"Miss Ishman is a very superior woman, and it would not nurt you to copy her in some respects," said Lennox, rather coldly.

The tears sprang into Mary's eyes at his tone; she loosened her arms from his,and dropping down on the emerald grass at his feet, began to braid a bracelet of the long blades in silenca, with a grieved expression around her sweet mouth which be did not see.

"There!" cried Lennox, pettishly. "Now you look more like a five-year-old baby than a well bred young lady."

Mary threw away her bracelet and got up again.

"I didn't mean to vex yon; shall we go in !" she said, sadly. They went into the parlor, and Mr. Ray took a seat in the great arm chair, while Mary flung open the window and dropped down on her knees besides it, letting her glossy curls fail in a great shower on the window B1]].
