

Wool—The New Clip and the Outlook.

The New York Bulletin of the 12th inst., says: The course of the wool market for the past few years has been such as to impress upon all classes of dealers in that staple the importance to their interests of more cautious operating, and of the utter avoidance of all speculation. The time is passed, when the wool markets of this country can be easily controlled in the interests of speculators. The magnitude of our clip might interpose no serious obstacle, perhaps, as a concert of action between the growers and dealers—whose interests are identical—might easily be arranged. There is, however, in the foreign clip a lever with which the manufacturers can so far control the course of our market as to protect themselves from any combination seeking to effect anything more than a legitimate advance sympathizing with improved values abroad. Within the past few years American manufacturers have learned the value to them of the power which they thus control, and to wield it has become a matter of little difficulty in view of the growing closeness of our commercial relations with Europe. Experience thus far has proved that it is in the long run to the best interests of our manufacturers to avoid, as far as possible, heavy operations on their own account, either in the wool producing markets of our own or other countries. If conducted independently of speculation, trade is more satisfactory when the supplies of manufacturers are drawn chiefly through the regular channels. To the few who are able to contract for their full year's supply of domestic wool at the beginning of the season, buying direct from the farmer may be an advantage. But the purchases of manufacturers in the interior are almost invariably made at a higher figure than Eastern dealers can afford to pay, and a range of prices in the country based upon the figures paid by the consumers is always at disadvantage, and almost invariably a break has to follow before the wool moves freely into the Eastern markets, or the dealers here who purchase at the prices manufacturers can afford to pay have to suffer a loss before the stocks are worked up. The experiences of 1871 had the effect of keeping manufacturers at home last year, and, as the rule, their purchases in the interior have been unimportant thus far this year. A few, chiefly the buyers of delaine wools, have gone into the country for their supplies, but the buyers for Eastern houses have suffered much from competition with consumers, and although there has been an occasional reactionary feeling, the clips taken up have generally been at prices which dealers were willing to pay. Allowing for commission, interest, freight, shrinkage, etc., and ten cents per pound is only a fair margin between the purchasing price in the country and the selling rate here. This leaves the dealer barely a profit, and as 48@51c is the best range that can be quoted upon average clips in this market, it is evident that buyers cannot afford to pay more than 40c in the country for clips as they run. The range quoted upon actual sales in Ohio and Michigan is 40@45c, with few transactions except of very choice lots above 42@43c. Old X and XX Ohio fleeces are worth here to day 50@52 1/2c, and allowing these figures to be maintained upon the new wools when the supply of old has run out, there will be no more than a fair margin for dealers. The course of the foreign markets for some time past has been in favor of buyers, and the outlook upon fine wools indicates that foreign supplies will be available at a price competing closely with our wools at the current figures. The supplies in our seaboard markets at present are pretty full, and the manufacturer, whose wants just now are not pressing, is in a position to act with considerable independence. Dealers cannot afford to risk heavy purchases except at perfectly safe prices, and the result must be a concession on the part of the farmer to meet the views of buyers, or a looking up of the bulk of the clip in the country. Our reports of the market for some time past have shown how slow was the movement from dealers' hands, but it will be seen by the annexed table of receipts since January 1st, that the arrivals have been more than sufficient to supply even at active demand.

Terrible Crime in Butler.

We have to record this morning the details of a shocking story of cannibal infelicity in Butler, and a deliberate attempt to poison a man and his children. With no desire to prejudice the case of parties now under arrest for supposed complicity in the crime, we merely state what are known to be facts: Last Friday morning, Mr. John Snyder and two of his children, living in Springdale, in the borough of Butler, were taken violently ill at the breakfast table, with all the symptoms of having been poisoned. Drs. Graham and Bradin, of the borough, were at once called in and administered antidotes. The patients after a few hours were much better, and the physicians pronounced them out of danger. The opinion of the physicians was that poison of some kind had been taken, but in such large doses as to produce nausea sufficient to counteract its deadly effect. Accordingly, an analysis was made of different articles on the breakfast table. The result discovered a large quantity of arsenic in the coffee. This furnished a satisfactory cause for the illness of Mr. Snyder and the children, but light was still wanting on the question of who put the poison into the coffee. It was suggested by some of the neighbors that Mr. Snyder should at once move away from his own house to that of one of his relatives, and take his children with him, but this he steadfastly refused to do. The condition of the three persons poisoned on Friday continued to improve until Saturday evening, when Mr. Snyder was suddenly taken ill again with the same symptoms as before. Again the physicians were summoned, and they at once pronounced it another case of poisoning by arsenic. But, as in the previous attempt, an over dose had been given, and the violent vomiting produced saved the life of the intended victim. On Sunday, Mr. Snyder was removed to the house of his brother in the south end of the borough, in accordance with the repeated demands of all his friends. An investigation was then begun as to the sale of arsenic at the different drug stores, and resulted in an important piece of information. One John W. Foreman had recently bought a quantity of the poison for the ostensible purpose of killing a dog, and suspicion at once fastened upon him. This suspicion was strengthened by the fact that Foreman lived in one part of the double house, the other part of which was occupied by Snyder and his family. It is also stated that Foreman has of late paid more attentions to Mrs. Snyder than to his own wife, and that the latter left home two or three weeks since on account of neglect and harsh treatment. Foreman was arrested on Sunday night, on an information made before Justice Keck, and lodged in jail. Yesterday noon Mrs. Snyder was also arrested and committed to the same safe keeping. It is understood that the accused will have a hearing at once—possibly to-day. Mr. Snyder is about thirty-five years of age, and a steady, hard working man. He says that, until Sunday last, he never had the remotest suspicion of the loss of his wife's true affection. He has always regarded Foreman as a friend, and treated him accordingly. The separation of Foreman and his wife he supposed to be wholly on account of differences of their own, which in no way concerned him. Foreman is younger than Snyder, and is said to have been wild when a boy. He was brought up in Butler, but went away upon his marriage with a lady of considerable property. Last fall he returned to Butler with his wife, and went to house-keeping in the house with the Snyders. Many of his neighbors have seen more of his domestic disarrangements and more of his devotion to Mrs. Snyder than seems to have come to the knowledge of the unsuspecting husband of the latter. Mrs. Snyder is near the age of Foreman. She is said to put a bold front on the matter of her imprisonment, and to be rather defiant than otherwise. The usually quiet town of Butler is, very naturally, greatly excited over the occurrences herein recited. We suppress many rumors and surmises which have reached us—one implicating another woman in the poisoning—preferring to await a dispassionate and judicial investigation of the whole case. The facts will be laid before our readers as they shall thus be determined.—Pitts. Com. July 22.

Joe Snellenburg, one of the Snellenburg Brothers, of New Brighton, went out in a skiff above the Falls, on Saturday, for a pleasure ride. When out in the river above the falls, discovering that he could not manage the boat, and that it would go over the falls, jumped out with the intention of swimming ashore, but his legs becoming entangled with his clothes he did not make much headway and the current carried him down over the falls. He sustained no damage, we believe, except a few scratches and bruises. Joe may understand how to cut a suit of clothes and satisfy his customers, but he don't understand how to manage a boat in the Big Beaver, and we advise him hereafter to stick to dry land.

The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York.

Cash assets over sixty millions of dollars. Is the largest and wealthiest company in the world, and the oldest Life Insurance Company in America. Policy costs less in this Company from year to year, than in any other Company. WHAT IS THE VALUE OF LIFE INSURANCE? Let the reader make a practical and personal examination of the subject. Have you a family dependent on you for support? If so you have a duty to perform. If you are engaged in active business, consider what would probably happen if your plan were set aside and other persons were called in to close up your affairs. Your creditors clamorous, your labors suddenly ended; your property sacrificed to the highest bidder. This might be little for your family. All this might be the result if death should overtake you next week, or next year, and you have no lease of life. You may be strong and healthy to-day, but are you sure that health, strength and life will be yours to-morrow? You ought to guard against this contingency. You insure your property, why not insure your life? Is it much more valuable? Suppose you have an insurance in the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York equal to the amount of your indebtedness, your wife or your friends, at your death, then have the means in hand to pay all that you owe. The warehouse, the store, the goods and merchandise are free from all incumbrance. No sacrifices need be made. Your family have property which, by your forethought, they are enabled to preserve, and will furnish the means of support. The longer insurance is postponed, the greater will be the premium. Now can it be obtained upon any terms by those not in good health. Hence the immediate attention to this matter. A. B. CLARK, Agent for Beaver county, Pa. JY13-4w

The Butler Citizen says: It is with no ordinary pleasure that we can say the crops of our county will, from present appearances be good this year.

The Butler Citizen says: It is with no ordinary pleasure that we can say the crops of our county will, from present appearances be good this year. The wheat crop, from information that we can rely upon from all parts of the county, will be very good. Its present look is quite promising. The grass, that many feared would be short from the long dry spell, has started out in rapid growth since the recent welcome rains and now bids fair for a good crop. The corn also has taken a start that gives hope of an abundant yield. The oats look very well and a more than ordinary breadth has been sown. If no disaster befalls us the crops of the county as a whole will be good.

The Connestown Courier and Record says: Our Linesville correspondent writes: A few days since, while Mr. John Dye was engaged in drifting into the side of a ravine on his farm, one mile east of town, he struck and dug out a very fine specimen of copper ore. The specimen is in a very ragged book form, and weighs fifteen ounces. It has the appearance of being about ninety five per cent. ore, and is so pronounced by those who have examined it. A small portion of silver dress was also found to be sticking into the crevices of the specimen. We hope this territory will be examined and tested.

Adjourned Court was held in Beaver on Wednesday, July 23d. Judge Acheson was absent on account of sickness. Judges Lawrence and Wilson were present and attended to such matters as came before them. On motion of J. H. Cunningham, Esq., a committee was appointed, consisting of Hon. J. James R. Ruten, James Cameron and G. L. Eberhart, Esqs., to examine N. C. Martin on the theory and practice of law. Mr. Martin desires to be admitted to the Bar at the September term of court.

Pass Him Round.—A nice young man rejoicing in the name Ira G. Chase, and claiming to be a clerk in the Register's Office, Treasury Department, at Washington, D. C., is traveling the country dead beating his way. He has a pocket full of railroad passes and what purports to be a check on some United States depository for a portion of his pay. He is as smooth in speech as a first class fruit tree agent, and so plausible and well appearing that he can deceive some who claim to be sharp. A man invested $5 in him and received the following in answer to a letter of inquiry in regard to Ira: "I have to state that Ira G. Chase has not been a clerk in this office since April, 1868. From the number of similar letters of inquiry, it appears that he makes a business of borrowing small sums on the credit of being a clerk in this office on leave of absence. Very respectfully, &c., JOHN ALLISON, Register."

A Novel Plan for the Improvement of the Ohio River.

The citizens of Pittsburgh, ever liable to be caught with new ideas however impracticable, or improbable, are now bothering their heads with a project to improve the Ohio river from Pittsburgh to Cincinnati. The river between these two cities is troubled with low water, and to overcome this it is proposed to pump water from Lake Erie into Chautauque lake which filling the outlet and Allegheny river will naturally swell the Ohio. Not long since a meeting of the prominent citizens was held at Pittsburgh to discuss the feasibility of this plan. Mr. Thurston said Chautauque lake seemed a pivot around which many points of the river improvement enterprise revolved. The lake, he said, seemed to be fed by some subterranean source, and there was a probability that it might be connected with the larger lakes. A civil engineer, whose position gave considerable weight to his opinion, had expressed it as his opinion that the project of pumping water into Lake Chautauque from Lake Erie was entirely practicable. General Worrell, an eminent engineer, had at a previous meeting laid an elaborate paper before the Commissioners, arguing the feasibility of this plan. General Moorhead said that if there was any way possible to run water from Lake Erie into Chautauque Lake it would supply the river with plenty of water; but he thought this impossible, unless some new discoveries in hydraulic engineering were made. General Power said that Connecticut lake might be made serviceable, but would from its location require to be drained into the Ohio river at Beaver. Chautauque Lake is more favorably located. A committee was then appointed to visit Chautauque Lake and ascertain the practicability of establishing reservoirs in that vicinity. Should this plan be successful, Chautauque will become noted as a county of great resources. Not only furnishing butter, cheese and milk to the surrounding country but water also. The Chautauque News thinks it is a nonsensical idea and says: Will some of our engineering ability—from Geo. B. McClellan down—please inform us how water is to be drawn from lake Erie, a distance of over seven hundred feet, to lake Chautauque, in sufficient quantities to produce a never-ending flood in the Ohio river. Chautauque Lake is fed principally from springs, and her water is as pure as the air above it, which probably accounts for this unquenchable desire to reach it. If you can't live except you have in Chautauque's waters, you will come to Mayville to live, and leave the fifth of the Ohio, and the dust of Pittsburgh behind. But if you will never be satisfied until you give it a test, just prepare an eight hundred feet post, bring it up here, insert it in lake Erie, and stay here to watch developments like the Jews on the walls of the Holy City, until you are thoroughly convinced.—Tribune Journal.

Mountain Cake.—To the yolks of six eggs, well beaten, add two cups of white sugar, three-quarters cup butter, one cup sweet milk, three-and-a-half cups flour, having in it one measure of Bannet Baking Powder. Whites of two eggs, beaten stiff. Make in jelly cake pan. When cold spread each layer with an icing made with the whites of four eggs, beaten stiff, one pound powdered sugar and one table-spoonful extract of lemon. Each can of the Bannet Baking Powder contains a small measure, to be used even full, according to printed directions. If you cannot obtain this really valuable article from your grocer, send twenty-five cents by mail, addressed to Bannet Baking Powder, P. O. Lock Box, 317, Pittsburgh, Pa., and you will receive, postage paid, a quarter pound package, together with a list of fifty valuable Recipes.

Our notice of the competitive examination for the appointment of a cadet at West Point, from the Twenty-Fourth district, which came off at New Brighton on the 11th inst., was by mistake omitted last week. There were sixteen applicants, some were rejected on physical examination. The successful candidate was Mr. Alexander McCarrel Patch, of Housatonic, Washington county, and is a student of the Canonsburg Academy.

The barn of John R. McIlvain, of Somerset township, Washington county, was struck by lightning on the 2d inst. The wind knocked off the weatherboards from one corner, and split a corner post, and killed eighteen sheep, standing near the foundation wall outside, belonging to John A. Huffman. Barn insured.

Mormons Enroute for Utah.—Nearly one thousand emigrants, persons of both sexes, including children, passed through Pittsburgh last week on their way to Salt Lake City. They are described as respectable looking Europeans, cleanly dressed, well behaved and in good spirits.

The Steubenville Gazette, says that but little wool has been sold in that county. The prices range from 38 to 42 cents. The wool growers do not appear very anxious to sell, while the wool buyers do not appear very anxious to purchase.

Washington County Items.—The Valley Railroad will be completed as far as Monongahela City, by the first of August.

Col. Kirk has resigned his position as Captain of the "Washington Greys."

One of the heaviest rain storms that has visited Washington, Pa., this season took place on Monday evening, the 14th inst.

Rev. Dr. Smith, of Canonsburg, who was Professor of Greek in Jefferson College for a number of years, was presented a few days ago, with a purse of $100 by the Alumni of the class of '63.

Dr. Iseman's house, of this place, was struck with lightning during the severe thunder storm that passed over here on Thursday morning of last week. It tore off a part of the roof, splintered the side of the house and cracked one of the corner foundation stones. The inmates were shocked some, but not injured. Mrs. Reed, living a short distance from the Doctor's, was knocked down, and others felt it.

James Alexander Mowatt, Esq., who for upwards of twenty years was connected with the press of Great Britain and Ireland, and popularly known as one of the most eloquent, logical and forcible lecturers of the United Kingdom, and one of the most zealous advocates of prohibition in that country will address the people of Rochester and vicinity on Tuesday evening, 29th inst., at half past seven o'clock, in the M. E. Church of Rochester, upon the subject of Local Prohibition, and the various phrases of the temperance question as was presented to the people. Turn out, friends, and hear plain truths, it will cost you nothing.

Jacob Davis, Esq., a young member of the Pittsburgh bar, who was first admitted to the practice of law here about five years ago, died of consumption on Monday at the residence of his mother, near Paris Washington county. Mr. Davis had, we understand, succeeded very well and was making considerable progress in his profession. He was an estimable young man, good citizen, and during the war served with distinction in the eighty-fifth Pennsylvania Volunteers.

The Lawrence Guardian says: A new railroad company has been organized in Meadville under the name of the Mahoning & Pittsburgh Railroad Company, with A. S. Dickson as President, and J. H. Lenhart, Leon C. Magaw, M. Park Davis, A. H. Steele and John T. Wann as Directors. The road is to be constructed from a point at or near where the Pennsylvania and Ohio Canal crosses the State line in the county of Lawrence, to the city of New Castle in said county.

One of our town girls broke off an engagement because her lover wore cheap paper collars, and yet at the same time (the story may not be true) she was wearing garters torn from an old pillow slip.

Some of our young ladies say that they don't object to good looking young men gazing square in their faces, but it makes them awful angry when they look back and find the lads looking back too.

Mr. Geo. Vandegrift, of New Castle, lost three children by whooping cough in two weeks.

Great preparations are being made at Pittsburgh for the accommodation of delegates to the State teachers convention to assemble there next month: A programme of exercises has been prepared which will prove most interesting and acceptable. During the session, addresses will be delivered by Rev. Geo. P. Hays, Charles H. Verrill, Edward Gideon, of Philadelphia, Superintendent Wickersham and others. Arrangements will be made so that members of the Association may visit the different manufacturing establishments of the city, and among other exercises, an open air meeting will be held in one of the many groves of the suburbs.

A runaway.—On Wednesday of last week, as Mr. Brierly, wife and baby were coming down the Brighton hill to the bridge, in a buggy, the horse became unmanageable owing to some breakage of the harness and undertook to run. Mr. Brierly jumped from the buggy, but held fast to the lines and was dragged some distance, but finally succeeded in stopping the horse and preventing any further damage.

The Career of a Great Remedy. Twenty summers have elapsed since it was briefly announced that a new vegetable tonic and alterative, bearing the name of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, had been added to the list of preventive and restorative medicines. The modest advertisement which invited attention to the preparation stated that it had been used with great success in private practice as a cure for dyspepsia, bilious complaints, constipation and intermittent fever. It was soon discovered that the article possessed extraordinary properties. The people, of every class, tested its merits as a tonic, stimulant, corrective and restorative, and found that its effects more than fulfilled their hopes and expectations. From that time to the present its course has been upward and onward, and it stands to-day at the head of all medicines of its class, American or imported, in the magnitude of its sales and its reputation as a safe, agreeable and potent invigorant and restorative. For languor and debility, lack of appetite and gastric disturbances so common during the summer months, it is absolutely infallible. Indigestion, bilious disorders, constipation, nervousness, periodical fevers, and all the ordinary complaints generated by a vitiated and humid atmosphere, vanish under its renovating and regulating influence. This is its record, avouched by volumes of intelgent testimony, extending over a period of a fifth of a century, and comprehending the names of thousands of well known citizens belonging to every class and calling. In Europe it is thought a great thing to obtain the patronage of royalty or a "patent medicine," but Hostetter's Bitters has been spontaneously approved by millions of independent sovereigns, and its patent consists in their endorsement.
