The Mutual Life Insurance Company

of New York. the largest and wealthiest company in the world, and the oldest Life Insurance Company in America. Policy costs less in this Company from year to year, that in any other Company.

What is the value of Life Insurance? Let the reader make a practical and personal examination of the subject. Have you a family dependent on you for support? If so you have a duty to perform. If you are engaged in active business, consider what would probably happen if your plans were set aside and other persons were called in to close up your affairs. Your creditors clamorous, your labors suddenly ended; your property sacrificed to the highest bidder. There might be little left for your family. All this might be the result if death should overtake you next week, or next year, and you have no lease of life. You may be strong and healthy to-day, but are you sure that health, strength and life will be yours to-morrow? You ought to guard against this contingency You insure your property, why not insure your life! Is it much more valuable? Suppose you have an insurance in the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York equal to the amount of your indebtedness, your wife or your friends, at your death, then have the means in hand to pay all that you owe. The warehouse, the store, the goods and merchandise are free from all incumbrance. No sacrifices need be made. Your family have property which, by your forethought, they are enabled to preserve, and will furnish the means of support.

The longer Insurance is postponed, the greater will be the premium. Nor can it be obtained upon any terms by those not in good health. Hence the immediate attention to this matter.

The following correspondence and "reply to an old friend." we publish at the request, and in justice to Mr. Townsend. We do not think our readers will be much interested in the matter, and we are confident that the "reply" might as well have been unwritten.

BEAVER FALLS, PA., June 20, 1873. SMITH CURTIS, Esq.—It may not be asking too much of you to request that you will give place in your columns to the accompanying "Reply to an Old Friend," which was called out by the incident of your copying a former letter of mine to Mrs. Woodhull. I think you will see that it would be but consistent with justice, that you do so, as thereby, it will give those persons who read my previous letter in THE RADICAL, an opportunity to see my reasons for addressing Mrs. W., as I did. Yours.

> MILO A. TOWNSEND. REPLY TO AN OLD FRIEND.

BY MILO A. TOWNSEND. Mrs. Woodhull-An old-time friend, in writing to me recently, says: "I am quite surprised that a man of your general good sense and intelligence should write such a strong letter of sympathy to Mrs. Woodhull, which I see copied into a late number of THE BEAVER RADICAL. If we can believe the press and pulpit. Mrs. Woodhull is one of the vilest women of the vile."

In answer to this letter, I responded as follows, which I have thought well to send to you. "You express surprise that I should write a letter of sympathy to Mrs. Woodhull. I will briefly give you a few of my reasons.

"If a man should stand passively by and witness a ruffian strike a refined and intelligent woman to the earth-or, indeed, any womanand did not protest against the develish deed, what would be your opinion of his chivalry, or sense of justice, or honor? "A noble woman, for teiling the truth, for demanding equal justice for all women, as well as for all men, and the same code of morals for both sexes—that if a woman's name is rendered infamous for certain acts, a man's should be also for the same acts, for urging with intense earnestness and with rare eloquence and power, the importance of discussing the science of marriage and the production of a higher order of human beings-for these things, coupled with her denunciations of that insatiable spirit of greed and humanity beneath whose beavy hands the rights | work just as well as when new. of the toiling millions, the hopes of widows and orphane, have been blasted, until the whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain, and until an influx of light from the celestial worlds is wellnigh cut off, and the very atmosphere of earth is poisoned by the vile magnetism escaping from these human vultures, who care not who sinks so their allies generally, and prophetically prononncing their doom, Mrs. Woodhull is draged off to prison by those who claim to be the representatives of a Christianity which they say, is freedom, justice and peace! Whether a person indorse Mrs. Woodhull's sentiments relating to love, marriage and parentage or not, one would suppose, that se the rights of free discussion, free thought and a free press, are involved in her case, and are struck down in her person, that every friend of freedom and fair dealing (to say nothing of chivalry) would speak out in words not to be misunderstood, and that the press especially would be, not as "the muzzled ox that treadeth out the corn," but would vindicate her right to be heard. Who is so blind as not to see the perils that threaten us as a people; and that if both press and pulpit are muzzled, and fail to speak out against wrong and injustice, in high places as well as low, then a nation's funeral knell is rang.

All honor to the Troy and Syracuse press, and to the few score of others of the editorial fraternity who have spoken with no uncertain sound against the imprisonment of Mrs. Woodhull and her three heroic friends. And thrice honored be the name of that grand old-moral hero. Parke Pillsbury, who, almost solitary and alone of the old-time friends of freedom, now proves himself the neblest Roman of them all," by lifting up. his voice like a trumpet against this act of injustice and inhumanity.

You say, "If we can believe the press and pulpit, Mrs. Woodbull is one of the vilest women of

Would to heaven, my friend, we could believe the press and pulpit when they speak in reference to any unpopular truth, or any movement that has for its object the enlightment, elevation and liberation of men and women from mental, social and physical bondage. With a few noble excepon s, they are the first to oppose, and the last to concede any newly discovored truth, or to aid any hamanitarian enterprise. They are "backward looking sons of time." A careful observer of events for the past thirty years, especially if he have been identified with the auti-slavery cause or the Spiritual unfolding, know bravely that if he rely upon either the press or pulpit for correct information concerning reform and reformers, he will be most grievously misled. I speak it sor rowfully, for I have valued friends among these two powerful moulders of public opinion, who are as a general thing supordinate to capital—to the money power which now so purighteously and op pressively rules the world. Dependent upon their patrons, their utterances must be such as to please and to keep themselves popular and respectable. And what a temptation! Unless he become rare, eccentric genius, some strong, heroic mind, to whom the love of truth is supreme to all things else, he will not dare to grapple with unpopular subjects, however vital they may be to the welfare of the race. No wonder the Society of Friends bear a testimony against a hireling minbe stempted to "quench the spirit," to suppres their honest convictions, to stifle free discussion, to preach for doctrines the commandments of men. to fulminate eternally upon the doings of men who lived thousands of years ago; while the real practical questions of the hour would be ignored and the gigantic wrongs, villainies and oppressions which every now and then culminate in desclating wars, would go unrebuked. How important that the press and pulpit should be free. Mental bondage is worse than physical

We guarantee prices lower order of society, we must have a new and higher order of men and women; and this, let me tell you, is the great sin, the terrible offense of Mrs. Woodhull and her coadjutors; the discussion of conditions and principles measures to the proper gation of higher types of mankind,

She's not very pretty, nor fashionable either, symmetrical noble men and women. Of all questions, none so momentious as this, none where every science, having a near or remote bearing upon the nature thereof, should be so studiously consulted. But alas! what headlong blindness and recklessness, do most people act with reference to these things. Thus verifying the saying, that "fools rush in where angels fear to tread."

To look to any other source for the improvement and elevation of the race, than obedience to Nature's laws, which are God's laws, is to look in vain. To lean upon any creed or faith which ignores science, or the laws of nature, is to lean upon a broken reed. To resort to any political expedient for a radical cure of existing evils. is equally vain. There is not a single drop of balm for "the healing of the nations," in any or all the conclaves, clubs, caucusses or conventions of party politics, nor in any system of religion, theology or Spirititualism, which overlooks the facts and verieties of science, or keeps not in view the laws of cause and effect. Not all the preaching and praying of Christendom can avert the penalty of Nature's violated laws, or enable us to "gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles." Charles T. Robinson, of Giles county, killed a chicken-snake which measured seven feet in length. He found it in the crack in the fence, half of its bedy being on either side. On examination, it was developed that the snake had swallnwed a rabbit before it attempted to crawl through the crack, and that after its body was half through it caught and swallowed another rabbit, thus having a rabbit on each side of the fence. The crack was so small that the rabbits could not get through, and the consequence was that the snake was killed. It was killed in
