Correspondence of the Pittsburgh Gazette. BEAVER VALLEY, April, 1873. [Paper No. 8.] BRIDGEWATER.

Passing from the history of Sharon, which as has already been stated contains the primitive history of Bridgewater, we come to that most pleasant and interesting town, the subject of this let-

The lands upon which that part of Bridgewater at the mouth of the Beaver is situated, were originally a part of what were known as the "academy outlots." A mention has been made of these in tracing the early history of Beaver, carrying the mind back to the year 1791. All those lands, and the adjacent country were formerly the suburbs of Beaver. After the sale of outlots, the lands came into the possession of Joseph Hemphill, who was the owner of the lands until the town was laid out. It was the scene of some very interesting occurrences, in connection with early Beaver and Sharon, and the good old people who are yet living, and who passed through the trying scenes and adventures of early days, dwell with pleasure of those times. Men yet vigorous in health, tell us of the deer and bear huting over the hills and along the water courses of, and near, Bridgewater, and it seems but as yesterday to us, when their hearts glowing with the fire of younger days and their lips trembling with words of eloquence, they related the sports that characterized their native heath. Their gunning, trapping, and angling, interspersed with a bear chase were sources of pleasure to them, and interest to us.

The advantages of the "point" at this place, as a good location for boating and forwarding, were only noted. It lies between the Ohio and Beaver rivers, and has seen an eventful career, which is vet not ended. The town seems to have been laid out as early as 1818 by Mr. Hemphill, and some little building commenced in the town plot about that time. A store was put in operation at the end of the bridge by Mr. Hemphill, and was doing business at the time and after the laying out of the town. From the date of the establishment of the town, it has not been characterized by any unusual energy or rapid stride in material progress. Its growth has been rather slow, and has resulted in giving the valley a genuinely prosperous town.

Its history has been marked by the rise and progress of several branches of manufacturing, many of which have fallen and been forgotten, while others are in the height of their prosperity and doing a really good and safe business. Probably one of the most interesting of

has been the boat building, which was carried on very extensively for many years. There were two boat yards in the limits of the present town, in addition to the one located at Sharon, which has become so famous. It was a good business thirty and forty years ago, and gave employment to a large class of men, and remunerating well those who engaged in it.

The location of boat yards at this place was a very favorable one for several reasons, among which were the cheapness of living rents, fuel and produce, and the abundance of timber that lined the water courses. Boats were prepared for finishing at these yards, and sent to Pittsburgh for finish, and money was saved to the owners of the boats. But boat building has entirely passed away from the town, and for years nothing of the kind has been done. Other branches of labor have taken its place, and given employment to the people of the town. "Stone's Point" was at one time a place of considerable stir and activity, being the stopping place of the boats that landed. This wharf was first graced with the landing of a boat in the years 1833, coming from Pittsburgh. It was named "Beaver," and was the beginning of "what proved to be quite profitable source of trade to the town. The sensation caused by the landing of this boat was something like that which would be produced by dropping a train of cars into-say Greene county. I am not prepared to say that it was the occasion of a general public rejoicing, nor that any cannons were fired over the event, nor even that Sir Silverspeech, in the glory of the occasion, gave utterance to burning words of eloquence, but it was an occasion of rejoicing among the Bridgewaterites, and reverted to with pride.

was done in that line, but like the boat building, it is now one of the things of the past. After the canal had been located and put in running order, the business was done in the valley by this enterprise. Boats must be built and Bridgewater boat yards were at hand. Captains for steamers were needed, and this town put forward men for that purrose. At this time, it probably saw as active and prosperous days as it has ever 1974 204 B 4875 of its history.

It already had some commission houses, consequent upon being the regular landing place of the Pittsburgh packets, names are those of Drs. Dempsey and which were doing a good business, be- Shields, command respect whatever they sides the business houses of various kinds are known. Rev. Mr. Ashing, of the

It is not unlike the other valley towns is the variegated scenery, which one meets and sees at every step. In passing the town on the P. F. W. & C. R. In such places may be seen thrifty vineyards, tasty gardens and whatever may be done to render pleasant the unsightly portions of the town. Its streets seem to be very pleasant, and taking all together, it is not out of order to offer a word of commendation to this people, The views from the town are neither so comprehensive nor pleasing to the mind as those seen from the other towns. It is true that the Ohio sweeps her bank in its onward march to the sea, and an occasional bit of pretty scenery presents itself to the eye, but it does not allow one those great views of the beautiful in nature that at once charm and excite admiration.

AS IT IS NOW.

The present industries of the town are the following: The foundry of M. & S. H. Darragh employing ten hands, and making a good quality of stove castings, &c. They do a safe and profitable business, and are not succeptible to the usual disasters which have driven to the wall so many of the other works of the town. The father of these gentlemen, Robert Darragh, was one of the first settlers of Beaver county, and was very highly respected and honored by all who had the pleasure of knowing him. Mr. Thomas Campbell has also in operation a foundry, and is doing a good business. His productions are those of other valley foundries. There is also a verve fine tannery carried on by Mr. Samuel Moorehead, m which a good business is being done. Add to these one steam grist mill and three steam saw mills belonging to Messrs. S. Davidson & Bro.; carriage factory, blacksmith shops and stocking factories, and you have all that is now done in Bridgewater in the way of manufactories and shops. It seems as if there no doubt was the town talk for many a lought to be more, but probably it is all weary day afterwards, and is even yet right. One hotel gives entertainment to the weary, way-worn traveler who may This "point" became quite a forward- pass into the fown, Some nine or ten ing centre, and quite a good business stores ask for the custom of their neigh bors in the purchase of dry goods, groceries, &c. The people there evidently. are not suffering in this particular, and would not feel thankful for the recommendation: to others to docate among them: A sufficient number of physicians are located in the town, to give character to the materia medica, and relieve the wants of the ailing people. In its religious and moral life, Bridgewater is rather above the average—having four churches seen. The time of these occurrences was in a prosperous condition, being the in the latter part of the first fifteen oyears | Presbyterung Ma Episcopal, Mathread pred and A. E. E.
