FOR DECORATION DAY.

BY T. G.

Bring flowers, sweet flowers, From garden and mead. To garland with beauty The tomb of the dead

They rest in peaceful repose The true and the brave, Our floral momentoes, We strew on their grave's,

Their memory we cherish, Not fading, as flowers Which wither and perish. In a few brief hours.

As with seasons return. The sweet flowers will come, So the dead should arise, To bloom in the skies.

They rest from their warfare. Who sleep in the tomb; They wake all immortal, For Heaven's their home.

These heroes, though dead, In remembrance still live, By gratitude we are led Floral tribute to give.

Plant laurel and white-pine-Plant cypress and willow-Plant violet and myrth-vine, For their lowly pillow.

Plant flowers, sweet flowers, From garden and mead, To mark with their fragrance The tombs of the dead.
