The Loomis Aerial Telegraph.

The bill incorporating the Loomis Aerial Telegraph Company was finally passed by the Senate on Thursday, and with the signature of the President will become a law. This aerial telegraph scheme is a novel thing. The plan of Dr. Loomis, the inventor, is to telegraph from a high peak of the Rocky Mountains to the highest attainable peak of the Alps, at which point a tower is to be erected, on the top of which a huge mast is to be placed. An apparatus capable of collecting electricity is to be put upon the upper end of this mast, by means of which, at such elevation, it is claimed a strata of the atmosphere will be reached which is charged with electricity. Ground connections, the same as in ordinary telegraphy, will be erected. The electrified strata of atmosphere will, as with the ordinary single wire and ground connection, make a complete circuit, and it is claimed that the slightest pulsation of electricity at one tower will produce a similar pulsation at the other. The company is to have a capital stock of two hundred thousand dollars, with the privilege of increasing the same to two millions if the interest of the company shall require it. The business and objects of the corporations are stated in the bill to be to develop and utilize the principles and powers, and otherwise, and operate any machinery run by electricity for any purpose.

Not finding him, she went into the lot in the rear of the house, and to her horror discovered the child hanging with his head between two boards in a partition in the pen and dead. The boy had evidently climbed up the partition and inserted his head in the crack, which was scarcely wide enough to admit it, when his feet slipped, and being unable to help himself, he was strangled.
