FROM WASHINGTON.

Ku Klux Klan Cases—Gratuitous Advice to Secretary Richardson—Military Prisons—Civil Serv. Co.—Officers Assigned to Duty—Pensions.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 9, 1873.

Attorney General Williams has decided to suspend for the present all proceedings against persons indicted in the Southern States for violating the enforcement act and being members of the Ku Klux Klan. He says if the laws are respected, and no further attempts made to violate them, the prosecutions will be suspended entirely; but on the other hand if disorderly prosecutions will be pushed rigorously. There are over one thousand of these cases now pending in the United States Courts.

The President telegraphs to his secretary here that he expects to reach Washington in time to hold the usual cabinet meeting on Tuesday next.

Secretary Robeson left for New York last night, to the absent until Monday or Tuesday. While away the War and Navy departments are without any head, the President not being here to designate acting Secretaries during Robeson's absence.

Frequent inquiries are made at the office of Internal Revenue as to the date at which the act of December 24, 1872, will be put in operation. The Commissioner states that the law referred to will take effect May 20, 1873.

Secretary Richardson is just now receiving a large number of letters from New York, and elsewhere tendering gratuitous advice as to the best plan to break up the gold speculators in Wall street. Some advise what he should do, and others what he should not do; but the Secretary remains mum as to what he may or may not do.

The necessity for a military prison for the confinement of offenders subject to military jurisdiction is shown in the case of Robert D. Bogart, clerk to Paymaster Clark of the U. S. Navy, now undergoing a second trial before a naval court-martial on the charge of embezzling $30,000 from the Government. He was tried and convicted once before, but having no proper place to confine him, the case got into the State Courts and he was by legal technicalities set at liberty. The law of the last Congress for a military prison contained no appropriation therefor, but this oversight will probably be remedied next session.

Government clerks will take out last-terms of the new loan bonds of Europe as fast as they are ready for issue. Only the actual expenses of the clerks will be allowed.

The present members of the Civil Service Advisory Board deny that the civil service reform rules, as approved by the President, will be abandoned because of the resignation of George William Curtis, or that the resignation will in any way affect their operations.

Various letters have been received here by the heads of departments urging that a recommendation be made to the next Congress for the establishment of Examining Boards in all the large cities throughout the country, so that applicants for positions in the civil service may be spared the expense of a sojourn in Washington for the mere purpose of competing for a place. The suggestions embodied in these letters can hardly be said to meet with general approval. The idea of officials with whom I have conversed is that such a course would result in making too much of the civil service. "Any young man who possesses the requisite ability is a fool to come to Washington to bury himself as a department clerk," says Treasurer Spinner. The expense incident to the establishment of numerous Examining Boards, the rush for positions that would follow, the conflict in respect to the number of places to be filled from each State, and the impression that would be created that a department clerkship is the best thing in the world to have, are considerations that will weigh heavily against the desired Congressional action. The Secretary of the Treasury has issued a circular ordering all persons holding copper, bronze, or copper nickel coins, heretofore authorized by law, that they can exchange them for the minor coins, namely, five, three, and one cent pieces, authorized by the act of February, 1873, by presenting or forwarding them to the Philadelphia Mint, in sums of not less than $20 or multiple thereof, properly assorted by denomination, advising the superintendent of the amount and kind of coin forwarded, and the kind of coin desired in return.

The following revenue officers have been assigned to duty: First Lieutenants Thos. Mason detached from the McCulloch, at Portland, Me., and placed on waiting orders; George Williams detached from the Grant, at New York, and ordered to the Delaware; Third Lieutenant H. Newcomb ordered to the Petrel, at Pensacola; Charles H. Greenway to the Hamilton, at Boston; W. A. Trailing to the Relief, at Galveston; George Delap to the Mosswood, at Eastport; George E. McConnell to the Nansemond, at Savannah; John Wyckoff to Dobbin, at Cestine; F. A. O'Connor to the Stevens, at Newbern.

Mr. Biglow, Chief of the Loan Division of the Treasury Department, who goes to Europe in a few days in connection with the new loan, will take but three clerks with him, and they will be selected from among the most experienced and efficient clerks in the department.

The act to revise, consolidate and amend the laws relating to pensions, passed during the last days of the late Congress, contains a provision which makes a radical change in the pensions allowed to children of soldiers' widows. Under the old law one child, in the event of the death or re-marriage of the widow, received no increase. Under the present law the pensions of widows are increased from and after the 26th day of July, 1866, at the rate of two dollars per month for each child, under the age of sixteen years, of the husband on account of whose death the claim has been, or shall be, granted. Under this law the two dollars increase applies to all the children. Under the old law the widow of an officer received nothing for her children; now she receives the two dollars for each child.

Though the law seems to be clear on the subject, the Secretary of the Interior has not yet determined whether the law is retroactive. The opinion of the bureau is that it is. The Commissioner of Pensions finds it impracticable to arrive at the approximation even of the amount required to meet this new feature of the law. There are many circumstances which must be taken into consideration, and it has been found that the actual expenditure must demonstrate the pecuniary requirements of the law. The provisions of the act which stated that all colored persons who enlisted in the army during the late war, and who are now prohibited from receiving bounty and pension, on account of having been borne on the rolls of their regiments as slaves, shall be placed on the same footing as to bounty and pensions as though they had not been slaves at the date of their enlistment. The above applies more to bounty than to pension, the latter will not be materially affected. Previously the mother could not be held dependent on the son when both were slaves. The interpretation of the comptroller states that it applies only to claimants who were slaves. A colored soldier enlisted could not claim bounty if a slave. If he survived, he can under this law, but his mother or widow cannot. According to the last report of the commissioner of pensions there were, at the end of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1872, two hundred and thirty-two thousand two hundred pensioners of all classes on the rolls, to whom were paid $50,169,341.

Maggie E. Nye's Vote of Thanks to the Beaver Falls School.—I realized how sweet it is to be remembered not long since, when these two beautiful Canary birds were brought to my bedside and bestowed upon me as "a gift from the school." Never, during my long and severe affliction, has any expression of kindness afforded me a greater depth of gratification than this offering from so many friends. Willing hearts and hands, bright eyes and pleasant faces, add greatly to their preciousness to me. The surplus was sweet, but far sweeter was your handsome present, which is meritable of more praise and thanks than I am capable of conferring upon you, or at least of expressing. May many blessings surround you, my little cheerful "donors," and may you learn from this kind act, that you are capable of distributing mud sunshine, and possess the ability to dispel many dark clouds, cheer many lonely rooms, and make many hearts happy. You would feel amply repaid for your kindness, could you really how vastly you have contributed to my happiness; but language utterly fails to describe, neither can your imagination present to you how much, therefore, it must remain untold. It is three years since I sat up, or walked, even to my window, to look out upon this world of ours, the flowery green grass, and the little wild birds, which close confinement has made me more appreciative than perhaps I would otherwise have been, preparing my heart to prize highly and fully appreciate your token of friendship. Should you ever, in the various vicissitudes of life, fall victims to affliction and helplessness, as I have done, may you be pleasantly surprised, and be the objects of care and thoughtfulness that you, too, may know the delight and sweetness of remembrance, and have your kindness to me doubly returned. I enjoy my dear little "pets" so much; they are very entertaining, and will assist me to "wile" away very many hours. I hope there may be many stars added to your crowns that are being prepared in heaven, and at the expiration of the present term of school may you "win many fresh laurels for your brows." Please accept this, not as a tirade of flattery, but as words of my highest appreciation and most sincere and grateful thanks, accompanied with my love and kind wishes to you as pupils, and much success to your excellent and noble teachers.

Early Rose Potato Seed.—H. C. & S. R. Patterson have for sale cheap at their store, on Turk Street, Beaver Falls, one hundred bushels of choice Early Rose Potatoes for seed.

Now near death, at times—so near that we almost feel his icy breath. The shadow of our tombstone may be cast o'er our grave within a few short months, and yet so delusive is the phantom hope, which leads us to penetrate the veil and indulge our fancies in the sweet by and by, which we so fondly look for and expect to be ours, when, we say, we do this, as the years go by, it is not often that we pause to consider the probability of the approach of the grim white horse. In the recent collision at Ravenna the brakeman, Mr. Allison Bunting, of Wellsville, was standing on the platform of the pay-car, and, seeing a collision was inevitable, ran into the car to save himself as much as possible. The paymaster, not knowing the situation of affairs, thought he was to be attacked, and leveled a revolver at Mr. Bunting. At that instant the trains collided, and both men were hurled to the floor, thereby saving Mr. Bunting's life. What a lesson the thinking man can draw from the above incident of the perils to which we are exposed on all sides. But the world moves on—we laugh—we weep—we work—we play—death comes, and as he leaves us so the Master finds us. Reader, are you prepared to die?—Literary Gazette.

Dr. Oldshue's Letter of Instruction to Patients. We are constantly receiving letters from all parts of the country requesting information respecting our system of practice, and the course of proceedings necessary to obtain from us a medical diagnosis, or medicine.

To facilitate the matter of answering these letters, and to make plain the condition required to obtain a thorough, scientific, and correct diagnosis from ocular, chemical and microscopic examination of the urine, we would say: In collecting a specimen of urine, for analysis, take that passed first in the morning, or immediately after sleep. No other kind will be examined. Send about two ounces in a clean vial. A less quantity than two ounces cannot be well tested. Always give the name of the patient in full. Be sure to give the age of the patient. Without knowing the age, we will neither examine the specimen nor give medicine. Unless the above instructions are strictly followed no attention will be paid to the case. Specimens of urine can be sent by express (but not by mail) from any part of the United States; and medicines can be obtained by the same conveyance. Our charges for examination and medicines range from three to ten dollars. Address: DR. OLDSHUE, No. 132 Grant Street, Pittsburgh, Pa. L. OLDSHUE, M. D. T. L. OLDSHUE, M. D. J. W. OLDSHUE, M. D.

On Sunday a little boy, aged nine months, the son of George P. McKee, of Pittsburgh formerly of Glasgow, and son-in-law of Squire John McFall, was accidentally scalded to death, and his remains were brought on Monday to Glasgow for burial. It is sorrowful to lose a child by sickness, but how deep must be the parent's grief when such an one is snatched away suddenly and unexpectedly by accident. Parents can not be too careful and watchful of their little ones.

The Pittsburgh Commercial of Tuesday last says: Shortly before five o'clock yesterday a steamboat disaster occurred on the Ohio, at the head of Glass House Ripple and near Brunot's Island, which will result, probably, in the total destruction of the New State, a freight and passenger steamer plying between this city and Wheeling. The New State left the Pittsburgh wharf at a quarter after four o'clock with a full cargo of dry goods, iron, glass, &c., and a considerable number of passengers, about twenty-five of them being women and children. The accident occurred at about 4:35 by collision with the Eagle, a towboat, which was on its way to this city. The river is high, and it was with difficulty that the boats could be managed, while the place of meeting was an unfortunate one. The fault or blame, if any there was, cannot at this time be placed but an investigation will immediately follow. The Eagle struck the New State on the starboard bow, knocking the bow off and staving in the hull. The latter sank immediately, while the towboat, which was without weight upon it, seemed to be entirely uninjured, except the breaking of the galloway frame and the jackstaff. The captain of the Eagle at once took the passengers from the unfortunate vessel and brought them to the city, giving them every attention. No person was at all injured by the accident.

It is believed that the New State will be a total wreck, but much of the freight will be recovered from her decks. The second mate and a watchman were left on board, with lights, to warn other craft from the danger, the sunken boat being immediately in the channel and the river rising. When she was left by the Eagle the water was within two feet of the cabin and rising. The New State was owned by Messrs. C. Booth & Co., of Wheeling, and commanded by Capt. Dillon. The vessel and cargo are estimated to have been worth between $25,000 and $30,000, but no information as to insurance could be obtained. The Eagle is owned by Capt. Thomas Harper.

Important Decision.—The Supreme Court has decided that school directors have the right to enter upon improved property and take it for school purposes. The case was taken up from the decision of the Court of Common Pleas by the owner of the property taken. The decision is based upon the principle that, as education is part of the public policy of the State school directors have the right to appropriate private property, making the necessary compensation therefore, on which to erect school buildings.

The New Brighton Press says: We are in receipt of the following note from Hon. Wm. McClelland, in relation to a matter of interest to the physicians of the county. The other county papers are requested to insert it:

New Castle, Pa., April 8, 1873. MAJ. J. B. HATA, DEAR SIR:—As the number of copies of the "Medical and Surgical History of the War," published by order of the War Department, allowing each member one is limited, before leaving Washington I arranged with Surgeon General Barnes to have a copy placed in the public library at New Brighton, for the exclusive use of the physicians of Beaver county, provided, of course, the Library Association will accept the History in this way. The Harrisburg correspondent of the Philadelphia Sunday Times says: Hon. M. S. Quay has filled the office of Secretary of the Commonwealth to the entire satisfaction of the "boys." As the furniture in the Secretary's office is somewhat dilapidated, having been purchased two years ago, Mr. Quay asked for an appropriation of one thousand dollars to refurbish his office. The Senate in its liberality gave him two thousand dollars. Mr. Quay is about to make Harrisburg his permanent home; having recently purchased a residence at the capitol, his family will soon remove theré.

Wednesday evening of last week a boy stealing his ride, jumped off the accommodation train just below Rogers' Ferry, and was thrown violently down the bank, resulting in the dislocation of his hip and some bruises about his shoulders and head. When the boy was picked up by the conductor and others and placed in the train, we noticed that he still retained a stamp of a cigar between his teeth, and though suffering much, held on to that with great tenacity. The boy was about 17 years of age, and lives down near Mio, Ohio. He was kindly cared for by the employees of the railroad and taken home.

Attempted Burglary.—On Friday night a thief entered the house of Capt. R. Calhoun, of Georgetown, and was discovered, fortunately, before he had committed any robbery so far as known. Mrs. Curtis, about one o'clock, took the lamp to go down stairs to get a cup of fresh water for her little boy, who was thirsty, and proceeded through the hall, sitting room, dining room, into the adjoining pantry, and remained there some two or three minutes, perhaps, getting the cup of water, when she started to return up stairs. Before coming out of the pantry she thought she heard some shuffling in the dining room, but supposed it was the cat's, and concluded she would turn it out. On stepping into the dining room, however, she was terribly shocked to see a man standing a few feet from the cellar door, nearly in front of her. After an exclamation of surprise she managed to walk by him and get up stairs, though very much frightened. She described him as a short, thick set person, with broad shoulders, heavy, short, black whiskers, large eyes, lips firmly closed with corners drawn back; dressed in dark clothes and wearing a cap, she thinks. Captain Calhoun went immediately down stairs, but the thief had fled down through the cellar and escaped. In shutting the cellar door he slammed it so hard that the noise was heard through the house distinctly. No clue to the midnight prowler has been yet discovered.

For Minnesota.—A few days ago Lieut. Hamilton of 2nd Cavalry, stationed at Fort Ellis, accompanied by a Sergeant of the Post, left by stage for the East, having in charge two soldiers sentenced by Court Martial to imprisonment for offences committed within the limits of the Military reservation at this place, and whom he will deposit in the Military Prison, at Stillwater, in the State of Minnesota. While the Lieutenant is called on by duty, he is also favored with a four month's leave of absence, by which he will have an opportunity to visit friends and relatives in his (Keystone) native State, from whom he has for some years been separated. We can only say that his many presence, genial, gentlemanly smile and affable manner will, during his absence be missed by his friends, and their name is legion; and that we sincerely hope his visit may be as pleasant as his return will be welcome. Speaking for ourselves we can do no less than say that in him we recognize the gallant soldier, social companion and courteous friend, than for whom our mercury cannot rise higher in the barometer of social friendship.—Agent (Montana) Courier.

Lieut. Hamilton, the subject of the above notice, arrived at his home in Beaver on last Saturday, and we judge from his appearance that life on the plains agrees with him. We hope he will spend the next four months pleasantly.

HAIR ALIVE.

It is a sad thing to pass through life only half alive. Yet there are thousands whose habitual condition is one of languor and debility. They complain of no specific disease, they suffer no positive pain; but they have no relish for anything which affords mental or sensuous pleasure to their more robust and energetic fellow beings.

In five cases out of ten this state of lassitude and torpor arises from a morbid stomach. Indigestion destroys the energy of both mind and body. When the waste of nature is not supplied by a due and regular assimilation of the food, every organ is starved, every function interrupted. Now, what does common sense suggest under these circumstances of depression? The system needs nourishing and strengthening; not merely for an hour or two, to sink afterwards into a more pitiable condition than ever (as it assuredly would do) if any ordinary alcoholic stimulant were resorted to; but radically and permanently.

How is this desirable object to be accomplished? The answer to this question, founded on the unrivaled experience of a quarter of a century, is easily given. Infuse new vigor into the digestive organs by a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Do not waste time in administering temporary remedies, but wake the system up by recuperating the fountain head of physical strength and energy, the great organ upon which all the other organs depend for their nurture and support.

By the time a dozen doses of the great vegetable tonic and invigorant have been taken, the feeble frame of the dyspeptic will begin to feel its benign influence. Appetite will be created, and with appetite the capacity to digest what it craves. Persevere until the cure is complete—until healthful blood, fit to be the material of flesh and muscle, bone and nerve and brain, flows through the channels of circulation, instead of the watery palidum with which they have heretofore been imperfectly nourished. apr-11m
