises that a second se |
| scuttions carefully compounded at all hours. In the Diamond, Rochester. eep.1y | of any size or pattern. | ines di the world. | Deposits, Open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. []y17-1y | should be proud: for let me tell you. | George came to me again. He asked | of her schoolmates that when she | was unable to leave his bed. Mrs. | drove the non-musical guests into |
| WILL SMITH & CO., Fancy Dry Goods, No- | Five Hundred Persons | | Rochester Savings Bank. | an undivided, unswerving love is | me what I meant by my treatment | and diffident other from her fatherly | Casey, Mrs. Grant's sister, is also quite ill and public to leave her bed | the streets. At dinner, the halls |
| V tions and Millinery. Madison st., near Dia- mond, Rocnester, Pa. (scp14;1y | | | avvaubvu baringb avana. | something not always to be secured. | tong I told him he must not must | roof and that she was not approxia | at the botel A young son of her's is | were filled with monkeys and organs, |
| JENRY LAPP, Manufacturer and Dealer in | . Who have purchased and used the | NIAGARA Insurance Co., | GEO. C. SPEYERER, | Now you have been trifling with | tion mo in that manner | ted at her worth until acquaintance | also dangerously sight Mr. Cason | while the grinders revelled in sump- |
| Furniture of all kinds. Brighton st., above | | | LOUIS SCHNEIDEB, | Henry's heart-you have both pain- | "But," he urged, "only tell me if | ship had ripened into friendship. | however, dined with the President | tuous resorts. Commodore Vander- |
| Plow Factory. See adv't. (Repi4:1y | GREAT REPUBLIC COOKING STOVE. | Of New York. Cash assetts | SPEYERER & CO., | ed and mortified him, and it so hap- | you mean anything by it." | She was only appreciated by those | to-day, and was present this even- | bilt gave up his rooms to an aged |
| AMUEL C. HANNEN, Druggist. Prescrip- tions carefully compounded. Water st., Ro- | | Cash asserts, | • | pens that those hearts which love the | "'Yes,' said I, 'I do.'" | who knew her well. | ing. | organ-grinder, and his poor family |
| | Most of whose names have been publish- | | Dealers in exchange. Coin, Government Securi ties, make collections on all accessible points in | most deeply and strongly, are the ones which suffer the most from | "And he asked me what it was I | The first meeting of the young | | are now encamped in the park. Governor Warmouth has taken a |
| PEYERER & SONS, wholesale & Retail Deal- ers in Dry Goods Grocerics, Flour, Feed, Grain, | ed in the ARGUS, are confidently referred to, to bear witness of its superior merits | | the United States and Canada, receive money on deposit subject to check, and receive time de- | | told him I meant to teach him a | couple, who are at this moment, ripe | Counting, no montheadlond whatever | garret-room in a neighboring farm- |
| ers in Dry Goods, Grocerics, Flour, Feed, Grain, its at stores, Iron & Nails. Cor. Water & James sts. | as a cooking stove. | Roal Insurance Company, | posits of one dollar and upward, and allow in | the most quickly from coldness and | iesson. | in and the age, looking onck over a | were issued, and no preparations | house. I am still here, but last night |
| MILLER & CO., Contractors and Builders, M. M. nufacturers of Sast, Doors, Shutters, &c. | as a cooking store | Of Liverpool, England. | lerest at 6 per cent. By laws and Rules furnished free by applying | trifling. Believe me Louisa, you are | | period of twenty-five years of hap- | inade for a reception or banquet. A | |
| Deap in Lumber Lath &c. Rochester. [sep21;1y | Having three first class engines on hand, of | Cash Assetts (Gold)$11,000,000 | at the bank. | entering upon dangerous ground. 1f | | | congratulated the family and ex. | cupied my bed-a man, his wife and |
| COTT. BOYLE & WILLIAMS, Successors to,C. | about fifteen horse power capacity, they are offered to the public at reasonable rates, | | Bank open daily from 7 a.m., till 4 p.m. and on Saturday evenings from 6 to 8 o clock. | you care for Henry's love, I advise | | | tended appropriate compliments. | |
| Lukins & Co., Dealers in Sawed and Planed Lumber, Lath & Shingles, Rochester. sp28;1y | JOHN THORNILEY. | | BEFER, BY PERMISSION, TO | you to ask his pardon as soon as you | thoughtlessly, "you annoy me." | and wealth, of the lowest obscurity | There were no relatives of the family | Marvin has sent his family to Balls- |
| TEFFLER & CLARK, proprietors of Johnston | | Taxon in a Til T o | L II Oatman & Co, Hon J S Rutan, | have an opportunity," | "He did not answer me. I saw | and the highest fame, but, through- | | ton, but he still remains. He sleeps on the scaffolding around the new |
| House, Good accommodations and good sta- bles Near R. R. Depot, oct19;1y | JOHN P. DEAN | Lycoming Fire Ins. Co., | Algeo, Scott & Co * Orr & Cooper, S J Cross & Co, Wm Kennedy, | "Ask his pardon !" repeated the thoughtless girl, with an expression | his lip quiver, and his manly bosom | out, a life of domestic happiness-the | | United States. He says he likes the |
| | | Of Muncy, Pa, | Snieder & Wacks, John Sharp, | of surprise. "Mercy on me! what | heave and as he turned away the | first meeting of these two was at the | I GA A THENDEST CHATZICHEL. A HE HALLES | manning (Chambers Chartel 1 1 |
| ALLEGHENY CITY. | | Assetts | A C Hurst, Tradesman's National | are you thinking of? You shall see | sunbeams that came through the | house of Col. O'Fallon, in St. Louis, | of the donors were not given out, the | the biand so beautifully has pur- |
| 1 R.J.S. WINANS, Electrical Physician; Chronic | | Chicago losses all paid, $448,997 00, | S B Wilson, jan15 tf | him at my feet before the week is | Dranches of the frees rested linen his | where miss Dent was a guest. The | desire of the President being to avoid | abasad a band annun and 4 |
| D diseases made a specialty. Office, 187 Wash ington avenue, Allegheny City, Ha. [sep14; ly | HARDWARE AND CUTLERY, | organized in 1840-33 years in successful | janio tij | out." | big tears rolling down his cheeks. | introduction was made by Mr. Ha- | any gossid or remark on a matter of | els up and down the street. He took. |
| | • | operrtion. | Ciothing. | "Ah, my dear one, you don't | i 'i ha impulse of my heart then was to i | zieu, a classifiate of Grant, both of | such purely personal character. | in $50 yesterday before breakfast, |
| MISCELLANEOUS. | | | T GOTT TYPE | know so much about the human | spring forward and detain him; to | whom at that time were lieutenants | | John Morrisey's place is deserted. |
| OHN THORNILEY, Manufacturer of the Great | 81 Wood St., Pittsburgh, Pa. | Rochester Fire Ins. Co., | LOOK HERE. | heart as you think you do. A heart | ask his forgivness and make him | old story that married people always | | The organ-grinders sleep upon the |
| Bepublic Cooking Stove, and Patentee of Por- table extension top and centre. Fallston, Pa. | , 5, | Of Rochester, Pa, | | may revolve steadily around its | pride detained me. I let him go, | tell. Gen. Grant, after his gradua- | | damask carpets, and their monkeys |
| V D. CONE, M. D., Late of Darlington, | | GEO. C. SPEYERER, Presideut. | S PBING AND SUMMER GOODS, -The undersigned bega leave to inform his triends | | and triad to comfort myself with the | tion, was ordered to Jeffeson Bar- | | play with the cards and toss the |
| . • having removed to New-Brighton, offers his medical services, in all its branches, to the people | Connectory and Dischardished Weals | M. S. QUAY, Vice-President. | and the public generally that he has just received a new stock of goods of the latest styles for | for so long a time that it seems fixed | reflection that it would come out all | racks, then several miles outside of | • | white chips about the floor. Wil- liam Leland has left his hotel, pur- |
| medical services, in all its branches, to the people of the city and surrounding country. Office cor- port of Builty and Broadway. sen 3:1v | Carpenters' and Blacksmiths' Tools, | JNO. GRÆBING, JB., Secretary. | a new stock of goods of the latest styles for Spring and Summer wear, which he offers at very | in its course like a planet around the sun-but a sudden strain may snap | - inht | NL LOUIS and but three miles from | | chased four organs, and is now pay- |
| | Shovels, Spades, Scythes, Snathes, Hoes, | II. J. SPEYERER, Treasurer. | | the cord asunder, and the stricken | | White Haven, the country residence | der. | ing large sums of money to mechan- |
| LEWIS MCMULLEN, | | It you want home insulance, procure a | | | he same and calcul me if he should | of Mr. Deht. The farm was very | 1 | ics and farmers about Saratoga to |
| ATTORNEY AT LAW, | Forks and Rakes, together with a large | Policy in the Rochester Company at this | GOODS. | neart af the a tangenty and deter | Less ma have IT may worker and | | | |
| | | Agener | CONSTANTLY ON HAND | come back. If you must trifle, trifle | see me nome. He was very cour, | ange, the house, as my informatic | The Design of (Level) Designed | keep them perpetually going, while |
| 104 FIFTH AVENUE, PITTSBURGH, PA. | | Agency. | | with anything rather than the heart. | and occured only to mean must ne | large, the house, as my informant expressed it, "was full of rooms," | The Davenport (Iowa) Democrat, | |
| 104 FIFTH AVENUE, PITTSBURGH, PA. (Opposite Gathedral.) | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- | Agency. | Thankful to the public I hope by close attention to bus antian | With anything rather than the heart. We are going to Mr. Winthrop's to- | fait bound to make the offer seeing | being large and capacious, and there | in noticing the report of the perform- | from morning till night he is to be |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- | Agency. | Thankful to the public I hope by close attention to bus onting ance of the game. | We are going to Mr. Winthrop's to- | felt bound to make the offer, seeing | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. Or- |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) EFExaminaton of l'itles, Collection of Claims sul all other Legal Business entrusted to my care | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., | Thankful to the public I hope of the strict in the second | With anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chiegen newspapers | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) Conference of Citles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 4-23 fm | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., | Thankful to the public I hope by close attention to bus onting ance of the game. | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) ¹³⁷ Examinaton of l'itles, Collection of Claims a.1 all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 4-23 6m W. W. BARKER, | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y | Agency. | Thankful to the public I hope by close attention to bus ontinu ance of the same. BRIDGE ST., BRIDGE S | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city. Mrs. Bleik | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms-everywhere. No one knows |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) EXTEXaminaton of l'itles, Collection of Claims and I all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 4236m W. W. BARKER, (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Erie, Penna. | Thankful to the public I hope by close attention to bus | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear it; then she tried to | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. I to not make me think | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. , Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms-everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) EXTEXaminaton of l'itles, Collection of Claims a.1 all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 4236m W. W. BARKER, (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BETAIL DEALER IN | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Erie, Penna. | Thankful to the public I house on the first standard to the public I house onting ance of the same. BRIDGE ST. BRIDGE ST. R., BRIDGE ST. BRIDGE STORE. | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear lt; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. I to not make me think | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble posses. Though adverse to ex- | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. , Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms—everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not ap army with ban- |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) EXTEXaminaton of l'itles, Collection of Claims and I all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 4236m W. W. BARKER, (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Eric, Penna. Uash capital, | Thankful to the public I hope by close attention to bus ontinu ance of the same. BRIDGE ST., BRIDGE S | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear lt; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. I to not make me think | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble posses. Though adverse to ex- | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. , Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms—everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) EXTEXAMINATION OF l'Itles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 4-23 6m W. W. BARKER, (Successor to Barker & Haseltine,) WHOLESALE AND BITAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS, | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Eric, Penna. Cash capital, | Thankful to the public I house on the first standard of the public I house onting ance of the same. BRIDGE ST., BRIDGE ST., BRIDGE ST., BRIDGE ST., BRIDGE ST., BRIDGE ST., BRIDGE STORE. | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear lt; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. If not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feaafully agitated. | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rib. His wife liked company | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms-everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) EXTEXAMINATION OF l'Itles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 4236m W. W. BARKER, (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BETAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS, Figuratings Lithographs, Plain and Colored, Pho- (successor the same and colored) (successor the same and colored) | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Eric, Penna. Uash capital, | Thanking induction of the first of the first of the factor of the game. BRIDGE ST., BRIDGE ST., BRIDGE ST., BRIDGE ST., BRIDGE ST., BRIDGE ST., BRIDGE STORE. MART 94:11 CLOTHING STORE. NEW GOODS! | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear lt; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. If not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feaafully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her feiende by performing the most mar- | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. , Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms-everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eves we begy you |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) EXTEXAMINATION OF l'Itles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 4-23 6m W. W. BARKER, (Successor to Barker & Haseltine,) WHOLESALE AND BITAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS, | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, No. 126 Smithfield street, | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Erie, Penna. Cash capital, | Thanking induction of the second school is an other in the public of the same. DANR, BRIDGE ST., BRIDGE ST., BRIDGE ST., BRIDGE ST., BRIDGE ST., BRIDGE ST., BRIDGE STORE. Mar 24:tf CLOTBING STORE. NEWGOODS! WINTER STOCK. The understand takes pleasure in the | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear it; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual. | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. If not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feasfully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a state of seem- | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms-everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something-say organ-grinders |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) EXTEXAMINATION OF l'Itles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 4-23 dm W. W. BARKER, (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BETAIL DEALERE IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS, Figuratings Lithographs, Plain and Colfred, Pho- (Sprarings Lithographs, Plain and Colfred, Pho- (Sprains, Passe Parionic, Mouldings and Picture transes of all kinds, 67 Fifth Avenue, 13 doors above Smithfield SL.] Pittsburgh, Pa. [ma872.19 | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, No. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Eric, Penna. Uash capital, | Thankful to the public Thankful to the public by close attention to bus ance of the game. DANR, BRIDGE ST., Bhildon at EE, PA. mar 24:11 CLOTBING STORE. NEW GOODS! WINTER STOCK. The undersigned takes pleasure in in- forming his friends and the public gener. | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear it; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no silusion to the circum- | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. Do not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feasifully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way— | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- kcepers, who knew what was going | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a state of seem- ing some mbulance. It is not at all | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms-everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something-say organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albauy-any- |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) EXTEXAMINATION OF l'Itles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 4236m VV. W. BARKER, (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BITAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS, Figuratings Lithographs, Plain and Colored, Pho- (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BITAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS, Figuratings Lithographs, Plain and Colored, Pho- (Successor to Barker & Haseltine, 13 doors above Smithfield St., Phitburgh, Pa. [mas 72;19 Homes Still Larger | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, No. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. MANUFACTURERS or | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Erie, Penna. Cash capital, | Thanking induction of the second school is an other in the public of the same. DANR, BRIDGE ST., BRIDGE ST., BRIDGE ST., BRIDGE ST., BRIDGE ST., BRIDGE ST., BRIDGE STORE. Mar 24:tf CLOTBING STORE. NEWGOODS! WINTER STOCK. The understand takes pleasure in the | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear lit; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no silusion to the circum- stances of the previous evening. In | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. Do not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feasifully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way— he went another. All the next day | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- keepers, who knew what was going on, and had plenty of leisure. There | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a state of seem- ing somnambulance. It is not at all processory that the lady should be | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. , Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms-everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do somethingsay organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albanyany- thing to get them to go away. We |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) EFEXaminaton of l'itles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 4-23 fm V. W. BARKER, (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BITAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS, Figuratings Lithographs, Plain and Colored, Pho- (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BITAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS, Figuratings Lithographs, Plain and Colored, Pho- (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) Homes Still Larger FOR THE MILLION! | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, No. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. MANUFACTURERS or | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Erie, Penna. Cash capital, | Thanking induction of the second scholler. I hope on the by close attention to bus interposed on the same. I hope on the same of the same. I hope on the same of t | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear lit; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no silusion to the circum- stances of the previous evening. In the afternoon they walked out to call | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. Do not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feasifully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way— he went another. All the next day I looked for him, but he did come. | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- kcepers, who knew what was going on, and had plenty of leisure. There was a troop of young men and young girls, sons and daughters, and it was | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a-state of seem- ing somnambulance. It is not at all necessary that the lady should be thrown into a mesmeric trance to eligit these powers. As in the case | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. , Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms-everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something-say organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albany-any- thing to get them to go away. We want rest. If it goes on so a day longer we shall all fill our ears with |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) EXTEXAMINATION OF l'Itles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 423 fm W. W. BARKER, (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BITAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS, Figuratings Lithographs, Plain and Colfred, Pho- baryonds, Passe Partonic, Mondfungs and Picture Frames of all kinds, ST Fifth Avenue, 13 doors above Smithfield SL.] Pittaburgh, Pa. [maST2.]y Homes Still Larger FOR THE MILLION! Rare opportunities are now offered for securing | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, No. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. MANUFACTURERS or | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Eric, Penna. Cash capital,$250,000 HOME LIFE INS. CO, Of New York Cash assets,$3,500,000 Travelers' Life & Accident | Thankful to the public Thankful to the public by close attention to bus ance of the game. DANR, BRIDGE ST., Bhildon at EE, PA. mar 24:11 CLOTBING STORE. NEW GOODS! WINTER STOCK. The undersigned takes pleasure in in- forming his friends and the public gener. | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear lt; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no allusion to the circum- stances of the previous evening. In the afternoon they walked out to call at Mrs. Winthrop's, having an urg- | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. If not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feasifully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way— he went another. All the next day I looked for him, but he did come. And a second 'day I watched; and a | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- kcepers, who knew what was going on, and had plenty of leisure. There was a troop of young men and young girls, sons and daughters, and it was | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a-state of seem- ing somnambulance. It is not at all necessary that the lady should be thrown into a mesmeric trance to eligit these powers. As in the case | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. , Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms-everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something-say organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albany-any- thing to get them to go away. We want rest. If it goes on so a day longer we shall all fill our ears with |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) EXTEXAMINATION OF l'Itles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 4236m V. W. BARKER, (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BETAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS, Figuratings Lithographs, Plain and Colored, Pho- inguity, Passe Parionic, Moniforgs and Picture France of all kinds, 87 Fifth Avenne, 13 doors above Smithfield St.] Pittburgh, Pa. [ma872;19 Homes Still Larger FOR THE MILLION! Rare opportunities are now offered for securing homes in a midd, hallhy, and congenial climate for une-third of their yaue five years bence. | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, No. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. WANUTACTURERS OF TIN, COPPER, AND | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Eric, Penna. Uash capital, | Thankful to the public Thankful to the public by close attention to bus ance of the same. DANR, BRIDGE ST., BKLOGH ATKE, PA. mar 24:tf CLOTHING STORE. NEW GOODS! WINTER STOCK. The undersigned takes pleasure in in- forming his friends and the public gener- ally that he has just received and opened A New Stock of Goods, OF THE LATEST STUL DO DOD | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear it; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no allusion to the circum- stances of the previous evening. In the afternoon they walked out to call at Mrs. Winthrop's, having an urg- ent invitation to visit them. They | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. Do not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feasfully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way— he went another. All the next day I looked for him, but he did come. And a second day I watched; and a third, and a fourth. On the fifth day I received a letter from him. It | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- kcepers, who knew what was going on, and had plenty of leisure. There was a troop of young men and young girls, sons and daughters, and it was known everywhere that White Ha- ven Farm was a good place to go to. | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a state of seem- ing somnambulance. It is not at all necessary that the lady should be thrown into a mesmeric trance to elicit these powers. As in the case of the young man from Red Oak, simple contact with the party know- | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. , Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms-everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something-say organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albany-any- thing to get them to go away. We want rest. If it goes on so a day longer, we shall all fill our ears with putty, and go out into the fields to |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) ETEXaminaton of l'itles, Collection of Claims al 1 all other Legal Business entrusted to my carri- will receive prompt attention. 4-23.6m VV. WV. BARKER, (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BITAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS, Figrarings Lithographs, Plain and Cotored, Pho- tryraphs, Passe Partonts, Mouldings and Picture traines of all kinds, 57 Fifth Avenue, 13 doors above Smithfield SL, Pittsburgh Pa. [maST2:19 Homes Still Larger FOR THE MILLION! Rare opportunities are now offered for securing bones in a mid. Availy, and congenial climate for one-third of their vaine five years bance. THE NATIONAL DEAL SECURE | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, No. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. WANUTACTURERS OF TIN, COPPER, AND | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Eric, Penna. Uash capital, | Thankful to the public Thankful to the public by close attention to bus ance of the same. DANR, BRIDGE ST., BKLOGH ATKE, PA. mar 24:tf CLOTHING STORE. NEW GOODS! WINTER STOCK. The undersigned takes pleasure in in- forming his friends and the public gener- ally that he has just received and opened A New Stock of Goods, OF THE LATEST STUL DO DOD | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear lit; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no silusion to the circum- stances of the previous evening. In the afternoon they walked out to call at Mrs. Winthrop's, having an urg- ent invitation to visit them. They remained to tea, and spent the even- ing | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. Do not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feaafully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way— he went another. All the next day I looked for him, but he did come. And a second day I watched; and a third, and a fourth. On the fifth day I received a letter from him. It was from a distance town whither he | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- kcepers, who knew what was going on, and had plenty of leisure. There was a troop of young men and young girls, sons and daughters, and it was known everywhere that White Ha- ven Farm was a good place to go to. Lieut. Grant was a frequent visitor, | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a-state of seem- ing somnambulance. It is not at all necessary that the lady should be thrown into a mesmeric trance to elicit these powers. As in the case of the young man from Red Oak, simple contact with the party know- ing the secret work to be performed | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. , Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms-everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something-say organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albany-any- thing to get them to go away. We want rest. If it goes on so a day longer, we shall all fill our ears with putty, and go out into the fields to |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) EXTEXAMINATION OF ('Itles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 423 dm W. W. BARKER, (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BITAIL DEALERE IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS, Figuratings Lithographs, Plain and Colfred, Pho- implus, Passe Parionts, Mouldings and Picture Frames of all kinds, ST Fifth Avenne, 13 doors above Smithfield SL.] Pittsburgh, Pa. [mas 72:19 Homes Still Larger FOR THE MILLION! Rare opportunities are now offered for securing homes in a mid, hallby, and congenial climate for one-third of their vaine five years bance. THE NATIONAL REAL ESTATE AGENCY has for sale real estate of every description, locat- cid in the Middle and Southern States; improved | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, No. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. MANUFACTUREES OF TIN, COPPER, AND SHEET IRON WARE. | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Eric, Penna. Uash capital, | Thankful to the public Thankful to the public by close attention to bus ance of the same. DANR, BRIDGE ST., BKLOGH ATKE, PA. mar 24:tf CLOTHING STORE. NEW GOODS! WINTER STOCK. The undersigned takes pleasure in in- forming his friends and the public gener- ally that he has just received and opened A New Stock of Goods, OF THE LATEST STUL DO DOD | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear lit; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no allusion to the circum- stances of the previous evening. In the afternoon they walked out to call at Mrs. Winthrop's, having an urg- ent invitation to visit them. They remained to tea, and spent the even- ing. Polit, of whom Mrs. Burnet had | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. Do not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feaafully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way— he went another. All the next day I looked for him, but he did come. And a second day I watched; and a third, and a fourth. On the fifth day I received a letter from him. It was from a distance town whither he had gone to see his widowed mother. | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- keepers, who knew what was going on, and had plenty of leisure. There was a troop of young men and young girls, sons and daughters, and it was known everywhere that White Ha- ven Farm was a frequent visitor, for he was always welcome on ac- count of his intimacy with Frequ | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a-state of seem- ing somnambulance. It is not at all necessary that the lady should be thrown into a mesmeric trance to elicit these powers. As in the case of the young man from Red Oak, simple contact with the party know- ing the secret work to be performed is sufficient. Mr. Frank I. Jervis, | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. , Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms-everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something-say organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albany-any- thing to get them to go away. We want rest. If it goes on so a day longer, we shall all fill our ears with putty, and go out into the fields to |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) ESTExaminaton of l'itles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 423 fm W. W. BARKER, (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BITAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS, Figuratings Lithographs, Plain and Colored, Pho- traphs, Passe Partonics, Mouldings and Picture Frames of all kinds, ST Fifth Avenue, 13 doors above Smithfield SL.) Pittburgh, Pa. [maST2.]y Homes Still Larger FOR THE MILLIONI Rare opportunities are now offered for securing homes in a mid, halthy, and congenial climate for one-third of their value five years bance. THE NATIONAL REAL ESTATE AGENCY has for vale real estate of every description, locat- it in the Middle and Southern States; improred in the Mi | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, No. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. WANUTACTURERS OF TIN, COPPER, AND | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Erie, Penna. Cash capital,$250,000 HOME LIFE INS. CO, Of New York Cash assets,$3,500,000 Travelers' Life & Accident Insurance Co., | Thankful to the public Thankful to the public by close attention to bus and of the game. DAN BRIDGE ST., DALLOW ATKE, PA. MAT 24:11 CLOTHING STORE. NEW GOODS! WINTER STOCK. The undersigned takes pleasure in in- forming his friends and the public gener- ally that he has just received and opened A New Stock of Goods, OF THE LATEST STYLES FOR Fall and Winter Wear. | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear lt; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no allusion to the circum- stances of the previous evening. In the afternoon they walked out to call at Mrs. Winthrop's, having an urg- ent invitation to visit them. They remained to tea, and spent the even- ing. Polly, of whom Mrs. Burnet had spoken, was Mrs. Winthrop's sister. | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. If not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feaafully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way— he went another. All the next day I looked for him, but he did come. And a second day I watched; and a third, and a fourth. On the fifth day I received a letter from him. It was from a distance town whither he had gone to see his widowed mother. | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- keepers, who knew what was going on, and had plenty of leisure. There was a troop of young men and young girls, sons and daughters, and it was known everywhere that White Ha- ven Farm was a frequent visitor, for he was always welcome on ac- count of his intimacy with Fred. | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a-state of seem- ing somnambulance. It is not at all necessary that the lady should be thrown into a mesmeric trance to elicit these powers. As in the case of the young man from Red Oak, simple contact with the party know- ing the secret work to be performed is sufficient. Mr. Frank I. Jervis, the editor of the Democrat, has test- | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms—everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something—say organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albany—any- thing to get them to go away. We want rest. If it goes on so a day longer, we shall all fill our ears with putty, and go out into the fields to die. Help us! —Admiral Semmes, formerly the commander of the Alabama, made a |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) EXTEXamination of l'itles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 4-23.6m W. W. W. BARKER, (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BITAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS, Figurarings Lithographs, Hain and Colored, Pho- ingraphs, Passe Partonts, Mouldings and Picture brankes of all kinds, ST Fifth Avenue, 13 doors above Smithfield SL.] Pittsburgh, Pa. [maST2:]y Homes Still Larger FOR THE MILLION! Rare opportunities are now offered for securing homes in a mid, healthy, and congenial climate for one-third of their value five years hence. THE NATIONAL REAL ESTATE AGENCY has to rale real estate of every description, locat- ch in the Middle and Southern States; impored when and fruid farms; rice, sugar and col- time jantatione; fimber and minerae lands; city, miner, and rund residence, and business stands; | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, No. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. WANUFACTURERS OF TIN, COPPER, AND SHEET IRON WARE. DEALERS IN | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Eric, Penna. Cash capital,$250,000 HOME LIFE INS. CO, Of New York Cash assets,$3,500,000 Travelers' Life & Accident Insurance Co., Of Hartford, Conn. Cash assetts over$2,259,945. | Thankful to the public Thankful to the public by close attention to bus ance of the game. DANR, BRIDGE ST., BRIJGHANG STORE. NEW GOODS! WINTER STOCK. The undersigned takes pleasure in in- forming his friends and the public gener- ally that he has just received and opened A New Stock of Goods, OF THE LATEST STYLES FOR Fall and Winter Wear. He keeps the best of workmen in his | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear it; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no allusion to the circum- stances of the previous evening. In the afternoon they walked out to call at Mrs. Winthrop's, having an urg- ent invitation to visit them. They remained to tea, and spent the even- ing. Polly, of whom Mrs. Burnet had spoken, was Mrs. Winthrop's sister. She was a maiden lady, past three | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. If o not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feaafully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way- he went another. All the next day I looked for him, but he did come. And a second day I watched; and a third, and a fourth. On the fifth day I received a letter from him. It was from a distance town whither he had gone to see his widowed mother. He wrote to me that he feared he had been disappointed. If I could | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- keepers, who knew what was going on, and had plenty of leisure. There was a troop of young men and young girls, sons and daughters, and it was known everywhere that White Ha- ven Farm was a good place to go to. Lieut. Grant was a frequent visitor, for he was always welcome on ac- count of his intimacy with Fred. Dent, his classmate, who is now the | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a state of seem- ing somnambulance. It is not at all necessary that the lady should be thrown into a mesmeric trance to elicit these powers. As in the case of the young man from Red Oak, simple contact with the party know- ing the secret work to be performed is sufficient. Mr. Frank I. Jervis, the editor of the Democrat , has test- ed the lady's occult faculty on sever- | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms-everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something-say organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albany-any- thing to get them to go away. We want rest. If it goes on so a day longer, we shall all fill our ears with putty, and go out into the fields to die. Help us! -Admiral Semmes, formerly the commander of the Alabama, made a speech defending his career in the |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) ESTExamination of l'itles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 423 fm W. W. BARKEER, (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BITAIL DEALERE IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS, Figuratings Lithographs, Plain and Colfred, Pho- ingraphs, Passe Parionts, Mouldings and Picture traines of all kinds, ST Filth Avenue, 13 doors above Smithfield SL.] Pittsburgh, Pa. [maS'72:19 Homes Still Larger FOR THE MILLION! Rare opportunities are now offered for securing homes in a mid, hallhy, and congenial climate for one-tolird of their value five years hence. THE NATIONAL REAL ESTATE AGENCY has to reale real estate of every description, locat- cian in the Middle and Southern States; improred when plantations; fimber and mineral lands; city, the plantations; fimber and business stands; mills and mult sites, factories, &c. Write for Land Register containing description, | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, No. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. MANUTACTUREES OF TIN, COPPER, AND SHEET IRON WARE. DEALERS IN Stoves, Clothes Wringers, Cutlery, Bri- tannia and Block Tiu Ware, Enamel- | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Erie, Penna. Uash capital, | Thanking have to order the set of the scholles. Thanking to the public by close attention to bus ance of the game. DANR, BRIDOER ST., BRIDGEN STORE. NEWGOODS! WINTER STOCK. The undersigned takes pleasure in in- forming his friends and the public gener- ally that he has just received and opened A New Stock of Goods, OF THE LATEST STY LES FOR Fall and Winter Wear. He keeps the best of workmen in his employ, and feels confident of his ability | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear it; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no allusion to the circum- stances of the previous evening. In the afternoon they walked out to call at Mrs. Winthrop's, having an urg- ent invitation to visit them. They remained to tea, and spent the even- ing. Polly, of whom Mrs. Burnet had spoken, was Mrs. Winthrop's sister. She was a maiden lady, past three score and had for many years found | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. Do not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feasfully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way— he went another. All the next day I looked for him, but he did come. And a second day I watched; and a third, and a fourth. On the fifth day I received a letter from him. It was from a distance town whither he had gone to see his widowed mother. He wrote to me that he feared he had been disappointed. If I could trifle with his heart then I might do | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- kcepers, who knew what was going on, and had plenty of leisure. There was a troop of young men and young girls, sons and daughters, and it was known everywhere that White Ha- ven Farm was a good place to go to. Lieut. Grant was a frequent visitor, for he was always welcome on ac- count of his intimacy with Fred. Dent, his classmate, who is now the Lieutenant-Colonel of the 4th Artil- lary elationed at Now London | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a state of seem- ing somnambulance. It is not at all necessary that the lady should be thrown into a mesmeric trance to elicit these powers. As in the case of the young man from Red Oak, simple contact with the party know- ing the secret work to be performed is sufficient. Mr. Frank I. Jervis, the editor of the Democrat , has test- ed the lady's occult faculty on sever- al occasions. Once in particular he | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. , Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms—everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something—say organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albany—any- thing to get them to go away. We want rest. If it goes on so a day longer, we shall all fill our ears with putty, and go out into the fields to die. Help us! —Admiral Semmes, formerly the commander of the Alabama, made a speech defending his career in the Confederate service, at the meeting |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) EFEXaminaton of litles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 4236m V. W. BARKER, (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BITAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS, Figurarings Lithographs, Plain and Colored, Pho- degraphs, Passe Parionts, Mouldings and Picture Fraines of all kinds, ST Fifth Avenne, 13 doors above Smithfield St.] Pittsburgh, Pa. [maS'72;19 HOMES Still Larger FOR THE MILLION! Rare opportunities are now offered for securing homes in a midd, healthy, and congenial climate for nactified of their vaine five years bance. THE NATIONAL REAL ENTATE AGENCY hus to vale real estate of every dearcription, locat- ciant and fruit farms; rice, sugar and col- time, and fruit farms; rice, sugar and col- tim piantatione; timber and mineral lands; city, thinge, and rurai residence, and business stands; mills and mill sites, factories, &c. Write for Land Register containing description, write on an Legal Corvies, Sc. | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, NO. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. MANUFACTURENS OF TIN, COPPER, AND SHEET IRON WARE. DEALERS IN Stoves, Clothes Wringers, Cutlery, Bri- tannia and Block Tiu Ware, Enamel- ed Hollow Ware | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Erie, Penna. Uash capital, | Thankful to the public Thankful to the public by close attention to bus ance of the same. DANR, BRIDGE ST., BRIJGHT, ATKE, PA. mar 24:11 CLOTHING STORE. NEW GOODS! WINTER STOCK. The undersigned takes pleasure in in- forming his friends and the public gener- ally that he has just received and opened A New Stock of Goods, OF THE LATEST STYLES FOR Fall and Winter Wear. He keeps the best of workmen in his employ, and feels confident of his ability to cut and make up garments both | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear lit; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no silusion to the circum- stances of the previous evening. In the afternoon they walked out to call at Mrs. Winthrop's, having an urg- ent invitation to visit them. They remained to tea, and spent the even- ing. Polly, of whom Mrs. Burnet had spoken, was Mrs. Winthrop's sister. She was a maiden lady, past three score, and had for many years found a home with her brother. Her head was now silvered and time had | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. If not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feaafully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way— he went another. All the next day I looked for him, but he did come. And a second day I watched; and a third, and a fourth. On the fifth day I received a letter from him. It was from a distance town whither he had gone to see his widowed mother. He wrote to me that he feared he had been disappointed. If I could trifle with his heart then I might do it again. He said he was going out west and might be gone some time | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- kcepers, who knew what was going on, and had plenty of leisure. There was a troop of young men and young girls, sons and daughters, and it was known everywhere that White Ha- ven Farm was a good place to go to. Lieut. Grant was a frequent visitor, for he was always welcome on ac- count of his intimacy with Fred. Dent, his classmate, who is now the Lieutenant-Colonel of the 4th Artil- lery, stationed at: New London. | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a-state of seem- ing somnambulance. It is not at all necessary that the lady should be thrown into a mesmeric trance to elicit these powers. As in the case of the young man from Red Oak, simple contact with the party know- ing the secret work to be performed is sufficient. Mr. Frank I. Jervis, the editor of the Democrat , has test- ed the lady's occult faculty on sever- al occasions. Once in particular he placed his watch in a box, locked the | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. , Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms—everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something—say organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albany—any- thing to get them to go away. We want rest. If it goes on so a day longer, we shall all fill our ears with putty, and go out into the fields to die. Help us! —Admiral Semmes, formerly the commander of the Alabama, made a speech defending his career in the Confederate service, at the meeting of the Southern Historical Society at |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) ESTExamination of l'itles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 423 fm W. W. BARKEER, (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BITAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS, Figuratings Lithographs, Plain and Colfred, Pho- traphs, Passe Partonic, Mouldings and Picture Frames of all kinds, ST Fifth Avenue, 13 doors above Smithfield SL.] Pittsburgh, Pa. [maS'72,1]9 Homes Still Larger FOR THE MILLIONI Rare opportunities are now offered for securing homes in a mild, healthy, and congenial climate from the Middle and Southern States; improved at the Mathematication of every description, locat- ing the Haid Subtern States; improved at the Middle and Southern States; improved at | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, NO. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. MANUFACTURENS OF TIN, COPPER, AND SHEET IRON WARE. DEALERS IN Stoves, Clothes Wringers, Cutlery, Bri- tannia and Block Tiu Ware, Enamel- ed Hollow Ware | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Eric, Penna. Cash capital,$250,000 HOME LIFE INS. CO, Of New York Cash assets, | Thankful to the public Thankful to the public by close attention to bus ance of the same. DANR, BRIDGE ST., BRIJGHT, ATKE, PA. mar 24:11 CLOTHING STORE. NEW GOODS! WINTER STOCK. The undersigned takes pleasure in in- forming his friends and the public gener- ally that he has just received and opened A New Stock of Goods, OF THE LATEST STYLES FOR Fall and Winter Wear. He keeps the best of workmen in his employ, and feels confident of his ability to cut and make up garments both | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear lit; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no silusion to the circum- stances of the previous evening. In the afternoon they walked out to call at Mrs. Winthrop's, having an urg- ent invitation to visit them. They remained to tea, and spent the even- ing. Polly, of whom Mrs. Burnet had spoken, was Mrs. Winthrop's sister. She was a maiden lady, past three score, and had for many years found a home with her brother. Her head was now silvered, and time had drawn deep marks on her brow, but | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. If not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feaafully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way— he went another. All the next day I looked for him, but he did come. And a second day I watched; and a third, and a fourth. On the fifth day I received a letter from him. It was from a distance town whither he had gone to see his widowed mother. He wrote to me that he feared he had been disappointed. If I could trifle with his heart then I might do it again. He said he was going out west and might be gone some time If I still loved him when he return- | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- keepers, who knew what was going on, and had plenty of leisure. There was a troop of young men and young girls, sons and daughters, and it was known everywhere that White Ha- ven Farm was a good place to go to. Lieut. Grant was a frequent visitor, for he was always welcome on ac- count of his intimacy with Fred. Dent, his classmate, who is now the Lieutenant-Colonel of the 4th Artil- lery, stationed at New London. The latter was never ordered to Fort Jefferson and never met Grant from | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a-state of seem- ing somnambulance. It is not at all necessary that the lady should be thrown into a mesmeric trance to elicit these powers. As in the case of the young man from Red Oak, simple contact with the party know- ing the secret work to be performed is sufficient. Mr. Frank I. Jervis, the editor of the Democrat , has test- ed the lady's occult faculty on sever- al occasions. Once in particular he placed his watch in a box, locked the box and put the key in a third par- ty's pocket, then placed the box in a | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. , Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms-everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something-say organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albany-any- thing to get them to go away. We want rest. If it goes on so a day longer, we shall all fill our ears with putty, and go out into the fields to die. Help us! -Admiral Semmes, formerly the commander of the Alabama, made a speech defending his career in the Confederate service, at the meeting of the Southern Historical Society at Montgomery. White Sulphur |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) EFEXaminaton of litles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 4236m V. W. BARKER, (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BITAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS, Figurarings Lithographs, Plain and Colored, Pho- degraphs, Passe Parionts, Mouldings and Picture Fraines of all kinds, ST Fifth Avenne, 13 doors above Smithfield St.] Pittsburgh, Pa. [maS'72;19 HOMES Still Larger FOR THE MILLION! Rare opportunities are now offered for securing homes in a midd, healthy, and congenial climate for nactified of their vaine five years bance. THE NATIONAL REAL ENTATE AGENCY hus to vale real estate of every dearcription, locat- ciant and fruit farms; rice, sugar and col- time, and fruit farms; rice, sugar and col- tim piantatione; timber and mineral lands; city, thinge, and rurai residence, and business stands; mills and mill sites, factories, &c. Write for Land Register containing description, write on an Legal Corvies, Sc. | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, No. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. MANUFACTURERS OF TIN, COPPER, AND SHEET IRON WARE. DEALERS IN Stoves, Clothes Wringers, Cutlery, Bri- tannia and Block Tiu Ware, Enamel- ed Hollow Ware, Refrigerators, Ice Chests, Water Coolers, Ice Cream Freezers, Bird | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Eric, Penna. Cash capital,$250,000 HOME LIFE INS. CO, Of New York Cash assets, | Thankful to the orbite to the trive of the cholte. Thankful to the public by close attention to bus and of the game. DANR, BRIDGE ST., BRIJGHANG STORE. NEWGOODS! WINTER STOCK. The undersigned takes pleasure in in- forming his friends and the public gener- ally that he has just received and opened A New Stock of Goods, OF THE LATEST STYLES FOR Fall and Winter Wear. He keeps the best of workmen in his employ, and feels confident of his ability to cut and make up garments both FASHIONABLE & DURABLE. | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear lt; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no allusion to the circum- stances of the previous evening. In the afternoon they walked out to call at Mrs. Winthrop's, having an urg- ent invitation to visit them. They remained to tea, and spent the even- ing. Polly, of whom Mrs. Burnet had spoken, was Mrs. Winthrop's sister. She was a maiden lady, past three score, and had for many years found a home with her brother. Her head was now silvered, and time had drawn deep marks on her brow, but still there were traces of beauty left | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. Do not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feaafully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way— he went another. All the next day I looked for him, but he did come. And a second 'day I watched; and a third, and a fourth. On the fifth day I received a letter from him. It was from a distance town whither he had gone to see his widowed mother. He wrote to me that he feared he had been disappointed. If I could trifle with his heart then I might do it again. He sait he was going out west and might be gone some time If I still loved him when he return- ed, I might be sure of finding him | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- keepers, who knew what was going on, and had plenty of leisure. There was a troop of young men and young girls, sons and daughters, and it was known everywhere that White Ha- ven Farm was a good place to go to. Lieut. Grant was a frequent visitor, for he was always welcome on ac- count of his intimacy with Fred. Dent, his classmate, who is now the Lieutenant-Colonel of the 4th Artii- lery, stationed at: New London. The latter was never ordered to Fort Jefferson and never met Grant from the time of their graduation until | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a state of seem- ing somnambulance. It is not at all necessary that the lady should be thrown into a mesmeric trance to elicit these powers. As in the case of the young man from Red Oak, simple contact with the party know- ing the secret work to be performed is sufficient. Mr. Frank I. Jervis, the editor of the Democrat , has test- ed the lady's occult faculty on sever- al occasions. Once in particular he placed his watch in a box, locked the box and put the key in a third par- ty's pocket, then placed the box in a basket, and after tying all the hard | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. , Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms—everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something—say organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albany—any- thing to get them to go away. We want rest. If it goes on so a day longer, we shall all fill our ears with putty, and go out into the fields to die. Help us! —Admiral Semmes, formerly the commander of the Alabama, made a speech defending his career in the Confederate service, at the meeting of the Southern Historical Society at Montgomery, White Sulphur Springs, Va., on Saturday. He |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) ESTEXaminaton of l'itles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 4236m W. W. BARKEER , (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BITAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITTHOGRAPHS , Figrarings Lithographs, Plain and Colored, Pho- applas, Passe Parions, Mouldings and Picture Fraines of all kinds, ST Fifth Avenne, 13 doors above Smithfield St. Phitsburgh, Pa. [maST2;19] HOMES Still Larger FOR THE MILLIONI Rare opportunities are now offered for securing homes in a mild, healthy, and congenial climate for nachidro of their vaine five years bance. THE NATIONAL REAL ESTATE AGENCY hus to rale real estate of every deace. THE NATIONAL REAL ESTATE AGENCY in the Middle and Southern States; improred Singe, and Fruid farms; rice, sygar and col- tor plantatione; limber and minera lands; city, thinge, and fruid farms; rice, sygar and col- tor bild for Life for the sectified on locat- station, price and feriation sections; mils and mild life, factories, &c. Write for Land Register containing description, to sale. Address B. W. CLARKE & CO. The varional Real Estate Agency. The National Real Estate Agency. | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, No. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. WANUFACTUREES OF TIN, COPPER, AND SHEET IRON WARE. DEALERS IN Stoves, Clothes Wringers, Cutlery, Bri- tannia and Block Tiu Ware, Enamel- ed Hollow Ware, Refrigerators, Ice Chests, Water Coolers, Ice Cream Freezers, Bird Cages, Gas Stoves, | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Eric, Penna. Cash capital, | Thankful to the public by close attention to bus ance of the game. DANR, BRIDGE ST., BRIJGHANG STORE. NEWGOODS! WINTER STOCK. The undersigned takes pleasure in in- forming his friends and the public gener- ally that he has just received and opened A New Stock of Goods, OF THE LATEST STYLES FOR Fall and Winter Wear. He keeps the best of workmen in his employ, and feels confident of his ability to cut and make up garments both FASHIONABLE & DURABLE. and in such a manner as will please his | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear it; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no allusion to the circum- stances of the previous evening. In the afternoon they walked out to call at Mrs. Winthrop's, having an urg- ent invitation to visit them. They remained to tea, and spent the even- ing. Pollý, of whom Mrs. Burnet had spoken, was Mrs. Winthrop's sister. She was a maiden lady, past three score, and had for many years found a home with her brother. Her head was now silvered, and time had drawn deep marks on her brow, but still there were traces of beauty left upon her face. During the evening the evening | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. If not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feaafully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way- he went another. All the next day I looked for him, but he did come. And a second day I watched; and a third, and a fourth. On the fifth day I received a letter from him. It was from a distance town whither he had gone to see his widowed mother. He wrote to me that he feared he had been disappointed. If I could trifle with his heart then I might do it again. He said he was going out west and might be gone some time If I still loved him when he return- ed, I might be sure of finding him unmarried, for he had no heart to | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- keepers, who knew what was going on, and had plenty of leisure. There was a troop of young men and young girls, sons and daughters, and it was known everywhere that White Ha- ven Farm was a good place to go to. Lieut. Grant was a frequent visitor, for he was always welcome on ac- count of his intimacy with Fred. Dent, his classmate, who is now the Lieutenant-Colonel of the 4th Artii- lery, stationed at: New London. The latter was never ordered to Fort Jefferson and never met Grant from the time of their graduation until after his marriage, although their | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a state of seem- ing somnambulance. It is not at all necessary that the lady should be thrown into a mesmeric trance to elicit these powers. As in the case of the young man from Red Oak, simple contact with the party know- ing the secret work to be performed is sufficient. Mr. Frank I. Jervis, the editor of the Democrat , has test- ed the lady's occult faculty on sever- al occasions. Once in particular he placed his watch in a box, locked the box and put the key in a third par- ty's pocket, then placed the box in a basket, and after tying all the hard knotshe could invent, hid it in an ad- | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. , Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms-everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something-say organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albany-any- thing to get them to go away. We want rest. If it goes on so a day longer, we shall all fill our ears with putty, and go out into the fields to die. Help us! -Admiral Semmes, formerly the commander of the Alabama, made a speech defending his career in the Confederate service, at the meeting of the Southern Historical Society at Montgomery, White Sulphur Springs, Va., on Saturday. He |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) ESTExamination of l'itles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 423 fm W. W. BARKEER, (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BITAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS, Figuratings Lithographs, Plain and Colfred, Pho- traphs, Passe Partonic, Mouldings and Picture Frames of all kinds, ST Fifth Avenue, 13 doors above Smithfield SL.] Pittsburgh, Pa. [maS'72,1]9 Homes Still Larger FOR THE MILLIONI Rare opportunities are now offered for securing homes in a mild, healthy, and congenial climate from the Middle and Southern States; improved at the Mathematication of every description, locat- ing the Haid Subtern States; improved at the Middle and Southern States; improved at | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, No. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. MANUFACTURERS OF TIN, COPPER, AND SHEET IRON WARE. DEALERS IN Stoves, Clothes Wringers, Cutlery, Bri- tannia and Block Tiu Ware, Enamel- ed Hollow Ware, Refrigerators, Ice Chests, Water Coolers, Ice Cream Freezers, Bird | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Eric, Penna. Uash capital, | Thankful to the orbite to the trive of the cholte. Thankful to the public by close attention to bus and of the game. DANR, BRIDGE ST., BRIJGHANG STORE. NEWGOODS! WINTER STOCK. The undersigned takes pleasure in in- forming his friends and the public gener- ally that he has just received and opened A New Stock of Goods, OF THE LATEST STYLES FOR Fall and Winter Wear. He keeps the best of workmen in his employ, and feels confident of his ability to cut and make up garments both FASHIONABLE & DURABLE. | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear lit; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no allusion to the circum- stances of the previous evening. In the afternoon they walked out to call at Mrs. Winthrop's, having an urg- ent invitation to visit them. They remained to tea, and spent the even- ing. Polly, of whom Mrs. Burnet had spoken, was Mrs. Winthrop's sister. She was a maiden lady, past three score, and had for many years found a home with her brother. Her head was now silvered, and time had drawn deep marks on her brow, but still there were traces of beauty left upon her face. During the evening she came and took a seat beside | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. Do not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feaafully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way— he went another. All the next day I looked for him, but he did come. And a second day I watched; and a third, and a fourth. On the fifth day I received a letter from him. It was from a distance town whither he had gone to see his widowed mother. He wrote to me that he feared he had been disappointed. If I could trifle with his heart then I might do it again. He said he was going out west and might be gone some time If I still loved him when he return- ed, I might be sure of finding him ummarried, for he had no heart to give another. Still he would like to | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- kcepers, who knew what was going on, and had plenty of leisure. There was a troop of young men and young girls, sons and daughters, and it was known everywhere that White Ha- ven Farm was a good place to go to. Lieut. Grant was a frequent visitor, for he was always welcome on ac- count of his intimacy with Fred. Dent, his classmate, who is now the Lieutenant-Colonel of the 4th Artil- lery, stationed at: New London. The latter was never ordered to Fort be time of their graduation until after his marriage, although their close friendship has never been bro- | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a-state of seem- ing somnambulance. It is not at all necessary that the lady should be thrown into a mesmeric trance to elicit these powers. As in the case of the young man from Red Oak, simple contact with the party know- ing the secret work to be performed is sufficient. Mr. Frank I. Jervis, the editor of the Democrat , has test- ed the lady's occult faculty on sever- al occasions. Once in particular he placed his watch in a box, locked the box and put the key in a third par- ty's pocket, then placed the box in a basket, and after tying all the hard knots he could invent, hid it in an ad- iarent room. no one but himself be- | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. , Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms—everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something—say organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albany—any- thing to get them to go away. We want rest. If it goes on so a day longer, we shall all fill our ears with putty, and go out into the fields to die. Help us! —Admiral Semmes, formerly the commander of the Alabama, made a speech defending his career in the Confederate service, at the meeting of the Southern Historical Society at Montgomery, White Sulphur Springs, Va., on Saturday. He maintained that the Alabama had warrants for all she did, and that her conduct was fully instified by that of |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) ESTEXaminaton of l'itles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 423 fm W. W. BARKEER, (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BITAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS, Progravings Lithographs, Plain and Colfred, Pho- traphs, Passe Partonic, Mouldings and Picture Frames of all kinds, ST Fifth Avenue, 13 doors above Smithfield SL.] Pittsburgh, Pa. [maS'72,1]9 Homes Still Larger FOR THE MILLIONI Rare opportunities are now offered for securing homes in a mid, healthy, and congenial climate from the Middle and Southern States; improved at the state of each end minera land; the to reale real estate of every description, locat- the the Middle and Southern States; improved at and mill sites, factories, &c. Write for Land Register containing description, plantations; timber and minera lands; city, this and mill sites, factories, &c. Write for Land Register containing description, plantations; timber and minera lands; mills and mill sites, factories, dc. Write for Land Register containing description, the Middress-B, W. CLARKE & CO. The National Real Estate Agency. The National Real Estate Agency. Markill New Upholstering House. | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, No. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. WANUFACTUREES OF TIN, COPPER, AND SHEET IRON WARE. DEALERS IN Stoves, Clothes Wringers, Cutlery, Bri- tannia and Block Tiu Ware, Enamel- ed Hollow Ware, Refrigerators, Ice Chests, Water Coolers, Ice Cream Freezers, Bird Cages, Gas Stoves, | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Eric, Penna. Uash capital, | Thankful to the public by close attention to bus ance of the game. DANR, BRIDGE ST., BRIJGHANG STORE. NEWGOODS! WINTER STOCK. The undersigned takes pleasure in in- forming his friends and the public gener- ally that he has just received and opened A New Stock of Goods, OF THE LATEST STYLES FOR Fall and Winter Wear. He keeps the best of workmen in his employ, and feels confident of his ability to cut and make up garments both FASHIONABLE & DURABLE. and in such a manner as will please his | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear lit; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no allusion to the circum- stances of the previous evening. In the afternoon they walked out to call at Mrs. Winthrop's, having an urg- ent invitation to visit them. They remained to tea, and spent the even- ing. Polly, of whom Mrs. Burnet had spoken, was Mrs. Winthrop's sister. She was a maiden lady, past three score, and had for many years found a home with her brother. Her head drawn deep marks on her brow, but still there were traces of beauty left upon her face. During the evening she came and took a seat beside Louisa. and after some commonplace | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. Do not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feaafully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way— he went another. All the next day I looked for him, but he did come. And a second day I watched; and a third, and a fourth. On the fifth day I received a letter from him. It was from a distance town whither he had gone to see his widowed mother. He wrote to me that he feared he had been disappointed. If I could trifle with his heart then I might do it again. He said he was going out west and might be gone some time If I still loved him when he return- ed, I might be sure of finding him unmarried, for he had no heart to give another. Still he would like to hear | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- keepers, who knew what was going on, and had plenty of leisure. There was a troop of young men and young girls, sons and daughters, and it was known everywhere that White Ha- ven Farm was a good place to go to. Lieut. Grant was a frequent visitor, for he was always welcome on ac- count of his intimacy with Fred. Dent, his classmate, who is now the Lieutenant-Colonel of the 4th Artil- lery, stationed at: New London. The latter was never ordered to Fort Jefferson and never met Grant from the time of their graduation until after his marriage, although their close friendship has never been bro- ken. The betrothal of the young | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a-state of seem- ing somnambulance. It is not at all necessary that the lady should be thrown into a mesmeric trance to elicit these powers. As in the case of the young man from Red Oak, simple contact with the party know- ing the secret work to be performed is sufficient. Mr. Frank I. Jervis, the editor of the Democrat , has test- ed the lady's occult faculty on sever- al occasions. Once in particular he placed his watch in a box, locked the box and put the key in a third par- ty's pocket, then placed the box in a basket, and after tying all the hard knots he could invent, hid it in an ad- jacent room, no one but himself be- ing cornizaat. He then resolved | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. , Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms-everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something-say organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albany-any- thing to get them to go away. We want rest. If it goes on so a day longer, we shall all fill our ears with putty, and go out into the fields to die. Help us! -Admiral Semmes, formerly the commander of the Alabama, made a speech defending his career in the Confederate service, at the meeting of the Southern Historical Society at Montgomery, White Sulphur Springs, Va., on Saturday. He maintained that the Alabama had warrants for all she did, and that her conduct was fully justified by that of the United States during the Revo- |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) ESTEXaminaton of l'itles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 423 fm W. W. BARKEER, (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BETAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS, Progratings Lithographs, Plain and Colored, Pho- traphs, Passe Parionts, Mouldings and Picture France of all kinds, ST Pifth Avenue, 13 doors above Smithfield SL.] Pittsburgh, Pa. [maST2:]y HOMES Still Larger FOR THE MILLIONI Rare opportunities are now offered for securing homes in a midd, healthy, and congenial climate for wale real estate of every description, locat- in the Middle and Southern States; improred in the Middle and Southern States; indered Middle and Southern States; indered in the Middle and Southern States; indered indered in the Middle | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, NO. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. MANUTACTURENS OF TIN, COPPER, AND SHEET IRON WARE. DEALERS IN Stoves, Clothes Wringers, Cutlery, Bri- tannia and Block Tiu Ware, Enamel- ed Hollow Ware, Refrigerators, Ice Chests, Water Coolers, Ice Cream Freezers, Bird Cages, Gas Stoves, And House Furnishing Goods Generally; | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Eric, Penna. Cash capital, | Thankful to the public by close attention to bus ance of the game. DANR, BRIDGE ST., BRIJGHANG STORE. NEWGOODS! WINTER STOCK. The undersigned takes pleasure in in- forming his friends and the public gener- ally that he has just received and opened A New Stock of Goods, OF THE LATEST STYLES FOR Fall and Winter Wear. He keeps the best of workmen in his employ, and feels confident of his ability to cut and make up garments both FASHIONABLE & DURABLE. and in such a manner as will please his | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear lit; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no allusion to the circum- stances of the previous evening. In the afternoon they walked out to call at Mrs. Wintbrop's, having an urg- ent invitation to visit them. They remained to tea, and spent the even- ing. Polly, of whom Mrs. Burnet had spoken, was Mrs. Winthrop's sister. She was a maiden lady, past three score, and had for many years found a home with her brother. Her head drawn deep marks on her brow, but still there were traces of beauty left upon her face. During the evening she came and took a seat beside Louisa, and after some commonplace | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. Do not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feaafully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way— he went another. All the next day I looked for him, but he did come. And a second day I watched; and a third, and a fourth. On the fifth day I received a letter from him. It was from a distance town whither he had gone to see his widowed mother. He wrote to me that he feared he had been disappointed. If I could trifle with his heart then I might do it again. He sait he was going out west and might be gone some time If I still loved him when he return- ed, I might be sure of finding him unmarried, for he had no heart to give another. Still he would like to hear if I wished it. He wrote as one who | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- keepers, who knew what was going on, and had plenty of leisure. There was a troop of young men and young girls, sons and daughters, and it was known everywhere that White Ha- ven Farm was a good place to go to. Lieut. Grant was a frequent visitor, for he was always welcome on ac- count of his intimacy with Fred. Dent, his classmate, who is now the Lieutenant-Colonel of the 4th Artil- lery, stationed at New London. The latter was never ordered to Fort Jefferson and never met Grant from the time of their graduation until after his marriage, although their close friendship has never been bro- ken. The betrothal of the young couple, about whom this sketch is | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a-state of seem- ing somnambulance. It is not at all necessary that the lady should be thrown into a mesmeric trance to elicit these powers. As in the case of the young man from Red Oak, simple contact with the party know- ing the secret work to be performed is sufficient. Mr. Frank I. Jervis, the editor of the Democrat , has test- ed the lady's occult faculty on sever- al occasions. Once in particular he placed his watch in a box, locked the box and put the key in a third par- ty's pocket, then placed the box in a basket, and after tying all the hard knots he could invent, hid it in an ad- jacent room, no one but himself be- ing cognizaat. He then resolved that the lady should discover that | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. , Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms—everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something—say organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albany—any- thing to get them to go away. We want rest. If it goes on so a day longer, we shall all fill our ears with putty, and go out into the fields to die. Help us! —Admiral Semmes, formerly the commander of the Alabama, made a speech defending his career in the Confederate service, at the meeting of the Southern Historical Society at Montgomery, White Sulphur Springs, Va., on Saturday. He maintained that the Alabama had warrants for all she did, and that her conduct was fully justified by that of the United States during the Revo- lution and the war of 1812. He de- |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) ESTEXaminaton of l'itles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 423.6m W. W. BARKEER , (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BETAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS , Pagartings Lithographs, Plain and Colored, Pho- temperature, Modelings and Picture France of all kinds, 87 Pith Avenne, 13 doors above Smithfield SL.) Pittsburgh, Pa. [ma872;19 Homes Still Larger FOR THE MILLIONI Rare opportunities are now offered for securing homes in a midd, healthy, and congenial climate for value real estate of every description, locat- it in the Middle and Southern States; improved indicate and truta for the value states in the states with estate of the southern States; improved in the Middle and Southern States; indered in the Middl | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, NO. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. MANUTACTURENS OF TIN, COPPER, AND SHEET IRON WARE. DEALERS IN Stoves, Clothes Wringers, Cutlery, Bri- tannia and Block Tiu Ware, Enamel- ed Hollow Ware, Refrigerators, Ice Chests, Water Coolers, Ice Cream Freezers, Bird Cages, Gas Stoves, And House Furnishing Goods Generally; | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Eric, Penna. Cash capital, | Thanking is do to order the set of the set o | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear lit; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no allusion to the circum- stances of the previous evening. In the afternoon they walked out to call at Mrs. Winthrop's, having an urg- ent invitation to visit them. They remained to tea, and spent the even- ing. Polly, of whom Mrs. Burnet had spoken, was Mrs. Winthrop's sister. She was a maiden lady, past three score, and had for many years found a home with her brother. Her head was now silvered, and time had drawn deep marks on her brow, but still there were traces of beauty left upon her face. During the evening she came and took a seat beside Louisa, and after some commonplace remarks, the old lady said, in a quiet way: | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. Do not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feaafully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way— he went another. All the next day I looked for him, but he did come. And a second day I watched; and a third, and a fourth. On the fifth day I received a letter from him. It was from a distance town whither he had gone to see his widowed mother. He wrote to me that he feared he had been disappointed. If I could trifle with his heart then I might do it again. He sait he was going out west and might be gone some time If I still loved him when he return- ed, I might be sure of finding him unmarried, for he had no heart to give another. Still he would like to hear from me, he would like to hear if I wished it. He wrote as one who had been deeply wronged, and there | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- keepers, who knew what was going on, and had plenty of leisure. There was a troop of young men and young girls, sons and daughters, and it was known everywhere that White Ha- ven Farm was a good place to go to. Lieut. Grant was a frequent visitor, for he was always welcome on ac- count of his intimacy with Fred. Dent, his classmate, who is now the Lieutenant-Colonel of the 4th Artii- lery, stationed at: New London. The latter was never ordered to Fort Jefferson and never met Grant from the time of their graduation until after his marriage, although their close friendship has never been bro- ken. The betrothal of the young couple, about whom this sketch is written, occurred in 1843, at this same old hospitable mansion at | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a-state of seem- ing somnambulance. It is not at all necessary that the lady should be thrown into a mesmeric trance to elicit these powers. As in the case of the young man from Red Oak, simple contact with the party know- ing the secret work to be performed is sufficient. Mr. Frank I. Jervis, the editor of the Democrat , has test- ed the lady's occult faculty on sever- al occasions. Once in particular he placed his watch in a box, locked the box and put the key in a third par- ty's pocket, then placed the box in a basket, and after tying all the hard knotshe could invent, hid it in an ad- jacent room, no one but himself be- ing cognizant. He then resolved that the lady should discover that watch and place it in her husband's | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms-everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something-say organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albany-any- thing to get them to go away. We want rest. If it goes on so a day longer, we shall all fill our ears with putty, and go out into the fields to die. Help us! -Admiral Semmes, formerly the commander of the Alabama, made a speech defending his career in the Confederate service, at the meeting of the Southern Historical Society at Montgomery. White Sulphur Springs, Va., on Saturday. He maintained that the Alabama had warrants for all she did, and that her conduct was fully justified by that of the United States during the Revo- lution and the war of 1812. He de- nied hurring ships without authority |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) ESTEXaminaton of litles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 4236m W. W. BARKEER , (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BITAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS , Propractings Lithographs, Plain and Colored, Pho- depender, Passe Parionis, Mouldings and Picture Fraines of all kinds, ST Fifth Avenne, 13 doors above Smithfield St. Pittsburgh, Pa. [maS'72;19 Homes Still Larger FOR THE MILLION! Rare opportunities are now offered for securing homes in a mild, healthy, and congenial climate for one-third of their vaine five years bance. THE NATIONAL REAL ESTATE AGENCY has to rale real estate of every deaced. THE NATIONAL REAL ESTATE AGENCY has to rale real estate of every deaced. Write for Land Arail farms, rice, syagar and col- tomes in a find farms of properties we have the shiddle and Southern States; improred with and mill ites, factories, &c. Write for Land Repister containing description, the Middle state deprices and basi- mation, price and terms of properties we have the state and drait farms of properties we have the state. Address = B. W. CLARKE & CO. The Varional Real Estate Agency. The National Real Estate Agency. The Double STREET, ALLEGHENY CITY, PA., No othio STREET, ALLEGHENY CITY, PA., New the farde and public generally that has opened the above business with a fing | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, NO. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. MANUTACTURENS OF TIN, COPPER, AND SHEET IRON WARE. DEALERS IN Stoves, Clothes Wringers, Cutlery, Bri- tannia and Block Tiu Ware, Enamel- ed Hollow Ware, Refrigerators, Ice Chests, Water Coolers, Ice Cream Freezers, Bird Cages, Gas Stoves, And House Furnishing Goods Generally; | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Eric, Penna. Cash capital, | Thankful to the public by close attention to bus ance of the game. DANR, BRIDGE ST., BRIJGHANG STORE. NEWGOODS! WINTER STOCK. The undersigned takes pleasure in in- forming his friends and the public gener- ally that he has just received and opened A New Stock of Goods, OF THE LATEST STYLES FOR Fall and Winter Wear. He keeps the best of workmen in his employ, and feels confident of his ability to cut and make up garments both FASHIONABLE & DURABLE. and in such a manner as will please his | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear it; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no allusion to the circum- stances of the previous evening. In the afternoon they walked out to call at Mrs. Winthrop's, having an urg- ent invitation to visit them. They remained to tea, and spent the even- ing. Polly, of whom Mrs. Burnet had spoken, was Mrs. Winthrop's sister. She was a maiden lady, past three score, and had for many years found a home with her brother. Her head was now silvered, and time had drawn deep marks on her brow, but still there were traces of beauty left upon her face. During the evening she came and took a seat beside Louisa, and after some commonplace remarks, the old lady said, in a quiet way: "Your mother told me that you | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. Do not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feaafully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way— he went another. All the next day I looked for him, but he did come. And a second day I watched; and a third, and a fourth. On the fifth day I received a letter from him. It was from a distance town whither he had gone to see his widowed mother. He wrote to me that he feared he bad been disappointed. If I could trifle with his heart then I might do it again. He sait he was going out west and might be gone some time If I still loved him when he return- ed, I might be sure of finding him unmarried, for he had no heart to give another. Still he would like to hear if I wished it. He wrote as one who had been deeply wronged, and there were one or two sentences in the mis- | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- keepers, who knew what was going on, and had plenty of leisure. There was a troop of young men and young girls, sons and daughters, and it was known everywhere that White Ha- ven Farm was a good place to go to. Lieut. Grant was a frequent visitor, for he was always welcome on ac- count of his intimacy with Fred. Dent, his classmate, who is now the Lieutenant-Colonel of the 4th Artil- lery, stationed at New London. The latter was never ordered to Fort Jefferson and never met Grant from the time of their graduation until after his marriage, although their close friendship has never been bro- ken. The betrothal of the young couple, about whom this sketch is written, occurred in 1843, at this same old hospitable mansion at White Haven Farm—a farm which, | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a-state of seem- ing somnambulance. It is not at all necessary that the lady should be thrown into a mesmeric trance to elicit these powers. As in the case of the young man from Red Oak, simple contact with the party know- ing the secret work to be performed is sufficient. Mr. Frank I. Jervis, the editor of the Democrat , has test- ed the lady's occult faculty on sever- al occasions. Once in particular he placed his watch in a box, locked the box and put the key in a third par- ty's pocket, then placed the box in a basket, and after tying all the hard knotshe could invent, hid it in an ad- jacent room, no one but himself be- ing cognizant. He then resolved that the lady should discover that watch and place it in her husbani's hands. He, without, intimating an | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. , Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms—everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something—say organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albany—any- thing to get them to go away. We want rest. If it goes on so a day longer, we shall all fill our ears with putty, and go out into the fields to die. Help us! —Admiral Semmes, formerly the commander of the Alabama, made a speech defending his career in the Confederate service, at the meeting of the Southern Historical Society at Montgomery, White Sulphur Springs, Va., on Saturday. He maintained that the Alabama had warrants for all she did, and that her conduct was fully justified by that of the United States during the Revo- lution and the war of 1812. He de- nied burning ships without authority of hay the yielation of his parole. |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) ESTEXaminaton of litles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 4236m W. W. BARKEER , (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BITAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS , Progravings Lithographs, Plain and Colored, Pho- physical and Colored, Pho- physical and Colored and Colored and Chromos Lithographs, Plain and Colored, Pho- physical and Colored and Colored and Chromos Lithographs, Plain and Colored, Pho- physical and Colored and Colored and Chromos Still Larger For THE Millings and Picture Frances of all kinds, ST Fifth Avenne, 13 doors above Smithfield St. Pittsburgh, Pa. [maS72;19] Homes Still Larger FOR THE Million Rare opportunities are now offered for securing homes in a mill, healthy, and congenial climate for one-third of their vaine five years bance. THE NATIONAL REAL ESTATE AGENCY Fust or sale real estate of every deace. THE NATIONAL REAL ESTATE AGENCY hus to rale real estate of every deace. Write for Land Repister containing description, initis and mill ites, factories, &c. Write for Land Repister containing description, the Address – B. W. CLARNE & CO. The National Real Estate Agency. The Corling Acenue, Washington, D. C. mayitit. New Upholstering House. THEOPHILUS ROLLER. 150 OHIO STREET, ALLEOHENY CITY, PA., N-s. to notify the trade and public generally that has opened the above business with a fine in the Royable Spring. Motives is monofer. | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, No. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. MANUTACTURENS OF TIN, COPPER, AND SHEET IRON WARE. DEALERS IN Stoves, Clothes Wringers, Cutlery, Bri- tannia and Block Tiu Ware, Enamel- ed Hollow Ware, Refrigerators, Ice Chests, Water Coolers, Ice Cream Freezers, Bird Cages, Gas Stoves, And House Furnishing Goods Generally; WHOLESALE AND RETAIL PROPRIETORS OF THE | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Eric, Penna. Uash capital, | Thanking induction of the second seco | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear it; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no allusion to the circum- stances of the previous evening. In the afternoon they walked out to call at Mrs. Winthrop's, having an urg- ent invitation to visit them. They remained to tea, and spent the even- ing. Polly, of whom Mrs. Burnet had spoken, was Mrs. Winthrop's sister. She was a maiden lady, past three score, and had for many years found a home with her brother. Her head was now silvered, and time had drawn deep marks on her brow, but still there were traces of beauty left upon her face. During the evening she came and took a seat beside Louisa, and after some commonplace remarks, the old lady said, in a quiet way: "Your mother told me that you would like to hear a little of my life history," | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. Do not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feaafully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way— he went another. All the next day I looked for him, but he did come. And a second day I watched; and a third, and a fourth. On the fifth day I received a letter from him. It was from a distance town whither he had gone to see his widowed mother. He wrote to me that he feared he had been disappointed. If I could trifle with his heart then I might do it again. He sait he was going out west and might be gone some time If I still loved him when he return- ed, I might be sure of finding him unmarried, for he had no heart to give another. Still he would like to hear if I wished it. He wrote as one who had been deeply wronged, and there were one or two sentences in the mis- eive that touched me unpleasantly. A week passed away, and I did not | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- keepers, who knew what was going on, and had plenty of leisure. There was a troop of young men and young girls, sons and daughters, and it was known everywhere that White Ha- ven Farm was a good place to go to. Lieut. Grant was a frequent visitor, for he was always welcome on ac- count of his intimacy with Fred. Dent, his classmate, who is now the Lieutenant-Colonel of the 4th Artii- lery, stationed at: New London. The latter was never ordered to Fort Jefferson and never met Grant from the time of their graduation until after his marriage, although their close friendship has never been bro- ken. The betrothal of the young couple, about whom this sketch is written, occurred in 1843, at this same old hospitable mansion at White Haven Farm—a farm which, by the way, now belongs to Gen. | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a-state of seem- ing somnambulance. It is not at all necessary that the lady should be thrown into a mesmeric trance to elicit these powers. As in the case of the young man from Red Oak, simple contact with the party know- ing the secret work to be performed is sufficient. Mr. Frank I. Jervis, the editor of the Democrat , has test- ed the lady's occult faculty on sever- al occasions. Once in particular he placed his watch in a box, locked the box and put the key in a third par- ty's pocket, then placed the box in a basket, and after tying all the hard knots he could invent, hid it in an ad- jacent room, no one but himself be- ing cognizaat. He then resolved that the lady should discover that watch and place it in her husbanl's hands. He, without, intimating an idea of his desire, merely laid his hand cently upon the lady. She im- | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. , Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms—everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something—say organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albany—any- thing to get them to go away. We want rest. If it goes on so a day longer, we shall all fill our ears with putty, and go out into the fields to die. Help us! —Admiral Semmes, formerly the commander of the Alabama, made a speech defending his career in the Confederate service, at the meeting of the Southern Historical Society at Montgomery, White Sulphur Springs, Va., on Saturday. He maintained that the Alabama had warrants for all she did, and that her conduct was fully justified by that of the United States during the Revo- lution and the war of 1812. He de- nied burning ships without authority of law, the violation of his parole, ord the carrying of foreigners on his |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) ESTEXaminaton of litles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 4236m W. W. BARKEER , (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BITAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS , Propractings Lithographs, Plain and Colored, Pho- depender, Passe Parionis, Mouldings and Picture Fraines of all kinds, ST Fifth Avenne, 13 doors above Smithfield St. Pittsburgh, Pa. [maS'72;19 Homes Still Larger FOR THE MILLION! Rare opportunities are now offered for securing homes in a mild, healthy, and congenial climate for one-third of their vaine five years bance. THE NATIONAL REAL ESTATE AGENCY has to rale real estate of every deaced. THE NATIONAL REAL ESTATE AGENCY has to rale real estate of every deaced. Write for Land Arail farms, rice, syagar and col- tomes in a find farms of properties we have the shiddle and Southern States; improred with and mill ites, factories, &c. Write for Land Repister containing description, the Middle state deprices and basi- mation, price and terms of properties we have the state and drait farms of properties we have the state. Address = B. W. CLARKE & CO. The Varional Real Estate Agency. The National Real Estate Agency. The Double STREET, ALLEGHENY CITY, PA., No othio STREET, ALLEGHENY CITY, PA., New the farde and public generally that has opened the above business with a fing | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, No. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. FARUFACTURERS OF TIN, COPPER, AND SHEET IRON WARE. DEALERS IN Stoves, Clothes Wringers, Cutlery, Bri- tannia and Block Tiu Ware, Enamel- ed Hollow Ware, Refrigerators, ICe Chests, Water Coolers, Ice Cream Freezers, Bird Cages, Gas Stoves, And House Furnishing Goods Generally; WHOLESALE AND RETAIL PROPRIETORS OF THE Patent Adjustable Stove Shelves, | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Eric, Penna. Uash capital, | Thanking induction of the second seco | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear it; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no allusion to the circum- stances of the previous evening. In the afternoon they walked out to call at Mrs. Winthrop's, having an urg- ent invitation to visit them. They remained to tea, and spent the even- ing. Polly, of whom Mrs. Burnet had spoken, was Mrs. Winthrop's sister. She was a maiden lady, past three score, and had for many years found a home with her brother. Her head was now silvered, and time had drawn deep marks on her brow, but still there were traces of beauty left upon her face. During the evening she came and took a seat beside Louisa, and after some commonplace remarks, the old lady said, in a quiet way: "Your mother told me that you would like to hear a little of my life history," | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. Do not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feaafully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way— he went another. All the next day I looked for him, but he did come. And a second day I watched; and a third, and a fourth. On the fifth day I received a letter from him. It was from a distance town whither he had gone to see his widowed mother. He wrote to me that he feared he had been disappointed. If I could trifle with his heart then I might do it again. He said he was going out west and might be gone some time If I still loved him when he return- ed, I might be sure of finding him unmarried, for he had no heart to give another. Still he would like to hear from me, he would like to hear if I wished it. He wrote as one who had been deeply wronged, and there were one or two sentences in the mis- eive that touched me unpleasantly. A week passed away, and I did not answer It; but at the end of that time | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- keepers, who knew what was going on, and had plenty of leisure. There was a troop of young men and young girls, sons and daughters, and it was known everywhere that White Ha- ven Farm was a good place to go to. Lieut. Grant was a frequent visitor, for he was always welcome on ac- count of his intimacy with Fred. Dent, his classmate, who is now the Lieutenant-Colonel of the 4th Artil- lery, stationed at New London. The latter was never ordered to Fort Jefferson and never met Grant from the time of their graduation until after his marriage, although their close friendship has never been bro- ken. The betrothal of the young couple, about whom this sketch is written, occurred in 1843, at this same old hospitable mansion at White Haven Farm—a farm which, by the way, now belongs to Gen. Grant, and is one of the most valua- ble in the country. the whole extent | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a-state of seem- ing somnambulance. It is not at all necessary that the lady should be thrown into a mesmeric trance to elicit these powers. As in the case of the young man from Red Oak, simple contact with the party know- ing the secret work to be performed is sufficient. Mr. Frank I. Jervis, the editor of the Democrat , has test- ed the lady's occult faculty on sever- al occasions. Once in particular he placed his watch in a box, locked the box and put the key in a third par- ty's pocket, then placed the box in a basket, and after tying all the hard knots he could invent, hid it in an ad- jacent room, no one but himself be- ing cognizant. He then resolved that the lady should discover that watch and place it in her husband's hands. He, without, intimating an idea of his desire, merely laid his hand gently upon the lady. She im- mediately closed her eyes, and glided | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. , Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms—everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something—say organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albany—any- thing to get them to go away. We want rest. If it goes on so a day longer, we shall all fill our ears with putty, and go out into the fields to die. Help us! —Admiral Semmes, formerly the commander of the Alabama, made a speech defending his career in the Confederate service, at the meeting of the Southern Historical Society at Montgomery, White Sulphur Springs, Va., on Saturday. He maintained that the Alabama had warrants for all she did, and that her conduct was fully justified by that of the United States during the Revo- lution and the war of 1812. He de- nied burming ships without authority of law, the violation of his parole, and the carrying of foreigners on his ship. He also said that if the nation exists we will have but one history. |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) ESTEXaminaton of litles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 423.6m W. W. BARKEER , (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BETAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS , Pagarings Lithographs, Plain and Colored, Pho- paphs, Passe Parionis, Monifolings and Picture Fraines of all kinds, 87 Fifth Avenne, 13 doors above Smithfield St. Phitburgh, Pa. [ma873;19 Homes Still Larger FOR THE MILLIONI Rare opportunities are now offered for securing homes in a midd, hallby, and congenial climate from a sele state of every description, locat- ed to their value five years bance. THE NATIONAL REAL ESTATE AGENCY winge, and rural residence, and business stands; mittaine, price and terms of properties we have: the for Land Register containing description, wattom, price and terms of properties we have. The National Real Estate Agency. The Nation State State State Agency. The Na | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, No. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. MANUTACTURENS OF TIN, COPPER, AND SHEET IRON WARE. DEALERS IN Stoves, Clothes Wringers, Cutlery, Bri- tannia and Block Tiu Ware, Enamel- ed Hollow Ware, Refrigerators, Ice Chests, Water Coolers, Ice Cream Freezers, Bird Cages, Gas Stoves, And House Furnishing Goods Generally; WHOLESALE AND RETAIL PROPRIETORS OF THE | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Eric, Penna. Cash capital, | Thanking induction of the series of the seri | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear lit; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no allusion to the circum- stances of the previous evening. In the afternoon they walked out to call at Mrs. Winthrop's, having an urg- ent invitation to visit them. They remained to tea, and spent the even- ing. Polly, of whom Mrs. Burnet had spoken, was Mrs. Winthrop's sister. She was a maiden lady, past three score, and had for many years found a home with her brother. Her head was now silvered, and time had drawn deep marks on her brow, but still there were traces of beauty left upon her face. During the evening she came and took a seat beside Louisa, and after some commonplace remarks, the old lady said, in a quiet way: "Your mother told me that you would like to hear a little of my life history." "If you would please tell it, I certainly should, for anything which | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. Do not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feaafully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way— he went another. All the next day I looked for him, but he did come. And a second day I watched; and a third, and a fourth. On the fifth day I received a letter from him. It was from a distance town whither he had gone to see his widowed mother. He wrote to me that he feared he had been disappointed. If I could trifle with his heart then I might do it again. He said he was going out west and might be gone some time If I still loved him when he return- ed, I might be sure of finding him unmarried, for he had no heart to give another. Still he would like to hear from me, he would like to hear if I wished it. He wrote as one who had been deeply wronged, and there were one or two sentences in the mis- sive that touched me unpleasantly. A week passed away, and I did not answer it; but at the end of that time I made up my mind to call George | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- keepers, who knew what was going on, and had plenty of leisure. There was a troop of young men and young girls, sons and daughters, and it was known everywhere that White Ha- ven Farm was a good place to go to. Lieut. Grant was a frequent visitor, for he was always welcome on ac- count of his intimacy with Fred. Dent, his classmate, who is now the Lieutenant-Colonel of the 4th Artil- lery, stationed at New London. The latter was never ordered to Fort Jefferson and never met Grant from the time of their graduation until after his marriage, although their close friendship has never been bro- ken. The betrothal of the young couple, about whom this sketch is written, occurred in 1843, at this same old hospitable mansion at White Haven Farm—a farm which, by the way, now belongs to Gen. Grant, and is one of the most valua- ble in the country, the whole extent of which is about a though deer | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a-state of seem- ing somnambulance. It is not at all necessary that the lady should be thrown into a mesmeric trance to elicit these powers. As in the case of the young man from Red Oak, simple contact with the party know- ing the secret work to be performed is sufficient. Mr. Frank I. Jervis, the editor of the Democrat , has test- ed the lady's occult faculty on sever- al occasions. Once in particular he placed his watch in a box, locked the box and put the key in a third par- ty's pocket, then placed the box in a basket, and after tying all the hard knots he could invent, hid it in an ad- jacent room, no one but himself be- ing cognizant. He then resolved that the lady should discover that watch and place it in her husband's hands. He, without, intimating an idea of his desire, merely laid his hand gently upon the lady. She im- mediately closed her eyes, and glided rather than walked to the door of the | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms-everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something-say organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albany-any- thing to get them to go away. We want rest. If it goes on so a day longer, we shall all fill our ears with putty, and go out into the fields to die. Help us! -Admiral Semmes, formerly the commander of the Alabama, made a speech defending his career in the Confederate service, at the meeting of the Southern Historical Society at Montgomery, White Sulphur Springs, Va., on Saturday. He maintained that the Alabama had warrants for all she did, and that her conduct was fully justified by that of the United States during the Revo- lution and the war of 1812. He de- nied burning ships without authority of law, the violation of his parole, and the carrying of foreigners on his ship. He also said that if the nation exists we will have but one history. Our |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) ESTEXaminaton of litles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 4236m W. W. BARKEER , (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BITAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS , Progravings Lithographs, Plain and Colored, Pho- physical and Colored, Pho- physical and Colored and Colored and Chromos Lithographs, Plain and Colored, Pho- physical and Colored and Colored and Chromos Lithographs, Plain and Colored, Pho- physical and Colored and Colored and Chromos Still Larger For THE Millings and Picture Frances of all kinds, ST Fifth Avenne, 13 doors above Smithfield St. Pittsburgh, Pa. [maS72;19] Homes Still Larger FOR THE Million Rare opportunities are now offered for securing homes in a mill, healthy, and congenial climate for one-third of their vaine five years bance. THE NATIONAL REAL ESTATE AGENCY Fust or sale real estate of every deace. THE NATIONAL REAL ESTATE AGENCY hus to rale real estate of every deace. Write for Land Repister containing description, initis and mill ites, factories, &c. Write for Land Repister containing description, the Address – B. W. CLARNE & CO. The National Real Estate Agency. The Corling Acenue, Washington, D. C. mayitit. New Upholstering House. THEOPHILUS ROLLER. 150 OHIO STREET, ALLEOHENY CITY, PA., N-s. to notify the trade and public generally that has opened the above business with a fine in the Royable Spring. Motives is monofer. | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, No. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. FARUFACTURERS OF TIN, COPPER, AND SHEET IRON WARE. DEALERS IN Stoves, Clothes Wringers, Cutlery, Bri- tannia and Block Tiu Ware, Enamel- ed Hollow Ware, Refrigerators, ICe Chests, Water Coolers, Ice Cream Freezers, Bird Cages, Gas Stoves, And House Furnishing Goods Generally; WHOLESALE AND RETAIL PROPRIETORS OF THE Patent Adjustable Stove Shelves, | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Eric, Penna. Cash capital, | Thanking induction of other end of the fail of the public by close attention to bus antimp and of the same. BRIDGE ST., BALSON ATKE, PA. mar 34:11 CLOTHING STORE. NEW GOODS! WINTER STOCK. The undersigned takes pleasure in in- forming his friends and the public gener- ally that he has just received and opened A New Stock of Goods, OF THE LATEST STYLES FOR Fall and Winter Wear. He keeps the best of workmen in his employ, and feels confident of his ability to cut and make up garments both FASHIONABLE & DURABLE. and in such a manner as will please his customera. GENTLEMEN'S FURNISHING GOODS ALWAYS ON HAND. Call and see us before leaving your Orders Elsewhere | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear lit; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no allusion to the circum- stances of the previous evening. In the afternoon they walked out to call at Mrs. Winthrop's, having an urg- ent invitation to visit them. They remained to tea, and spent the even- ing. Polly, of whom Mrs. Burnet had spoken, was Mrs. Winthrop's sister. She was a maiden lady, past three score, and had for many years found a home with her brother. Her head was now silvered, and time had drawn deep marks on her brow, but still there were traces of beauty left upon her face. During the evening she came and took a seat beside Louisa, and after some commonplace remarks, the old lady said, in a quiet way: "Your mother told me that you would like to hear a little of my life history," "If you would please tell it, I certainly should, for anything which you deem worthy of telling must be | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. Do not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feaafully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way— he went another. All the next day I looked for him, but he did come. And a second 'day I watched; and a third, and a fourth. On the fifth day I received a letter from him. It was from a distance town whither he had gone to see his widowed mother. He wrote to me that he feared he had been disappointed. If I could trifle with his heart then I might do it again. He sait he was going out west and might be gone some time II I still loved him when he return- ed, I might be sure of finding him unmarried, for he had no heart to give another. Still he world like to hear from me, he would like to hear if I wished it. He wrote as one who had been deeply wronged, and there were one or two sentences in the mis- eive that touched me unpleasantly. A week passed away, and I did not answer it; but at the end of that time I made up my mind to call George to me and confess my fauit; for well | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- keepers, who knew what was going on, and had plenty of leisure. There was a troop of young men and young girls, sons and daughters, and it was known everywhere that White Ha- ven Farm was a good place to go to. Lieut. Grant was a frequent visitor, for he was always welcome on ac- count of his intimacy with Fred. Dent, his classmate, who is now the Lieutenant-Colonel of the 4th Artil- lery, stationed at New London. The latter was never ordered to Fort Jefferson and never met Grant from the time of their graduation until after his marriage, although their close friendship has never been bro- ken. The betrothal of the young couple, about whom this sketch is written, occurred in 1843, at this same old hospitable mansion at White Haven Farm-a farm which, by the way, now belongs to Gen. Grant, and is one of the most valua- ble in the country, the whole extent of which is about a thousand acres. | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a-state of seem- ing somnambulance. It is not at all necessary that the lady should be thrown into a mesmeric trance to elicit these powers. As in the case of the young man from Red Oak, simple contact with the party know- ing the secret work to be performed is sufficient. Mr. Frank I. Jervis, the editor of the Democrat , has test- ed the lady's occult faculty on sever- al occasions. Once in particular he placed his watch in a box, locked the box and put the key in a third par- ty's pocket, then placed the box in a basket, and after tying all the hard knots he could invent, hid it in an ad- jacent room, no one but himself be- ing cognizant. He then resolved that the lady should discover that watch and place it in her husbani's hands. He, without, intimating an idea of his desire, merely laid his hand gently upon the lady. She im- mediately closed her eyes, and glided rather than walked to the door of the room, opened it, went to the table. | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. , Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms—everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something—say organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albany—any- thing to get them to go away. We want rest. If it goes on so a day longer, we shall all fill our ears with putty, and go out into the fields to die. Help us! —Admiral Semmes, formerly the commander of the Alabama, made a speech defending his career in the Confederate service, at the meeting of the Southern Historical Society at Montgomery, White Sulphur Springs, Va., on Saturday. He maintained that the Alabama had warrants for all she did, and that her conduct was fully justified by that of the United States during the Revo- lution and the war of 1812. He de- nied burning ships without authority of law, the violation of his parole, and the carrying of foreigners on his ship. He also said that if the nation exists we will have but one history. Our Confederate-shistory will live for a |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) EFE Examination of Fitles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 4236m IV. W. BARKEER , (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BITAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS , Figurarings Lithographs, Plain and Collided, Pho- phoness Cathedral. Modelings and Picture Fraines of all kinds, ST Fifth Avenne, [3 doors above Smithdeld SL.] Pittsburgh, Pa. [maS'72;19 HOMES Still Larger FOR THE MILLIONI Rare opportunities are now offered for securing homes in a mid. healthy, and congenial climate for one-third of their value five years bence. THE NATIONAL REAL ESTATE AGENCY with sele real estate of every description, locat- cit in the Middle and Sonthern States; improved with sele real estate of every description, locat- tion, price and fruid fame; rice, sugar and col- tion plantations; fimber and mineral lands; city, thinge, and fruid fame; rice, sugar and col- time and fruid fame; rice, sugar Mite for Land Register containing description, the Middle and Sonthern States; improved "Marker and fruid fame; rice, sugar and stift Phana Accure, Mashington, D. C. markitt New Ucholstering House. THEOPHILUS ROLLER. 100 OHIO STREET, ALLEGHENY CITY, PA, Northe for state shad public generality that has opened the above business with a fine whe for state by bin. Send for Price List. The outfy the trade and public generality that has opened the above business with a fine whe of farlor faring the price is manufac- red and for sale by bin. Send for Price List. OUNTRY RESIDENCE FOR SALE | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, No. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. MANUFACTURERS OF TIN, COPPER, AND SHEET IRON WARE. DEALERS IN Stoves, Clothes Wringers, Cutlery, Bri- tannia and Block Tiu Ware, Enamel- ed Hollow Ware, Refrigerators, Ice Chests, Water Coolers, Ice Cream Freezers, Bird Cages, Gas Stoves, And House Furnishing Goods Generally; WHOLESALE AND RETAIL PROPRIETORS OF THE Patent Adjustable Stove Shelves, The most usefal Invention of the Age! | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Eric, Penna. Cash capital, | Thanking induction of other end of the fail of the public by close attention to bus antimp and of the same. BRIDGE ST., BALLOW ATKE, PA. mar 34:11 CLOTHING STORE. NEW GOODS! WINTER STOCK. The undersigned takes pleasure in in- forming his friends and the public gener- ally that he has just received and opened A New Stock of Goods, OF THE LATEST STY LES FOR Fall and Winter Wear. He keeps the best of workmen in his employ, and feels confident of his ability to cut and make up garments both FASHIONABLE & DURABLE. and in such a manner as will please his customera. GENTLEMEN'S FURNISHING GOODS ALWAYS ON HAND. Call and see us before leaving your Orders Elsewhere WILLIAM REICH. Jr. | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear lit; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no allusion to the circum- stances of the previous evening. In the afternoon they walked out to call at Mrs. Winthrop's, having an urg- ent invitation to visit them. They remained to tea, and spent the even- ing. Polly, of whom Mrs. Burnet had spoken, was Mrs. Winthrop's sister. She was a maiden lady, past three score, and had for many years found a home with her brother. Her head was now silvered, and time had drawn deep marks on her brow, but still there were traces of beauty left upon her face. During the evening she came and took a seat beside Louisa, and after some commonplace remarks, the old lady said, in a quiet way: "Your mother told me that you would like to hear a little of my life history." "If you would please tell it, I certainly should, for anything which you deem worthy of telling must be interesting," replied Louisa. | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. Do not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feaafully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way— he went another. All the next day I looked for him, but he did come. And a second 'day I watched; and a third, and a fourth. On the fifth day I received a letter from him. It was from a distance town whither he had gone to see his widowed mother. He wrote to me that he feared he had been disappointed. If I could trifle with his heart then I might do it again. He said he was going out west and might be gone some time If I still loved him when he return- ed, I might be sure of finding him unmarried, for he had no heart to give another. Still he would like to hear from me, he would like to hear if I wished it. He wrote as one who had been deeply wronged, and there were one or twosentences in the mis- eive that touched me unpleasantly. A week passed away, and I did not answer it; but at the end of that time I made up my mind to call George to me and confess my fault; for well I knew that I had been very wrong. | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- keepers, who knew what was going on, and had plenty of leisure. There was a troop of young men and young girls, sons and daughters, and it was known everywhere that White Ha- ven Farm was a good place to go to. Lieut. Grant was a frequent visitor, for he was always welcome on ac- count of his intimacy with Fred. Dent, his classmate, who is now the Lieutenant-Colonel of the 4th Artil- lery, stationed at New London. The latter was never ordered to Fort Jefferson and never met Grant from the time of their graduation until after his marriage, although their close friendship has never been bro- ken. The betrothal of the young couple, about whom this sketch is written, occurred in 1843, at this same old hospitable mansion at White Haven Farm-a farm which, by the way, now belongs to Gen. Grant, and is one of the most valua- ble in the country, the whole extent of which is about a thousand acres. Soon after the engagement, the young officer of infantry was ordered | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a-state of seem- ing somnambulance. It is not at all necessary that the lady should be thrown into a mesmeric trance to elicit these powers. As in the case of the young man from Red Oak, simple contact with the party know- ing the secret work to be performed is sufficient. Mr. Frank I. Jervis, the editor of the Democrat , has test- ed the lady's occult faculty on sever- al occasions. Once in particular he placed his watch in a box, locked the box and put the key in a third par- ty's pocket, then placed the box in a basket, and after tying all the hard knots he could invent, hid it in an ad- jacent room, no one but himself be- ing cognizant. He then resolved that the lady should discover that watch and place it in her husband's hands. He, without, intimating an idea of his desire, merely laid his hand gently upon the lady. She im- mediately closed her eyes, and glided rather than walked to the door of the room, opened it, went to the table, took up the basket, leisurely united | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. , Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms—everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something—say organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albany—any- thing to get them to go away. We want rest. If it goes on so a day longer, we shall all fill our ears with putty, and go out into the fields to die. Help us! —Admiral Semmes, formerly the commander of the Alabama, made a speech defending his career in the Confederate service, at the meeting of the Southern Historical Society at Montgomery, White Sulphur Springs, Va., on Saturday. He maintained that the Alabama had warrants for all she did, and that her conduct was fully justified by that of the United States during the Revo- lution and the war of 1812. He de- nied burming ships without authority of law, the violation of his parole, and the carrying of foreigners on his ship. He also said that if the nation exists we will have but one history. Our Confederate shistory will live for a generation or more, but only as an |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) EFERAMINATION OF Files, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 423 dan IN. IN. IN. BARKKER, (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BITAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS, Figuratings Lithographs, Plain and Cotobed, Pho- frames of all kinds, ST Fifth Avenne, 13 doors above Smitheded SL.) Pittsburgh, Pa. [maS 72;19 HOMES Still Larger FOR THE MILLIONI Rare opportunities are now offered for securing to react of their value five years bence. THE NATIONAL REAL ENTATE AddEncy with value and frait farms; rice, sugar and cot- tion the Middle and Southern States; improved with and mill sites, factories, &c. Write for Land Freiter containing description, locat- ting and mill sites, factories, &c. Write for Land Freiter and Minarea lands; city, traine, of the send of the sume of properiles we have bus and mill sites, factories, &c. Write for Land Register containing description, Doc the Middle and Southern States; improved "Mile and mill sites, factories, &c. Write for Land Register containing description, locat- tion, price and terms of properiles we have to take. Address- B. W. CLARKE & CO. The National Areal Estate Agency. The Address- B. W. CLARKE & CO. The Address - B. W. CLARKE & ST. (MUNTRY RESIDENCE FOR SALE | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, No. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. MANUTACTURENS OF TIN, COPPER, AND SHEET IRON WARE. DEALERS IN Stoves, Clothes Wringers, Cutlery, Bri- tannia and Block Tiu Ware, Enamel- ed Hollow Ware, Refrigerators, Ice Chests, Water Coolers, Ice Cream Freezers, Bird Cages, Gas Stoves, And House Furnishing Goods Generally; WHOLESALE AND RETAIL PROPRIETORS OF THE Patent Adjustable Stove Shelves, The most usefal Invention of the Age! Sole Agents for Spear's World-Renown- ed and Unrivaled | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Eric, Penna. Cash capital, | Thanking induction of other end of the fail of the public by close attention to bus antimp and of the same. BRIDGE ST., BALSON ATKE, PA. mar 34:11 CLOTHING STORE. NEW GOODS! WINTER STOCK. The undersigned takes pleasure in in- forming his friends and the public gener- ally that he has just received and opened A New Stock of Goods, OF THE LATEST STYLES FOR Fall and Winter Wear. He keeps the best of workmen in his employ, and feels confident of his ability to cut and make up garments both FASHIONABLE & DURABLE. and in such a manner as will please his customera. GENTLEMEN'S FURNISHING GOODS ALWAYS ON HAND. Call and see us before leaving your Orders Elsewhere | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear it; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no allusion to the circum- stances of the previous evening. In the afternoon they walked out to call at Mrs. Winthrop's, having an urg- ent invitation to visit them. They remained to tea, and spent the even- ing. Polly, of whom Mrs. Burnet had spoken, was Mrs. Winthrop's sister. She was a maiden lady, past three score, and had for many years found a home with her brother. Her head was now silvered, and time had drawn deep marks on her brow, but still there were traces of beauty left upon her face. During the evening she came and took a seat beside Louisa, and after some commonplace remarks, the old lady said, in a quiet way: "Your mother told me that you would like to hear a little of my life history," "If you would please tell it, I certainly should, for anything which you deem worthy of telling must be interesting," replied Louisa. "Then let us walk in the garden. | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. Do not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feaafully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way— he went another. All the next day I looked for him, but he did come. And a second day I watched; and a third, and a fourth. On the fifth day I received a letter from him. It was from a distance town whither he had gone to see his widowed mother. He wrote to me that he feared he had been disappointed. If I could trifle with his heart then I might do it again. He said he was going out west and might be gone some time If I still loved him when he return- ed, I might be sure of finding him unmarried, for he had no heart to give another. Still he would like to hear from me, he would like to hear if I wished it. He wrote as one who had been deeply wronged, and there were one or two sentences in the mis- eive that touched me unpleasantly. A week passed away, and I did not answer it; but at the end of that time I made up my mind to call George to me and confess my fault; for well I knew that 1 had been very wrong. I wrote, and my letter reached its | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- keepers, who knew what was going on, and had plenty of leisure. There was a troop of young men and young girls, sons and daughters, and it was known everywhere that White Ha- ven Farm was a good place to go to. Lieut. Grant was a frequent visitor, for he was always welcome on ac- count of his intimacy with Fred. Dent, his classmate, who is now the Lieutenant-Colonel of the 4th Artii- lery, stationed at: New London. The latter was never ordered to Fort Jefferson and never met Grant from the time of their graduation until after his marriage, although their close friendship has never been bro- ken. The betrothal of the young couple, about whom this sketch is written, occurred in 1843, at this same old hospitable mansion at White Haven Farm—a farm which, by the way, now belongs to Gen. Grant, and is one of the most valua- ble in the country, the whole extent of which is about a thousand acres. Soon after the engagement, the young officer of infantry was ordered | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a-state of seem- ing somnambulance. It is not at all necessary that the lady should be thrown into a mesmeric trance to elicit these powers. As in the case of the young man from Red Oak, simple contact with the party know- ing the secret work to be performed is sufficient. Mr. Frank I. Jervis, the editor of the Democrat , has test- ed the lady's occult faculty on sever- al occasions. Once in particular he placed his watch in a box, locked the box and put the key in a third par- ty's pocket, then placed the box in a basket, and after tying all the hard knots he could invent, hid it in an ad- jacent room, no one but himself be- ing cognizaat. He then resolved that the lady should discover that watch and place it in her husbanl's hands. He, without, intimating an idea of his desire, merely laid his hand gently upon the lady. She im- mediately closed her eyes, and glided rather than walked to the door of the room, opened it, went to the table, took up the basket, leisurely united the knots fook out the box, carried | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. , Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms—everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something—say organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albany—any- thing to get them to go away. We want rest. If it goes on so a day longer, we shall all fill our ears with putty, and go out into the fields to die. Help us! —Admiral Semmes, formerly the commander of the Alabama, made a speech defending his career in the Confederate service, at the meeting of the Southern Historical Society at Montgomery, White Sulphur Springs, Va., on Saturday. He maintained that the Alabama had warrants for all she did, and that her conduct was fully justified by that of the United States during the Revo- lution and the war of 1812. He de- nied burming ships without authority of law, the violation of his parole, and the carrying of foreigners on his ship. He also said that if the nation exists we will have but one history. Our Confederate shistory will live for a generation or more, but only as an episode in that of the country. Let |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) EFFERAMINATION OF Filles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 423 dm V. W. BARKEER, (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BITAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS, Proparings Lithographs, Plain and Cotored, Pho- frames of all kinds, ST Fifth Avenue, 13 doors above Smithfield SL, Pittsburgh Pa. [maST2:19 HOMES Still Larger FOR THE MILLIONI Rare opportunities are now offered for securing nor sin a mid. healthy, and congenital climate for une-third of their value five years bance. THE NATIONAL REAL ESTATE AGENCY is to vale real estate of every description, locat- tion the Middle and Southern States; improved and mill sites, factories, &c. Write for Land Frait farms; rice, sugar and col- time and mill sites, factories, &c. Write for Land frait farms; rice, sugar and col- time and mill sites, factories, &c. Write for Land frait farms; rice, sugar and stations; timber and minarea lands; city, indix and mill sites, factories, &c. Write for Land Register containing description, The Astional Real Estate Agency; The Astional Real Estate Agency; The Astional Real Estate Agency; The OPHILUS ROLLER, 150 OHIO STREET, ALLEGHENT CITY, PA, 1-, s to notify the trade and public generally that has opened the above business with a fine internal for sale by him. Send for Price List. 1-100 INTRY RESIDENCE FOR SALE SITUATED 1-3 MILE BELOW BEAVER, and having a delightal view of the Ohio river and having a delightal view of the Ohio river | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, No. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. MANUFACTURERS OF TIN, COPPER, AND SHEET IRON WARE. DEALERS IN Stoves, Clothes Wringers, Cutlery, Bri- tannia and Block Tiu Ware, Enamel- ed Hollow Ware, Refrigerators, Ice Chests, Water Coolers, Ice Cream Freezers, Bird Cages, Gas Stoves, And House Furnishing Goods Generally; WHOLESALE AND RETAIL PROPRIETORS OF THE Patent Adjustable Stove Shelves, The most usefal Invention of the Age! Sole Agents for Spear's World-Renown- | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Eric, Penna. Cash capital, | Thanking induction of the second seco | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear it; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no allusion to the circum- stances of the previous evening. In the afternoon they walked out to call at Mrs. Winthrop's, having an urg- ent invitation to visit them. They remained to tea, and spent the even- ing. Polly, of whom Mrs. Burnet had spoken, was Mrs. Winthrop's sister. She was a maiden lady, past three score, and had for many years found a home with her brother. Her head was now silvered, and time had drawn deep marks on her brow, but still there were traces of beauty left upon her face. During the evening she came and took a seat beside Louisa, and after some commonplace remarks, the old lady said, in a quiet way: "Your mother told me that you would like to hear a little of my life history." "If you would please tell it, I certainly should, for anything which you deem worthy of telling must be interesting," replied Louisa. "Then let us walk in the garden, The moon is up and the air is warm | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. Do not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feaafully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way— he went another. All the next day I looked for him, but he did come. And a second 'day I watched; and a third, and a fourth. On the fifth day I received a letter from him. It was from a distance town whither he had gone to see his widowed mother. He wrote to me that he feared he had been disappointed. If I could trifle with his heart then I might do it again. He sait he was going out west and might be gone some time If I still loved him when he return- ed, I might be sure of finding him unmarried, for he had no heart to give another. Still he would like to hear from me, he would like to hear if I wished it. He wrote as one who had been deeply wronged, and there were one or two sentences in the mis- eive that touched me unpleasantly. A week passed away, and I did not answer it; but at the end of that time I made up my mind to call George to me and confess my fauit; for well I knew that I had been very wrong. I wrote, and my letter reached its destination just twelve hours after he hed started on his journey. | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- keepers, who knew what was going on, and had plenty of leisure. There was a troop of young men and young girls, sons and daughters, and it was known everywhere that White Ha- ven Farm was a good place to go to. Lieut. Grant was a frequent visitor, for he was always welcome on ac- count of his intimacy with Fred. Dent, his classmate, who is now the Lieutenant-Colonel of the 4th Artil- lery, stationed at New London. The latter was never ordered to Fort Jefferson and never met Grant from the time of their graduation until after his marriage, although their close friendship has never been bro- ken. The betrothal of the young couple, about whom this sketch is written, occurred in 1843, at this same old hospitable mansion at White Haven Farm—a farm which, by the way, now belongs to Gen. Grant, and is one of the most valua- ble in the country, the whole extent of which is about a thousand acres. Soon after the engagement, the young officer of infantry was ordered to Natchitoches, La. The Mexican war, during which Grant won his | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a-state of seem- ing somnambulance. It is not at all necessary that the lady should be thrown into a mesmeric trance to elicit these powers. As in the case of the young man from Red Oak, simple contact with the party know- ing the secret work to be performed is sufficient. Mr. Frank I. Jervis, the editor of the Democrat , has test- ed the lady's occult faculty on sever- al occasions. Once in particular he placed his watch in a box, locked the box and put the key in a third par- ty's pocket, then placed the box in a basket, and after tying all the hard knots he could invent, hid it in an ad- jacent room, no one but himself be- ing cognizant. He then resolved that the lady should discover that watch and place it in her husband's hands. He, without, intimating an idea of his desire, merely laid his hand gently upon the lady. She im- mediately closed her eyes, and glided rather than walked to the door of the room, opened it, went to the table, took up the basket, leisurely united the knots, took out the box, carried it to the gentleman who had the key, which obtaining a be unlocked the | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. , Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms—everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something—say organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albany—any- thing to get them to go away. We want rest. If it goes on so a day longer, we shall all fill our ears with putty, and go out into the fields to die. Help us! —Admiral Semmes, formerly the commander of the Alabama, made a speech defending his career in the Confederate service, at the meeting of the Southern Historical Society at Montgomery, White Sulphur Springs, Va., on Saturday. He maintained that the Alabama had warrants for all she did, and that her conduct was fully justified by that of the United States during the Revo- lution and the war of 1812. He de- nied burming ships without authority of law, the violation of his parole, and the carrying of foreigners on his ship. He also said that if the nation exists we will have but one history. Cur Confederate shistory will live for a generation or more, but only as an episode in that of the country. Let us show magnanimity. If fame has |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) EFFERAMINATION OF Filles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 423 dm V. W. BARKEER, (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BITAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS, Proparings Lithographs, Plain and Cotored, Pho- frames of all kinds, ST Fifth Avenue, 13 doors above Smithfield SL, Pittsburgh Pa. [maST2:19 HOMES Still Larger FOR THE MILLIONI Rare opportunities are now offered for securing nor sin a mid. healthy, and congenital climate for une-third of their value five years bance. THE NATIONAL REAL ESTATE AGENCY is to vale real estate of every description, locat- tion the Middle and Southern States; improved and mill sites, factories, &c. Write for Land Frait farms; rice, sugar and col- time and mill sites, factories, &c. Write for Land frait farms; rice, sugar and col- time and mill sites, factories, &c. Write for Land frait farms; rice, sugar and stations; timber and minarea lands; city, indix and mill sites, factories, &c. Write for Land Register containing description, The Astional Real Estate Agency; The Astional Real Estate Agency; The Astional Real Estate Agency; The OPHILUS ROLLER, 150 OHIO STREET, ALLEGHENT CITY, PA, 1-, s to notify the trade and public generally that has opened the above business with a fine internal for sale by him. Send for Price List. 1-10UNTRY RESIDENCE FOR SALE SITUATED 1-3 MILE BELOW BEAVER, and having a delightal view of the Ohio river and having a collightal view of the Ohio river | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, No. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. MANUFACTURERS OF TIN, COPPER, AND SHEET IRON WARE. DEALERS IN Stoves, Clothes Wringers, Cutlery, Bri- tannia and Block Tiu Ware, Enamel- ed Hollow Ware, Refrigerators, Ice Chests, Water Coolers, Ice Cream Freezers, Bird Cages, Gas Stoves, And House Furnishing Goods Generally; WHOLESALE AND RETAIL PROPRIETORS OF THE Patens Adjustable Stove Shelves, The most usefal Invention of the Age! Sole Agents for Spear's World-Renown- ed and Unrivaled Anthracite Coal-Heating Stoves. | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Eric, Penna. Cash capital, | Thanking induction of the second seco | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear it; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no silusion to the circum- stances of the previous evening. In the afternoon they walked out to call at Mrs. Winthrop's, having an urg- ent invitation to visit them. They remained to tea, and spent the even- ing. Polly, of whom Mrs. Burnet had spoken, was Mrs. Winthrop's sister. She was a maiden lady, past three score, and had for many years found a home with her brother. Her head was now silvered, and time had drawn deep marks on her brow, but still there were traces of beauty left upon her face. During the evening she came and took a seat beside Louisa, and after some commonplace remarks, the old lady said, in a quiet way: "Your mother told me that you would like to hear a little of my life history," "If you would please tell it, I certainly should, for anything which you deem worthy of telling must be interesting," replied Louisa. "Then let us walk in the garden, The went ont, and when they | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. Do not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feaafully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way— he went another. All the next day I looked for him, but he did come. And a second 'day I watched; and a third, and a fourth. On the fifth day I received a letter from him. It was from a distance town whither he had gone to see his widowed mother. He wrote to me that he feared he had been disappointed. If I could trifle with his heart then I might do it again. He sait he was going out west and might be gone some time II i still loved him when he return- ed, I might be sure of finding him unmarried, for he had no heart to give another. Still he would like to hear from me, he would like to hear if I wished it. He wrote as one who had been deeply wronged, and there were one or two sentences in the mis- eive that touched me unpleasantly. A week passed away, and I did not answer it; but at the end of that time I made up my mind to call George to me and confess my fauit; for well I knew that I had been very wrong. I wrote, and my letter reached its destination just twelve hours after he had started on his journey. "I neversaw George Ashum again. | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- keepers, who knew what was going on, and had plenty of leisure. There was a troop of young men and young girls, sons and daughters, and it was known everywhere that White Ha- ven Farm Was a good place to go to. Lieut. Grant was a frequent visitor, for he was always welcome on ac- count of his intimacy with Fred. Dent, his classmate, who is now the Lieutenant-Colonel of the 4th Artil- lery, stationed at: New London. The latter was never ordered to Fort Jefferson and never met Grant from the time of their graduation until after his marriage, although their close friendship has never been bro- ken. The betrothal of the young couple, about whom this aketch is written, occurred in 1843, at this same old hospitable mansion at White Haven Farm—a farm which, by the way, now belongs to Gen. Grant, and is one of the most valua- ble in the country, the whole extent of which is about a thousand acres. Soon after the engagement, the young officer of infantry was ordered to Natchitoches, La. The Mexican war, during which Grant won his epaulets as Captain, soon followed, | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a-state of seem- ing somnambulance. It is not at all necessary that the lady should be thrown into a mesmeric trance to elicit these powers. As in the case of the young man from Red Oak, simple contact with the party know- ing the secret work to be performed is sufficient. Mr. Frank I. Jervis, the editor of the Democrat , has test- ed the lady's occult faculty on sever- al occasions. Once in particular he placed his watch in a box, locked the box and put the key in a third par- ty's pocket, then placed the box in a basket, and after tying all the hard knots he could invent, hid it in an ad- jacent room, no one but himself be- ing cognizant. He then resolved that the lady should discover that watch and place it in her husband's hands. He, without, intimating an idea of his desire, merely laid his hand gently upon the lady. She im- mediately closed her eyes, and glided rather than walked to the door of the room, opened it, went to the table, took up the basket, leisurely unied the knots, took out the box, carried it to the gentleman who had the key, which obtaining, she unlocked the box dest the watch, and, placing | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms—everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something—say organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albany—any- thing to get them to go away. We want rest. If it goes on so a day longer, we shall all fill our ears with putty, and go out into the fields to die. Help us! —Admiral Semmes, formerly the commander of the Alabama, made a speech defending his career in the Confederate service, at the meeting of the Southern Historical Society at Montgomery. White Sulphur Springs, Va., on Saturday. He maintained that the Alabama had warrants for all she did, and that her conduct was fully justified by that of the United States during the Revo- lution and the war of 1812. He de- nied burning ships without authority of law, the violation of his parole, and the carrying of foreigners on his ship. He also said that if the nation exists we will have but one history. Our Confederate shistory will live for a generation or more, but only as an episode in that of the country. Let us show magnanimity. If fame has been gained on either side, let us per- |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) EFFERAMINATION OF Files, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 4236m IV. W. BARKKER, (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BITAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS, Figuratings Lithographs, Plain and Cottbed, Pho- forgraphs, Passee Parionts, Mouldings and Picture traines of all kinds, ST Fifth Avenne, 13 doors above Smithed SL.) Pittsburgh, Pa. [maST2:19 HOMES Still Larger FOR THE MILLIONI Rare opportunities are now offered for securing more in a mid. healthy, and congenial climate for one-third of their vaue five years bence. THE NATIONAL REAL ESTATE AGENCY by to reale real estate of every deacription, locat- cies in a mid. healthy, and congenial climate for one-third of their vaue five years bence. THE NATIONAL REAL ESTATE AGENCY by to reale real estate of every deactifution, locat- cies in a mid. healthy, and congenial climate for one-third of their vaue five years bence. THE NATIONAL REAL ESTATE AGENCY by the real estate of every deactifution, locat- cies in a mid. healthy and congenial climate for and fruid fames, rice, sugar and col- time and fruid fames, rice, sugar and col- time and fruid fames, rice, sugar miles and mill sites, factories, &c. Write for Land Register containing description, the Address- B. W. CLARKE & CO. The National Areal Estate Agency. The Address- B. W. CLARKE & CO. The Astional Areal Estate Agency. The Astional Areal Estate Agency. The Astional Areal Estate Agency. His and full sites, factories is manufas- tra and for site by him. Send for Price List. AND OHIO STREET, ALLEGHENY GITY, PA., The to notify the trade and public generality that has opened the above business with a fine week of fartor Furnature as his specialty. His attent Reversable Spring Mattress is manufas- tra and for site by him. Send for Price List. SITUATED 14 MILE BELOW BEAVER, SITUATED 14 MILE BELOW BEAVER, SITUATED 14 MILE BELOW BEAVER, Sitt Areans a delightful view of th | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, No. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. MANUTACTURENS OF TIN, COPPER, AND SHEET IRON WARE. DEALERS IN Stoves, Clothes Wringers, Cutlery, Bri- tannia and Block Tiu Ware, Enamel- ed Hollow Ware, Refrigerators, Ice Chests, Water Coolers, Ice Cream Freezers, Bird Cages, Gas Stoves, And House Furnishing Goods Generally; WHOLESALE AND RETAIL PROPRIETORS OF THE Patent Adjustable Stove Shelves, The most usefal Invention of the Age! Sole Agents for Spear's World-Renown- ed and Unrivaled | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Eric, Penna. Cash capital, | Thanking induction of the second seco | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear it; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no silusion to the circum- stances of the previous evening. In the afternoon they walked out to call at Mrs. Winthrop's, having an urg- ent invitation to visit them. They remained to tea, and spent the even- ing. Polly, of whom Mrs. Burnet had spoken, was Mrs. Winthrop's sister. She was a maiden lady, past three score, and had for many years found a home with her brother. Her head was now silvered, and time had drawn deep marks on her brow, but still there were traces of beauty left upon her face. During the evening she came and took a seat beside Louisa, and after some commonplace remarks, the old lady said, in a quiet way: "Your mother told me that you would like to hear a little of my life history," "If you would please tell it, I certainly should, for anything which you deem worthy of telling must be interesting," replied Louisa. "Then let us walk in the garden, The went ont, and when they | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. Do not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feaafully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way— he went another. All the next day I looked for him, but he did come. And a second 'day I watched; and a third, and a fourth. On the fifth day I received a letter from him. It was from a distance town whither he had gone to see his widowed mother. He wrote to me that he feared he had been disappointed. If I could trifle with his heart then I might do it again. He sait he was going out west and might be gone some time II i still loved him when he return- ed, I might be sure of finding him unmarried, for he had no heart to give another. Still he would like to hear from me, he would like to hear if I wished it. He wrote as one who had been deeply wronged, and there were one or two sentences in the mis- eive that touched me unpleasantly. A week passed away, and I did not answer it; but at the end of that time I made up my mind to call George to me and confess my fauit; for well I knew that I had been very wrong. I wrote, and my letter reached its destination just twelve hours after he had started on his journey. "I neversaw George Ashum again. | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- keepers, who knew what was going on, and had plenty of leisure. There was a troop of young men and young girls, sons and daughters, and it was known everywhere that White Ha- ven Farm was a good place to go to. Lieut. Grant was a frequent visitor, for he was always welcome on ac- count of his intimacy with Fred. Dent, his classmate, who is now the Lieutenant-Colonel of the 4th Artii- lery, stationed at: New London. The latter was never ordered to Fort Jefferson and never met Grant from the time of their graduation until after his marriage, although their close friendship has never been bro- ken. The betrothal of the young couple, about whom this sketch is written, occurred in 1843, at this same old hospitable mansion at White Haven Farm—a farm which, by the way, now belongs to Gen. Grant, and is one of the most valua- ble in the country, the whole extent of which is about a thousand acres. Soon after the engagement, the young officer of infantry was ordered to Natchitoches, La. The Mexican war, during which Grant won his epaulets as Captain, soon followed, and it did not seem possible for the | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a-state of seem- ing somnambulance. It is not at all necessary that the lady should be thrown into a mesmeric trance to elicit these powers. As in the case of the young man from Red Oak, simple contact with the party know- ing the secret work to be performed is sufficient. Mr. Frank I. Jervis, the editor of the Democrat , has test- ed the lady's occult faculty on sever- al occasions. Once in particular he placed his watch in a box, locked the box and put the key in a third par- ty's pocket, then placed the box in a basket, and after tying all the hard knots he could invent, hid it in an ad- jacent room, no one but himself be- ing cognizaat. He then resolved that the lady should discover that watch and place it in her husbanl's hands. He, without, intimating an idea of his desire, merely laid his hand gently upon the lady. She im- mediately closed her eyes, and glided rather than walked to the door of the room, opened it, went to the table, took up the basket, leisurely untied the knots, took out the box, carried it to the gentleman who had the key, which obtaining, she unlocked the box, took out the watch, and, placing box, took out the watch, and, placing | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. , Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms—everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something—say organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albany—any- thing to get them to go away. We want rest. If it goes on so a day longer, we shall all fill our ears with putty, and go out into the fields to die. Help us! —Admiral Semmes, formerly the commander of the Alabama, made a speech defending his career in the Confederate service, at the meeting of the Southern Historical Society at Montgomery, White Sulphur Springs, Va., on Saturday. He maintained that the Alabama had warrants for all she did, and that her conduct was fully justified by that of the United States during the Revo- lution and the war of 1812. He de- nied burming ships without authority of law, the violation of his parole, and the carrying of foreigners on his ship. He also said that if the nation exists we will have but one history. Our Confederate bistory will live for a generation or more, but only as an episode in that of the country. Let us show magnanimity. If fame has been gained on either side, let us per- petuate it. Let us pursue that mod- erate course, and give credit where |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) EFE Examination of Fitles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 4236m IV. W. BARKEER , (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BETAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS , Pagaratings Lithographs, Plain and Colored, Pho- page 2019 , Passe Parionic, Monifolings and Picture Fraines of all kinds, 87 Fifth Avenne, 13 doors above Smithfield St. Phitburgh, Pa. [ma872;19 Homes Still Larger FOR THE MILLIONI Rare opportunities are now offered for securing homes in a midd, hallby, and congenial climate from estimate of their value five years bance. THE NATIONAL REAL ESTATE AGENCY The Mathed and Southern States; improved the Middle and Southern States; improved the Middle and Southern States; improved the Middle and Southern States; improved the Address - B. W. CLARKE & CO. The National Real Estate of properties we have write for Land Register containing description, wathen, price and terms of properties we have the Address - B. W. CLARKE & CO. The National Real Estate Agency. The Nation of properties with fine whether the versable Spring Mattress is manufa- red and for site by him. Send to Price List. 100 WINTRY RESIDENCE FOR SALE SITUATED 1-1 MILE BELOW BEAVER, Med having a delightful view of the Ohlo river and surrounding country; 1 mile from R. R. Sta- bion, home brick, two stories high, 4 rooms, atthe and surrounding country; 1 mile from R. R. Sta- bion, home brick, two stories high, 4 rooms, atthe and surrounding country; 1 mile from R. R. Sta- bion, home with cellar. Nice, analing | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, No. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. MANUFACTURERS OF TIN, COPPER, AND SHEET IRON WARE. DEALERS IN Stoves, Clothes Wringers, Cutlery, Bri- tannia and Block Tiu Ware, Enamel- ed Hollow Ware, Refrigerators, Ice Chests, Water Coolers, Ice Cream Freezers, Bird Cages, Gas Stoves, And House Furnishing Goods Generally; WHOLESALE AND RETAIL PROPRIETORS OF THE Patens Adjustable Stove Shelves, The most usefal Invention of the Age! Sole Agents for Spear's World-Renown- ed and Unrivaled Anthracite Coal-Heating Stoves. | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Eric, Penna. Cash capital, | Thanking induction of the second seco | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear it; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no allusion to the circum- stances of the previous evening. In the afternoon they walked out to call at Mrs. Winthrop's, having an urg- ent invitation to visit them. They remained to tea, and spent the even- ing. Pollý, of whom Mrs. Burnet had spoken, was Mrs. Winthrop's sister. She was a maiden lady, past three score, and had for many years found a home with her brother. Her head was now silvered, and time had drawn deep marks on her brow, but still there were traces of beauty left upon her face. During the evening she came and took a seat beside Louisa, and after some commonplace remarks, the old lady said, in a quiet way: "Your mother told me that you would like to hear a little of my life history," "If you would please tell it, I certainly should, for anything which you deem worthy of telling must be interesting," replied Louisa. "Then let us walk in the garden, The moon is up and the air is warm and pleasant." They went out, and when they had reached the grapery they went into the arbor and sat down. | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. Do not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feasfully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way— he went another. All the next day I looked for him, but he did come. And a second day I watched; and a third, and a fourth. On the fifth day I received a letter from him. It was from a distance town whither he had gone to see his widowed mother. He wrote to me that he feared he bad been disappointed. If I could trifle with his heart then I might do it again. He said he was going out west and might be gone some time If I still loved him when he return- ed, I might be sure of finding him unmarried, for he had no heart to give another. Still he would like to hear from me, he would like to hear if I wished it. He wrote as one who had been deeply wronged, and there were one or two sentences in the mis- eive that touched me unpleasantly. A week passed away, and I did not answer It; but at the end of that time I made up my mind to call George to me and confess my fauit; for well I knew that I had been very wrong. I wrote, and my letter reached its destination just twelve hours after he had started on his journey. "I neversaw George Ashum again. In less than a year he died in a mad- house! | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- keepers, who knew what was going on, and had plenty of leisure. There was a troop of young men and young girls, sons and daughters, and it was known everywhere that White Ha- ven Farm was a good place to go to. Lieut. Grant was a frequent visitor, for he was always welcome on ac- count of his intimacy with Fred. Dent, his classmate, who is now the Lieutenant-Colonel of the 4th Artil- lery, stationed at New London. The latter was never ordered to Fort Jefferson and never met Grant from the time of their graduation until after his marriage, although their close friendship has never been bro- ken. The betrothal of the young couple, about whom this sketch is written, occurred in 1843, at this same old hospitable mansion at White Haven Farm—a farm which, by the way, now belongs to Gen. Grant, and is one of the most valua- ble in the country, the whole extent of which is about a thousand acres. Soon after the engagement, the young officer of infantry was ordered to Natchitoches, La. The Mexican war, during which Grant won his epaulets as Captain, soon followed, and it did not seem possible for the young couple to be married until | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a-state of seem- ing somnambulance. It is not at all necessary that the lady should be thrown into a mesmeric trance to elicit these powers. As in the case of the young man from Red Oak, simple contact with the party know- ing the secret work to be performed is sufficient. Mr. Frank I. Jervis, the editor of the Democrat , has test- ed the lady's occult faculty on sever- al occasions. Once in particular he placed his watch in a box, locked the box and put the key in a third par- ty's pocket, then placed the box in a basket, and after tying all the hard knots he could invent, hid it in an ad- jacent room, no one but himself be- ing cognizant. He then resolved that the lady should discover that watch and place it in her husband's hands. He, without, intimating an idea of his desire, merely laid his hand gently upon the lady. She im- mediately closed her eyes, and glided rather than walked to the door of the room, opened it, went to the table, took up the basket, leisurely united the knots, took out the box, carried it to the gentleman who had the key, which obtaining, she unlocked the box, took out the watch, and, placing it in the hands of her husband, start- | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. , Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms—everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something—say organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albany—any- thing to get them to go away. We want rest. If it goes on so a day longer, we shall all fill our ears with putty, and go out into the fields to die. Help us! —Admiral Semmes, formerly the commander of the Alabama, made a speech defending his career in the Confederate service, at the meeting of the Southern Historical Society at Montgomery, White Sulphur Springs, Va., on Saturday. He maintained that the Alabama had warrants for all she did, and that her conduct was fully justified by that of the United States during the Revo- lution and the war of 1812. He de- nied burming ships without authority of law, the violation of his parole, and the carrying of foreigners on his ship. He also said that if the nation exists we will have but one history. Our Confederate bistory will live for a generation or more, but only as an episode in that of the country. Let us show magnanimity. If fame has been gained on either side, let us per- petuate it. Let us pursue that mod- erate course, and give credit where or dit is due. Ho was willing to be |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) EFE Examination of Fitles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 4236m IV. W. BARKKER , (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BITAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS , Proprarings Lithographs, Plain and Collided, Theory phase Parsons , Modelings and Picture Fraines of all kinds, ST Fith. Avenne, 13 doors above Smithfield St., Phitsburgh, Pa. [ma972;19 Homes Still Larger FOR THE MILLIONI Rare opportunities are now offered for securing homes in a midd, healthy , and congenial climate for one-third of their value five years bance. THE NATIONAL REAL ESTATE AGENCY White for Land Register containing description, in a did state for the states and out- ting and rural residence, and business in a with for Land Register containing description. In a didress - B. W. CLARKE & CO. The National Real Edited Agency . THEOPHILUS ROLLER, 100 OHIO STREET, ALLEGHENY CITY, PA, has opened the above business with a fine work of raise bay business with a fine work of raise bay business with a fine work of raise by him. Send for Price List. THEOPHILUS ROLLER, 100 OHIO STREET, ALLEGHENY CITY, PA, has opened the above business with a fine work of raise by him. Send for Price List. THEOTHY RESIDENCE FOR SALE NITATED 1-2 MILE BELOW BEAVER, and surg country; I mile from R. R. Sta- re dator stale by him. Send for Price List. Autonal geometry; I mile from R. R. Sta- re dator stale by him. Send for Price List. Autone, price and terma for the speciality. His is and for stale by him. Send for Price List. Autone, by the trade and public generally that has opened the above business with a fine where of Parlor Street, two States is manufac- are and for sale by him. Send for Price List. Autone by he first strees is manufac- are and for sale by him. Send for Price List. Autor of property, all well pathed; wash-house- are well of water at the kitchen door how horae at table with cellar. Nice, paling | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, No. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. MAXUFACTURENS OF TIN, COPPER, AND SHEET IRON WARE. DEALERS IN Stoves, Clothes Wringers, Cutlery, Bri- tannia and Block Tiu Ware, Enamel- ed Hollow Ware, Refrigerators, Ice Chests, Water Coolers, Ice Cream Freezers, Bird Cages, Gas Stoves, And House Furnishing Goods Generally; WHOLESALE AND RETAIL PROPRIETORS OF THE Patent Adjustable Stove Shelves, The most usefai Invention of the Age! Sole Agents for the Stoves, Coal-Heating Stoves, | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Eric, Penna. Cash capital, | Thanking induction of the second seco | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's tomorrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear lit; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no allusion to the circum- stances of the previous evening. In the afternoon they walked out to call at Mrs. Wintbrop's, having an urg- ent invitation to visit them. They remained to tea, and spent the even- ing. Polly, of whom Mrs. Burnet had spoken, was Mrs. Winthrop's sister. She was a maiden lady, past three score, and had for many years found a home with her brother. Her head was now silvered, and time had drawn deep marks on her brow, but still there were traces of beauty left upon her face. During the evening she came and took a seat beside Louisa, and after some commonplace remarks, the old lady said, in a quiet way: "Your mother told me that you would like to hear a little of my life history." "If you would please tell it, I certainly should, for anything which you deem worthy of telling must be interesting," replied Louisa. "Then let us walk in the garden. The moon is up and the air is warm and pleavant." They went out, and when they had reached the grapery they went into the arbor and sat down. "There is no need that I khould | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. Do not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feaafully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way— he went another. All the next day I looked for him, but he did come. And a second day I watched; and a third, and a fourth. On the fifth day I received a letter from him. It was from a distance town whither he had gone to see his widowed mother. He wrote to me that he feared he had been disappointed. If I could trifle with his heart then I might do it again. He said he was going out west and might be gone some time If I still loved him when he return- ed, I might be sure of finding him unmarried, for he had no heart to give another. Still he would like to hear if I wished it. He wrote as one who had been deeply wronged, and there were one or two sentences in the mis- eive that touched me unpleasantly. A week passed away, and I did not answer it; but at the end of that time I made up my mind to call George to me and confess my fault; for well I knew that I had been very wrong. I wrote, and my letter reached its destination just twelve hours after he had started on his journey. "I never saw George Ashum again. In less than a year he died in a mad- house! "He did wrong—he did wrong— | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- keepers, who knew what was going on, and had plenty of leisure. There was a troop of young men and young girls, sons and daughters, and it was known everywhere that White Ha- ven Farm was a good place to go to. Lieut. Grant was a frequent visitor, for he was always welcome on ac- count of his intimacy with Fred. Dent, his classmate, who is now the Lieutenant-Colonel of the 4th Artil- lery, stationed at New London. The latter was never ordered to Fort Jefferson and never met Grant from the time of their graduation until after his marriage, although their close friendship has never been bro- ken. The betrothal of the young couple, about whom this aketch is written, occurred in 1843, at this same old hospitable mansion at White Haven Farm—a farm which, by the way, now belongs to Gen. Grant, and is one of the most valua- ble in the country, the whole extent of which is about a thousand acres. Soon after the engagement, the young officer of infantry was ordered to Natchitoches, La. The Mexican war, during which Grant won his epaulets as Captain, soon followed, and it did not seem possible for the young couple to be married until 1848—five years of engagement !—a | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a-state of seem- ing somnambulance. It is not at all necessary that the lady should be thrown into a mesmeric trance to elicit these powers. As in the case of the young man from Red Oak, simple contact with the party know- ing the secret work to be performed is sufficient. Mr. Frank I. Jervis, the editor of the Democrat , has test- ed the lady's occult faculty on sever- al occasions. Once in particular he placed his watch in a box, locked the box and put the key in a third par- ty's pocket, then placed the box in a basket, and after tying all the hard knots he could invent, hid it in an ad- jacent room, no one but himself be- ing cognizaat. He then resolved that the lady should discover that watch and place it in her husband's hands. He, without, intimating an idea of his desire, merely laid his hand gently upon the lady. She im- mediately closed her eyes, and glided rather than walked to the door of the room, opened it, went to the table, took up the basket, leisurely unied the knots, took out the box, carried it to the gentleman who had the key, which obtaining, she unlocked the box, took out the watch, and, placing it in the hands of her husband, start- ed at once into the realization of hav- ing performed some involuntary act. | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms-everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something-say organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albany-any- thing to get them to go away. We want rest. If it goes on so a day longer, we shall all fill our ears with putty, and go out into the fields to die. Help us! -Admiral Semmes, formerly the commander of the Alabama, made a speech defending his career in the Confederate service, at the meeting of the Southern Historical Society at Montgomery. White Sulphur Springs, Va., on Saturday. He maintained that the Alabama had warrants for all she did, and that her conduct was fully justified by that of the United States during the Revo- lution and the war of 1812. He de- nied burning ships without authority of law, the violation of his parole, and the carrying of foreigners on his ship. He also said that if the nation exists we will have but one history. Our Confederate shistory will live for a generation or more, but only as an episode in that of the country. Let us show magnanimity. If fame has been gained on either side, let us per- petuate it. Let us pursue that mod- erade course, and give credit where credit is due. He was willing to be indeed by the standard of truth: and |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) EFE Examination of Fitles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 4236m IV. W. BARKKER , (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BITAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS , Progravings Lithographs, Plain and Collided , Pho- prophy , Passee Parionis, Mouldings and Picture Fraines of all kinds, ST Fifth Avenue, 13 doors above Smitheld St. Pittsburgh, Pa. [mas'72;19 HOMES Still Larger FOR THE MILLIONI Rare opportunities are now offered for securing homes in a midd, healthy , and congenial climate from the Middle and Southern. States : improved a state of their value five years bance. THE NATIONAL REAL ESTATE AGENCY Write for Land Register containing description, inside and southern States : improved and stars Pinna deruke Mashington, D. C. markitt New Ucholstering House . THEOPHILUS ROLLER. 100 OHIO STREET, ALLEGHENY CITY, PA, It is to notify the trade and public generality that has opened the above business with a fine work of sale reade the out of the second public generality that has opened the above business with a fine work of sale reade the above business with a fine work of sale reade is and public generality that has opened the above business with a fine work of farster by him. Send for Price List. THEOPHILUS ROLLER. 100 OHIO STREET, ALLEGHENY CITY, PA, It is to notify the trade and public generality that has opened the above business with a fine work of farster by him. Send for Price List. MUNTRY RESIDENCE FOR SALE NITATED 1-2 MILE BELOW BEAVER. Mid having a delightfal view of the Ohio river and surrounding country; i mile from H. R. Sta- inge-barde, we of other states is manifac- and to reside with cellar. Nice, paling four home is table with cellar. Nice, paling four home stable with cellar. Nice, paling four home of property, all well palined; good under home of property, all well palined; to do the home of on resendable terms. Apoly on the | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, No. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. MANUTACTURENS OF TIN, COPPER, AND SHEET IRON WARE. DEALERS IN Stoves, Clothes Wringers, Cutlery, Bri- tannia and Block Tiu Ware, Enamel- ed Hollow Ware, Refrigerators, Ice Chests, Water Coolers, Ice Cream Freezers, Bird Cages, Gas Stoves, And House Furnishing Goods Generally; WHOLESALE AND RETAIL PROPRIETORS OF THE Patent Adjustable Stove Shelves, The most usefal Invention of the Age! Sole Agents for Spear's World-Renown- ed and Unrivaled Antificatife Coal-Heating Stoves, Sole Agents for the Tom Thumb Carbon Oil Cook- ing Stove! | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Eric, Penna. Cash capital, | Thanking induction of the second seco | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear lit; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no allusion to the circum- stances of the previous evening. In the afternoon they walked out to call at Mrs. Winthrop's, having an urg- ent invitation to visit them. They remained to tea, and spent the even- ing. Pollý, of whom Mrs. Burnet had spoken, was Mrs. Winthrop's sister. She was a maiden lady, past three score, and had for many years found a home with her brother. Her head was now silvered, and time had drawn deep marks on her brow, but still there were traces of beauty left upon her face. During the evening she came and took a seat beside Louisa, and after some commonplace remarks, the old lady said, in a quiet way: "Your mother told me that you would like to hear a little of my life history." "If you would please tell it, I certainly should, for anything which you deem worthy of telling must be interesting," replied Louisa. "Then let us walk in the garden. The moon is up and the air is warm and pleasant." "There is no need that I zhould make any nelliminary remarks." | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. Do not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feaafully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way— he went another. All the next day I looked for him, but he did come. And a second day I watched; and a third, and a fourth. On the fifth day I received a letter from him. It was from a distance town whither he had gone to see his widowed mother. He wrote to me that he feared he bad been disappointed. If I could trifle with his heart then I might do it again. He sait he was going out west and might be gone some time If I still loved him when he return- ed, I might be sure of finding him unmarried, for he had no heart to give another. Still he would like to hear from me, he would like to hear if I wished it. He wrote as one who had been deeply wronged, and there were one or two sentences in the mis- sive that touched me unpleasantly. A week passed away, and I did not answer It; but at the end of that time I made up my mind to call George to me and confess my fauit; for well I knew that I had been very wrong. I wrote, and my letter reached its destination just twelve hours after he had started on his journey. "I never saw George Ashum again. In less than a year he died in a mad- house! "He did wrong—he did wrong— very, very wrong—to leave me as he | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- kcepers, who knew what was going on, and had plenty of leisure. There was a troop of young men and young girls, sons and daughters, and it was known everywhere that White Ha- ven Farm was a good place to go to. Lieut. Grant was a frequent visitor, for he was always welcome on ac- count of his intimacy with Fred. Dent, his classmate, who is now the Lieutenant-Colonel of the 4th Artil- lery, stationed at: New London. The latter was never ordered to Fort Jefferson and never met Grant from the time of their graduation until after his marriage, although their close friendship has never been bro- ken. The betrothal of the young couple, about whom this aketch is written, occurred in 1843, at this same old hospitable mansion at White Haven Farm—a farm which, by the way, now belongs to Gen. Grant, and is one of the most valua- ble in the country, the whole extent of which is about a thousand acres. Soon after the engagement, the young officer of infantry was ordered to Natchitoches, La. The Mexican war, during which Grant won his epaulets as Captain, soon followed, and it did not seem possible for the young couple to be married until 1848—five years of engagement!—a lesson of constancy rarely taught. The marriage occurred at Mr. | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a-state of seem- ing somnambulance. It is not at all necessary that the lady should be thrown into a mesmeric trance to elicit these powers. As in the case of the young man from Red Oak, simple contact with the party know- ing the secret work to be performed is sufficient. Mr. Frank I. Jervis, the editor of the Democrat , has test- ed the lady's occult faculty on sever- al occasions. Once in particular he placed his watch in a box, locked the box and put the key in a third par- ty's pocket, then placed the box in a basket, and after tying all the hard knots he could invent, hid it in an ad- jacent room, no one but himself be- ing cognizant. He then resolved that the lady should discover that watch and place it in her husband's hands. He, without, intimating an idea of his desire, merely laid his hand gently upon the lady. She im- mediately closed her eyes, and glided rather than walked to the door of the room, opened it, went to the table, took up the basket, leisurely united the knots, took out the box, carried it to the gentleman who had the key, which obtaining, she unlocked the box, took out the watch, and, placing it in the hands of her husband, start- ed at once into the realization of hav- ing performed some involuntary act. This lady is susceptible to the influ- | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. , Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms—everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something—say organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albany—any- thing to get them to go away. We want rest. If it goes on so a day longer, we shall all fill our ears with putty, and go out into the fields to die. Help us! —Admiral Semmes, formerly the commander of the Alabama, made a speech defending his career in the Confederate service, at the meeting of the Southern Historical Society at Montgomery. White Sulphur Springs, Va., on Saturday. He maintained that the Alabama had warrants for all she did, and that her conduct was fully justified by that of the United States during the Revo- lution and the war of 1812. He de- nied burning ships without authority of law, the violation of his parole, and the carrying of foreigners on his ship. He also said that if the nation exists we will have but one history. Our Confederate shistory will live for a generation or more, but only as an episode in that of the country. Left us show magnanimity. If fame has been gained on either side, let us per- petuate it. Let us pursue that mod- erate course, and give credit where credit is due. He was willing to be judged by the standard of truth; and willing to leave his history and that |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) EFE Examination of Fitles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 4236m V. W. BARKKER , (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BITAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS , Progravings Lithographs, Plain and Colored, Pho- phands, Passe Parionis, Monifolings and Picture Fraines of all kinds, ST Fifth Avenne, 13 doors above Smithfield St. Pittsburgh, Pa. [maS'72;19 Homes Still Larger FOR THE MILLIONI Rare opportunities are now offered for securing homes in a mild, healthy, and congenial climate for one-third of their value five years bance. THE NATIONAL REAL ESTATE AGENCY he main and frait farms; rice, sygar and col- tor value real estate of every dearch locat- dent in the Middle and Southern States; improved the for Land Repister containing description, instein, price and terms of properties we have the soluces. The varional Register containing description. The Varional Real Estate Agency. The National Real Estate Agency. The Nation of property, all mished watch houses when and the state will be the solution the form the solution for solution the trade and public generally that the other Agency will be the solution of property, all well patiet. Note that a stable will be from R. R. Sta- tonke-house, well of water at the kilter adoor, the mater of property, a | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, No. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. MAXUFACTURENS OF TIN, COPPER, AND SHEET IRON WARE. DEALERS IN Stoves, Clothes Wringers, Cutlery, Bri- tannia and Block Tiu Ware, Enamel- ed Hollow Ware, Refrigerators, Ice Chests, Water Coolers, Ice Cream Freezers, Bird Cages, Gas Stoves, And House Furnishing Goods Generally; WHOLESALE AND RETAIL PROPRIETORS OF THE Patent Adjustable Stove Shelves, The most usefai Invention of the Age! Sole Agents for Spear's World-Renown- ed and Unrivaled Anthracite Coal-Heating Stoves, Sole Agents for the Tom Thumb Carbon Oil Cook- ing Stove! This little Stove is the Wonder of the | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Eric, Penna. Cash capital, | Thankful to the orbits' END OF ALL ADDRESS IN A CLOTHING STORE. DAN | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear lit; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no allusion to the circum- stances of the previous evening. In the afternoon they walked out to call at Mrs. Winthrop's, having an urg- ent invitation to visit them. They remained to tea, and spent the even- ing. Polly, of whom Mrs. Burnet had spoken, was Mrs. Winthrop's sister. She was a maiden lady, past three score, and had for many years found a home with her brother. Her head was now silvered, and time had drawn deep marks on her brow, but still there were traces of beauty left upon her face. During the evening she came and took a seat beside Louisa, and after some commonplace remarks, the old lady said, in a quiet way: "Your mother told me that you would like to hear a little of my life history," "If you would please tell it, I certainly should, for anything which you deem worthy of telling must be interesting," replied Louisa. "Then let us walk in the garden, They went out, and when they had reached the grapery they went into the arbor and sat down. "There is no need that I Ehould make any preliminary remarks," continued Poliv, for I have come out | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. Do not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feaafully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way— he went another. All the next day I looked for him, but he did come. And a second day I watched; and a third, and a fourth. On the fifth day I received a letter from him. It was from a distance town whither he had gone to see his widowed mother. He wrote to me that he feared he had been disappointed. If I could trifle with his heart then I might do it again. He said he was going out west and might be gone some time If I still loved him when he return- ed, I might be sure of finding him unmarried, for he had no heart to give another. Still he would like to hear from me, he would like to hear if I wished it. He wrote as one who had been deeply wronged, and there were one or twosentences in the mis- eive that touched me unpleasantly. A week passed away, and I did not answer it; but at the end of that time I made up my mind to call George to me and confess my fault; for well I knew that 1 had been very wrong. I wrote, and my letter reached its destination just twelve hours after he had started on his journey. "I neversaw George Ashum again. In less than a year he died in a mad- house! "He did wrong—he did wrong— very, very wrong—to leave me as he did. He ought not to have done it. | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- keepers, who knew what was going on, and had plenty of leisure. There was a troop of young men and young girls, sons and daughters, and it was known everywhere that White Ha- ven Farm was a good place to go to. Lieut. Grant was a frequent visitor, for he was always welcome on ac- count of his intimacy with Fred. Dent, his classmate, who is now the Lieutenant-Colonel of the 4th Artil- lery, stationed at New London. The latter was never ordered to Fort Jefferson and never met Grant from the time of their graduation until after his marriage, although their close friendship has never been bro- ken. The betrothal of the young couple, about whom this sketch is written, occurred in 1843, at this same old hospitable mansion at White Haven Farm—a farm whieh, by the way, now belongs to Gen. Grant, and is one of the most valua- ble in the country, the whole extent of which is about a thousand acres. Soon after the engagement, the young officer of infantry was ordered to Natchitoches, La. The Mexican war, during which Grant won his epaulets as Captain, soon followed, and it did not seem possible for the young couple to be married until 1848—five years of engagement!—a lesson of constancy rarely taught. The marriage occurred at Mr. Dent's city residence on Fourth st. | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a-state of seem- ing somnambulance. It is not at all necessary that the lady should be thrown into a mesmeric trance to elicit these powers. As in the case of the young man from Red Oak, simple contact with the party know- ing the secret work to be performed is sufficient. Mr. Frank I. Jervis, the editor of the Democrat , has test- ed the lady's occult faculty on sever- al occasions. Once in particular he placed his watch in a box, locked the box and put the key in a third par- ty's pocket, then placed the box in a basket, and after tying all the hard knots he could invent, hid it in an ad- jacent room, no one but himself be- ing cognizant. He then resolved that the lady should discover that watch and place it in her husband's hands. He, without, intimating an idea of his desire, merely laid his hand gently upon the lady. She im- mediately closed her eyes, and glided rather than walked to the door of the room, opened it, went to the table, took up the basket, leisurely united the knots, took out the box, carried it to the gentleman who had the key, which obtaining, she unlocked the box, took out the watch, and, placing it in the hands of her husband, start- ed at once into the realization of hav- ing performed some involuntary act. This lady is susceptible to the influ- ence at all times and from any friend- | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. , Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms—everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something—say organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albany—any- thing to get them to go away. We want rest. If it goes on so a day longer, we shall all fill our ears with putty, and go out into the fields to die. Help us! —Admiral Semmes, formerly the commander of the Alabama, made a speech defending his career in the Confederate service, at the meeting of the Southern Historical Society at Montgomery, White Sulphur Springs, Va., on Saturday. He maintained that the Alabama had warrants for all she did, and that her conduct was fully justified by that of the United States during the Revo- lution and the war of 1812. He de- nied burning ships without authority of law, the violation of his parole, and the carrying of foreigners on his ship. Ho also said that if the nation exists we will have but one history. England has but one history. Our Confederate-bistory will live for a generation or more, but only as an episode in that of the country. Let us show magnanimity. If fame has been gained on either side, let us per- petuate it. Let us pursue that mod- erate course, and give credit where credit is due. He was willing to be judged by the standard of truth; and willing to leave his history and that of the Alabama, the Florida, and |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) EFE Examination of Fitles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 4236m V. W. BARKEER , (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BITAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS , Pagaratings Lithographs, Pain and Colored, Pho- papers, Passe Parionis, Monifolings and Picture Fraines of all kinds, ST Fifth Avenne, 13 doors above Smithfield St. Pittsburgh, Pa. [maST2;19] Homes Still Larger FOR THE MILLIONI Rare opportunities are now offered for securing homes in a mild, healthy, and congenial climate from set of their value for years bance. THE NATIONAL REAL ESTATE AGENCY in the Middle and Southern States; improved the for Land Arali farms; rice, vagar and col- toring and fruit farms; rice, vagar and col- toring and fruit farms interval lands; city, thinge, and trund residence, and business in and the Middle and Southern States; improved the for Land Repister containing description. The National Real Estate of properties we have the sale. Address – B. W. CLARNE & CO. The Varional Real Estate Agency. The Optimis and trunt of properties we have the sale. Address – B. W. CLARNE & CO. The National Real Estate Agency. The Optimis and terms of properties we have the sale. Address – B. W. CLARNE & CO. The National Real Estate Agency. The Contain Real Estate Agency. The Optimis Streng Matters in manufas- red and for sale by him. Send for Price List. 100 OHIO STREET, ALLEGHENY CITY, PA., 100 OHIO STREET, ALLEGHENY CITY, PA., 101 NTRY RESIDENCE FOR SALE SITUATED 1-2 MILE BELOW BEAVER. SITUATED 1-2 MILE BELOW BEAVER. SITUATED 1-3 MILE BELOW BEAVER. Mid having a delightful view of the Ohio river and etable spring Matters is manufas- ind controproperty, all well painted; good when borne, two stories high, 4 nome, all there is a classe of the clist, wash-house- moke-house, well of water at the kiltchen door, there is a classe of the clist. State, all finished; wash-house- moke-house, well of  | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, No. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. MANUTACTURENS OF TIN, COPPER, AND SHEET IRON WARE. DEALERS IN Stoves, Clothes Wringers, Cutlery, Bri- tannia and Block Tiu Ware, Enamel- ed Hollow Ware, Refrigerators, Ice Chests, Water Coolers, Ice Cream Freezers, Bird Cages, Gas Stoves, And House Furnishing Goods Generally; WHOLESALE AND RETAIL PROPRIETORS OF THE Patent Adjustable Stove Shelves, The most usefal Invention of the Age! Sole Agents for Spear's World-Renown- ed and Unrivaled Antificatife Coal-Heating Stoves, Sole Agents for the Tom Thumb Carbon Oil Cook- ing Stove! | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Erie, Penna. Cash capital, | Thankful to the public by close attention to bus and of the same. DANR. BRIDOR ST. BALSON ATER, PA. MAT 34:11 CLOTHING STORE. NEW GOODS! WINTER STOCK. The undersigned takes pleasure in in- forming his friends and the public gener- ally that he has just received and opened A New Stock of Goods, OF THE LATEST STY LES FOR Fall and Winter Wear. He keeps the best of workmen in his employ, and feels confident of his ability to cut and make up garments both. FASHIONABLE & DURABLE. and in such a manner as will please his customera. GENTLEMEN'S FURNISHING GOODS ALWAYS ON HAND. Cull and see us before leaving your Orders Elsewhere WILLIAM HEICH. Jr. may4;70:19 Kanufacturer of the Celebrated | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear it; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no allusion to the circum- stances of the previous evening. In the afternoon they walked out to call at Mrs. Winthrop's, having an urg- ent invitation to visit them. They remained to tea, and spent the even- ing. Pollý, of whom Mrs. Burnet had spoken, was Mrs. Winthrop's sister. She was a maiden lady, past three score, and had for many years found a home with her brother. Her head was now silvered, and time had drawn deep marks on her brow, but still there were traces of beauty left upon her face. During the evening she came and took a seat beside Louisa, and after some commonplace remarks, the old lady said, in a quiet way: "Your mother told me that you would like to hear a little of my life history," "If you would please tell it, I certainly should, for anything which you deem worthy of telling must be interesting," replied Louisa. "Then let us walk in the garden. The moon is up and the air is warm and pleasant." They went out, and when they had reached the grapery they went into the arbor and sat down. "There is no need that I knould make any preliminary remarks," continued Polly, for I have come out on | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. Do not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feaafully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way— he went another. All the next day I looked for him, but he did come. And a second day I watched; and a third, and a fourth. On the fifth day I received a letter from him. It was from a distance town whither he had gone to see his widowed mother. He wrote to me that he feared he had been disappointed. If I could trifle with his heart then I might do it again. He said he was going out west and might be gone some time If I still loved him when he return- ed, I might be sure of finding him unmarried, for he had no heart to give another. Still he would like to hear if I wished it. He wrote as one who had been deeply wronged, and there were one or two sentences in the mis- eive that touched me unpleasantly. A week passed away, and I did not answer it; but at the end of that time I made up my mind to call George to me and confess my fault; for well I knew that I had been very wrong. I wrote, and my letter reached its destination just twelve hours after he had started on his journey. "I never saw George Ashum again. In less than a year he died in a mad- house! "He did wrong—he did wrong— very, very wrong—to leave me as he did. He ought not to have done it. He ought to have made an effort—for | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- keepers, who knew what was going on, and had plenty of leisure. There was a troop of young men and young girls, sons and daughters, and it was known everywhere that White Ha- ven Farm was a good place to go to. Lieut. Grant was a frequent visitor, for he was always welcome on ac- count of his intimacy with Fred. Dent, his classmate, who is now the Lieutenant-Colonel of the 4th Artil- lery, stationed at: New London. The latter was never ordered to Fort Jefferson and never met Grant from the time of their graduation until after his marriage, although their close friendship has never been bro- ken. The betrothal of the young couple, about whom this aketch is written, occurred in 1843, at this same old hospitable mansion at White Haven Farm—a farm which, by the way, now belongs to Gen. Grant, and is one of the most valua- ble in the country, the whole extent of which is about a thousand acres. Soon after the engagement, the young officer of infantry was ordered to Natchitoches, La. The Mexican war, during which Grant won his epaulets as Captain, soon followed, and it did not seem possible for the young couple to be married until 1848—five years of engagement!—a lesson of constancy rarely taught. The marriage occurred at Mr. Dent's city residence on Fourth st., St. Louis, at about 8 o'oclock in the | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a-state of seem- ing somnambulance. It is not at all necessary that the lady should be thrown into a mesmeric trance to elicit these powers. As in the case of the young man from Red Oak, simple contact with the party know- ing the secret work to be performed is sufficient. Mr. Frank I. Jervis, the editor of the Democrat , has test- ed the lady's occult faculty on sever- al occasions. Once in particular he placed his watch in a box, locked the box and put the key in a third par- ty's pocket, then placed the box in a basket, and after tying all the hard knots he could invent, hid it in an ad- jacent room, no one but himself be- ing cognizaat. He then resolved that the lady should discover that watch and place it in her husband's hands. He, without, intimating an idea of his desire, merely laid his hand gently upon the lady. She im- mediately closed her eyes, and glided rather than walked to the door of the room, opened it, went to the table. took up the basket, leisurely unied the knots, took out the box, carried it to the gentleman who had the key, which obtaining, she unlocked the box, took out the watch, and, placing it in the hands of her husband, start- ed at once into the realization of hav- ing performed some involuntary act. This lady is susceptible to the influ- ence at all times and from any friend- ly hand, so that mesmeric power | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. , Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms—everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something—say organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albany—any- thing to get them to go away. We want rest. If it goes on so a day longer, we shall all fill our ears with putty, and go out into the fields to die. Help us! —Admiral Semmes, formerly the commander of the Alabama, made a speech defending his career in the Confederate service, at the meeting of the Southern Historical Society at Montgomery, White Sulphur Springs, Va., on Saturday. He maintained that the Alabama had warrants for all she did, and that her conduct was fully justified by that of the United States during the Revo- lution and the war of 1812. He de- nied burming ships without authority of law, the violation of his parole, and the carrying of foreigners on his ship. He also said that if the nation exists we will have but one history. Our Confederate bistory will live for a generation or more, but only as an episode in that of the country. Let us show magnanimity. If fame has been gained on either side, let us per- petuate it. Let us pursue that mod- erate course, and give credit where credit is due. He was willing to be judged by the standard of truth; and willing to leave his history and that of the Alabama, the Florida, and Shenandoah to be written when there |
| (Opposite Cathedral.) EFE Examination of Fitles, Collection of Claims and all other Legal Business entrusted to my care will receive prompt attention. 4236m V. W. BARKKER , (Successor to Barker & Haseltine.) WHOLESALE AND BITAIL DEALER IN CHROMO LITHOGRAPHS , Progravings Lithographs, Plain and Colored, Pho- phands, Passe Parionis, Monifolings and Picture Fraines of all kinds, ST Fifth Avenne, 13 doors above Smithfield St. Pittsburgh, Pa. [maS'72;19 Homes Still Larger FOR THE MILLIONI Rare opportunities are now offered for securing homes in a mild, healthy, and congenial climate for one-third of their value five years bance. THE NATIONAL REAL ESTATE AGENCY he main and frait farms; rice, sygar and col- tor value real estate of every dearch locat- dent in the Middle and Southern States; improved the for Land Repister containing description, instein, price and terms of properties we have the soluces. The varional Register containing description. The Varional Real Estate Agency. The National Real Estate Agency. The Nation of property, all mished watch houses when and the state will be the solution the form the solution for solution the trade and public generally that the other Agency will be the solution of property, all well patiet. Note that a stable will be from R. R. Sta- tonke-house, well of water at the kilter adoor, the mater of property, a | and varied stock of Hardware and Cut- lery, suitable for the trade, at greatly re- duced rates. jy2-1y Demmler Rrothers, No. 126 Smithfield street, PITTSBURGH, PA. MANUFACTURENS OF TIN, COPPER, AND SHEET IRON WARE. DEALENS IN Stoves, Clothes Wringers, Cutlery, Bri- tannia and Block Tiu Ware, Enamel- ed Hollow Ware, Refrigerators, Ice Chests, Water Coolers, Ice Cream Freezers, Bird Cages, Gas Stoves, And House Furnishing Goods Generally; WHOLESALE AND RETAIL PROPRIETORS OF THE Patent Adjustable Stove Shelves, The most usefal Invention of the Age! Sole Agents for Spear's World-Renown- ed and Unrivaled Antificatite Coal-Heating Stoves, Sole Agents for the Tom Thumb Carbon Oil Cook- ing Stove! | Agency. ALPS INSURANCE CO., Of Eric, Penna. Cash capital, | Thanking in the two of order to the first of the families of the game. DAN | with anything rather than the heart. We are going te Mr. Winthrop's to- morrow, and I hope I may induce Polly to tell you a little story of her experience in life." Louisa said she should be very glad to hear it; then she tried to laugh; and then, having told her mother once more that she was needlessly anxious, she went to her chamber. On the following morning Mrs. Burnet met her daughter, as usual, making no allusion to the circum- stances of the previous evening. In the afternoon they walked out to call at Mrs. Winthrop's, having an urg- ent invitation to visit them. They remained to tea, and spent the even- ing. Polly, of whom Mrs. Burnet had spoken, was Mrs. Winthrop's sister. She was a maiden lady, past three score, and had for many years found a home with her brother. Her head was now silvered, and time had drawn deep marks on her brow, but still there were traces of beauty left upon her face. During the evening she came and took a seat beside Louisa, and after some commonplace remarks, the old lady said, in a quiet way: "Your mother told me that you would like to hear a little of my life history." "If you would please tell it, I certainly should, for anything which you deem worthy of telling must be interesting," replied Louisa. "Then let us walk in the garden. The moon is up and the air is warm and pleasant." They went out, and when they had reached the grapery they went into the arbor and sat down. "There is no need that I zhould make any preliminary remarks," continued Polly, for I have come out on purpose to tell you a short story, and I shall tell it to you as plainly | felt bound to make the offer, seeing he had brought me there. I was not going to accept any such offer as that and I told him I should not require his attention. "Polly," he said, "you do not mean this. Do not make me think that I have mistaken you. He trembled as he spoke and I could see that he was feaafully agitated. "But I had gone too far to give up then and with a light laugh I turned from him. I went home one way— he went another. All the next day I looked for him, but he did come. And a second day I watched; and a third, and a fourth. On the fifth day I received a letter from him. It was from a distance town whither he had gone to see his widowed mother. He wrote to me that he feared he had been disappointed. If I could trifle with his heart then I might do it again. He said he was going out west and might be gone some time If I still loved him when he return- ed, I might be sure of finding him unmarried, for he had no heart to give another. Still he would like to hear if I wished it. He wrote as one who had been deeply wronged, and there were one or two sentences in the mis- eive that touched me unpleasantly. A week passed away, and I did not answer it; but at the end of that time I made up my mind to call George to me and confess my fault; for well I knew that I had been very wrong. I wrote, and my letter reached its destination just twelve hours after he had started on his journey. "I never saw George Ashum again. In less than a year he died in a mad- house! "He did wrong—he did wrong— very, very wrong—to leave me as he did. He ought not to have done it. He ought to have made an effort—for | being large and capacious, and there was always in those old days of sla- very an army of servants about the house. It was the most hospita ble place in the whole country around, and was never without guests. Mr. Dent was in affluent circumstance, for in those years it was not needed that a man should be worth from one to a hundred millions in order to be rich. His wife liked company and was of the old order of house- kcepers, who knew what was going on, and had plenty of leisure. There was a troop of young men and young girls, sons and daughters, and it was known everywhere that White Ha- ven Farm was a good place to go to. Lieut. Grant was a frequent visitor, for he was always welcome on ac- count of his intimacy with Fred. Dent, his classmate, who is now the Lieutenant-Colonel of the 4th Artil- lery, stationed at: New London. The latter was never ordered to Fort Jefferson and never met Grant from the time of their graduation until after his marriage, although their close friendship has never been bro- ken. The betrothal of the young couple, about whom this aketch is written, occurred in 1843, at this same old hospitable mansion at White Haven Farm—a farm which, by the way, now belongs to Gen. Grant, and is one of the most valua- ble in the country, the whole extent of which is about a thousand acres. Soon after the engagement, the young officer of infantry was ordered to Natchitoches, La. The Mexican war, during which Grant won his epaulets as Captain, soon followed, and it did not seem possible for the young couple to be married until 1848—five years of engagement!—a lesson of constancy rarely taught. The marriage occurred at Mr. Dent's city residence on Fourth st. | in noticing the report of the perform- ances of J. R. Brown, lately pub- lished in the Chicago newspapers, says that a highly educated and re- fined lady of that city, Mrs. Bleik Peters, possesses the same remarka- ble powers. Though adverse to ex- hibiting her peculiar psychic state, she occasionally astonishes her friends by performing the most mar- velous feats while in a-state of seem- ing somnambulance. It is not at all necessary that the lady should be thrown into a mesmeric trance to elicit these powers. As in the case of the young man from Red Oak, simple contact with the party know- ing the secret work to be performed is sufficient. Mr. Frank I. Jervis, the editor of the Democrat , has test- ed the lady's occult faculty on sever- al occasions. Once in particular he placed his watch in a box, locked the box and put the key in a third par- ty's pocket, then placed the box in a basket, and after tying all the hard knots he could invent, hid it in an ad- jacent room, no one but himself be- ing cognizaat. He then resolved that the lady should discover that watch and place it in her husband's hands. He, without, intimating an idea of his desire, merely laid his hand gently upon the lady. She im- mediately closed her eyes, and glided rather than walked to the door of the room, opened it, went to the table. took up the basket, leisurely unied the knots, took out the box, carried it to the gentleman who had the key, which obtaining, she unlocked the box, took out the watch, and, placing it in the hands of her husband, start- ed at once into the realization of hav- ing performed some involuntary act. This lady is susceptible to the influ- ence at all times and from any friend- ly hand, so that mesmeric power | from morning till night he is to be seen passing his hat. He receives nothing but five dollar-bills. , Or- gan-grinders sleep in the newspaper offices, at the depot, in the ball- rooms—everywhere. No one knows what will be the result. We trem- ble at the thought of terrible things to come. Not an army with ban- ners, but an army with organs. Can you not help us? With tears in our eyes we beg you to do something—say organ-grinders make $30 a day in Albany—any- thing to get them to go away. We want rest. If it goes on so a day longer, we shall all fill our ears with putty, and go out into the fields to die. Help us! —Admiral Semmes, formerly the commander of the Alabama, made a speech defending his career in the Confederate service, at the meeting of the Southern Historical Society at Montgomery, White Sulphur Springs, Va., on Saturday. He maintained that the Alabama had warrants for all she did, and that her conduct was fully justified by that of the United States during the Revo- lution and the war of 1812. He de- nied burming ships without authority of law, the violation of his parole, and the carrying of foreigners on his ship. He also said that if the nation exists we will have but one history. Our Confederate bistory will live for a generation or more, but only as an episode in that of the country. Let us show magnanimity. If fame has been gained on either side, let us per- petuate it. Let us pursue that mod- erate course, and give credit where eredit is due. He was willing to be judged by the standard of truth; and willing to leave his history and that of the Alabama, the Florida, and Shenandoah to be written when there will be cherished no more North, no |

| Wanted immediately, four active, enorgetic mention of a star a dentis for the "NEW" WHEELEB & WILSON SEWING MACHINE; in this county. The such ment as can give good reference as a formation of the second record of the success of liberate and a billity, and furnish a Boad need the second record of the second record record | Hardware, Glass, Straw. RAG AND CARPET PAPEIRS , MANUFACTURED And Sold At Wholesale & Betail by Frazier, Metzger & Co | SIGNAL OILS. Prepared under a new Process, withou the use of Chemicals. POINT OIL WORKS SMITH'S FERRY, | and my mind, value, it mey mind, it mey that it mey that it mey that it mey make the proud of value. I knew that it mey means to be thoughtless where it mesh to be the part in the part it mey mind to the part of the part in the part it mey mind to the part of the part in the part it mey mind to the part of the par | |
|---|--|--|---|--|
| | • | | | |