The Beecher-Tilton scandal is again assuming importance, through the very peculiar conduct of the parties interested. no desire t Some months ago we were told that Mr. ed, when I Tilton had prepared a voluminous docu- the fullest ment which he would give to the world 1872, she w at the proper time as the true story of the as a final a difficulty in which Mrs. Tilton and Mr. Beecher were involved. Recently Mr. Write .' 'I Edward H. G. Clark, of Troy, New York, free,'-whi published what he calls this "True add to the Story," and is careful to convey the impression that it is from Mr. Tilton's own manuscript. He says: "How this true story came into my possession is of no consequence to the public, but can easily be ascertained in the courts if any of the specially interested parties should have the temerity to press an investigation." lies buried Mrs. Woodhull, the author of the origin- movement al story, in a recent sorthing review of "You bed Mr. Clark's "story," also refers to the evidence that it came from Mr. Tilton. She declares that the paper in which Mr. Clark publishes his account and calls it the thunderbolt, is "the Golden Age print (Mr. Tilton's old paper,) its types, 1ules, head-lines and sll." Having thus established the fact that this document has course of been issued with Mr. Tilton's sanction, your own it becomes important to ascertain what is | cent the si Mr. Tilton's version of the scandal.
