HISTORY OF THE BEAVER VAL LEY.

Correspondence of the Pittsburgh Gazette. BEAVER VALLEY, June, 1873. [Paper No. 18.]

"SURFACE INDICATIONS" OF PROSPERITY Bringing the notes on New Brighton down to the present time, we find one of the most prosperous and pleasant little cities in the valley. In some respects its usually energetic business character is somewhat dimmed by causes that cannot be more than temporary, and that cannot to any great degree do the place any injury. The factories, mills and shops of various kinds, are being worked to their full capacity, and on the surface, at least, there is every indication of the most cheering prosperity. Employment is given to hundreds of intelligent and capable men and women, who, in turn, bless the town with the means obtained for the labor. A -brief reference to the various industries will give a more correct knowledge of what New Brighton is, and of what it is capable, than any mere statements on my part could possibly give. First, in order, as being probably the most interesting factory in town, is placed the "Keystone Woolen Mills," founded and put in working order in the early history of the town, by Messrs. B. & W. Wilde. The history of this factory has been a very interesting one, having been several times a victim to the flames, the last time being in 1869, when the largest of the buildings was burned to the ground. It was immediately replaced by a fine brick structure, which has so far escaped the fate of its predecessors. The work done by this company cannot be excelled, and especially have they done good work in the class of shawls manufactured by them. About one hundred and twenty hands have been in the employ of the company, giving work is receiving a splendid patronage from to a large number of ladies and girls. With proper management this factory also established a reputation for doing ought to be a great success.

The "Pioneer Flax mills" were established here in the year 1850, and are now run by Messrs Bently & Gerwig. This is the only establishment of its kind between the Allegheny Mountains and the Pacific coast. The goods produced consist of all kinds of yarns and twines. plain and colored, and all kinds of small cordage. The amount of stock used is about $500,000 annually, of which the greater quantity is flax—both domestic and foreign, the ordinary qualities being made from domestic and the fine qualities from foreign, especially Dutch and Irish. The number of hands employed is usually about sixty, a portion of whom

The motive power is the water power of the Beaver river, which has supplied them so well that they have not lost a single day, except holidays, for the last two years. Their machinery is mostly imported from England. The heating of the building is done by steam, making the works very comfortable. The long experience, the industry and enterprise of this firm have given their goods a big reputation and a very wide circulation. They are shipping goods all over the country from coast to coast. It is encouraging also to notice that the demand for their twines and yarns keep pace with their constantly increasing capacity. A few more establishments like this would make the town one of thd most desirable in Western Pennsylvania. Adjoining this establishment is the Tuttle Machine shop, engaged in the making of machines, &c., and which is enjoying a good trade. In the foundry line there is also the firm of Messrs Merrick & Co., one of the most enterprising and successful foundaries in this section of the country. It has only been in existence about eight years, but in that time has built up a fine trade. They manufacture grate fronts of all kinds, fenders, summer pieces, machinery, patent grates, &c. The foundry is located in the old car works, and has in employ at present fourteen hands. There is also in the machine line the Penn Bridge and Machine Works, carried on by Messrs. T. B. White & Sons. Mr. T. B. White is one of the most favorably known bridge builders in all this region, and has been engaged in the business since 1852. In 1865, at the close of the war, when his sons returned to the arts of peace, he became associated with them in the business, until the demand for iron bridges became so great that, in 1868, the present works were started, and the building of iron bridges entered in-

They have in employ thirty-five hands stands, fittings, &c. Their works were very materially enlarged last spring, to business.

They are doing a very extensive business, and are kept well up with orders. May their business still more enlarge, until their reputation shall have become national. A very interesting business is carried on by Mr. Charles Coale, in the manufacture of Japan varnish, which was brought into public notice just after the beginning of the late war. It has not only been a very extensive but also a very profitable business to the discoverer. His productions have run up as high as $22,000 per year, from which an exceedingly snug income was derived. Of course, while it has given the manufact business.

turer a good return, the means so gained shadow never grow less. Within the limits of the town, there is also a very successful pottery in operation, it being the only one that utilizes the clay in the

The New Brighton Flower Pot and ple to use and not produce. Terra Cotta Works are under the proprietorship of Messrs. T. Elverson. Son Mr. Elverson in 1862, and has now become one of the fixtures of the valley. and lawn vases, flue pipe, chimney tops, covering tile for green house, flues, &c. The coal and clay they have in abundance on their own premises, and so far they have but tapped the immense vein of clay that runs all through the valley. Located on the river is found the shops of A. Fetter & Sons, who are quite extensively engaged in making sash, doors, mouldings, &c., and of course are having a good run of trade, as they are gentlemen who understand their business in every particular. Near them is the Planing Mill of Messrs. McPherson & McClain, young gentlemen who fully understand their business and merit the patronage of the people. They have had charge of the mill but a short time and have had not time yet to establish a reputation, which will come in time.

There is also a manufactory of spokes and fellows, under a patent that has threatened to revolutionize the wheel business. It is also a comparatively new enterprise, though it is said to be in a fair way to make a great success. The Cutlery Works, under unwise management, have suspended for the present. and are not considered as one of the industries of the place. On the bank of the river there is located a very extensive scouring establishment, and which the people. A dye establishment has superior work.

It is in short

THE BOAST OF THE MODEST FOLKS of New Brighton, that what they do in the way of manufacturing, producing, &c., is done in the most approved style. It is safe to admit this fact, and it speaks well for all concerned.

The flouring mills are constantly employed, being those of Mr. Wade Wilson, Klein, Mellon & Douglas, gentlemen who understand their business and accordingly have plenty of it to do. The brands of flour sent out from these mills undoubtedly stand at the head of the trade. If as well advertised, they would soon eclipse the fancy brands that every now and then startle the world by their flashing and aggressive advertisements. The schedule of productive business is completed by mentioning the six brickyards that are operated here. Three of them-Messre. C. K. Chamberlin & Co., Charles Coale and John Glass-are engaged in the manufacture of fire-brick. while Mr. E. Smith, McManagle and Paden manufactured brick, and although they do a large business in their season. they but touch the great fields of material that lie and wait for the day when they shall be utilized.

BRIGHTON'S BUSINESS HOUSES.

In business houses the people of this town are certainly favored. There are "enough for all and enough for each," and possibly too many for their own good. Three excellent banks supply the wherewithal for short business men. The National Bank of Beaver County is one of the most substantial institutions of the kind in the State, and a good investment too. Mr. John Miner, one of our oldest business men, is its President, and the cashier, Mr. Edward Hoopes, one of the most favorably known gentlemen in Beaver Valley. He comes of the good old pioneer stock, his father being surveyor of the original New Brighton, and associated with the earliest of those who undertook to make use of the resources of the valley. The banking house of Messra R. E. & H. Hoopes, sons of the cashier, has the best business of any bank in the valley. They enjoy the confidence of their business associates, and the house is known as a thoroughly reliable one in every particular. Messrs. G. S. Barker & Co., is a comparatively new firm, yet is already doing a large business. They are clever, accommodating and thoroughly reliable gentlemen, and will ultimately reach the top in valley banking. There are two hotels in town and more needed. In the department of justice the rights of the people are zealously guarded by five gentlemen, whose shingles call to the passing public and manufacture iron, wood and combilifor a recognition of the invaluable sernation bridges, railroad frogs, switch vices. Of course they are moderately well patronized by those who need their services. The health of the town is unpermit them doing all kinds of repair and | der the supervision of eight disciples of jobbing work, in addition to their regular | Esculapius, and the god of fortune seems to favor each.

The number of stores, groceries, etc., is "too tedious to mention." They are seen from the well loaded shelves of the largest establishment to the modest little candy shop. Nothing more in this line is needed for the prosperity of the town. Three thriving drug stores are doing each a good business. business is a larger number of producing broken glass? How carefully she lifted establishments. A town can't live on each foot? How slowly and cautiously stores alone, nor even on the prestige of she set it down again! So would the text past business successes, but must give from which I am about to speak have you

There is enough business for the preshave helped much in improving a part ent population, but no further addition of the town. Well, may his income and of working people to the place is desirable until avenues of employment are opened.

The people do not always seem to realize this fact, and hence the senseless and ruinous cry that we want more peo-

A few more non-producers in this town would necessitate either a removal on the & Co. The business was commenced by part of some or suffering on the part of many. HE DIDN'T LIKE BEARS.

Probably no branch of business affords such a field to the ludicrous side of nature as that of the theatrical profession, and a short anecdote related to us a few days since by a friend who is connected with the profession is too good to be lost, and the fact of its being an actual occurrence will give it a keener relish.

About a year ago a troupe was started from Boston to make a short eastern tour through the principal towns. In the troupe was the leader of the orchestra, Jake Tannerbaum, a gentleman of fine musical abilities, and decidedly Teutonic extraction, who liked his beer and cheese but had a mortal horror of our Yankee dish of pork and beans. Among the places they visited was the famous "brick and herring" town of of Tawnton, where our favorite dish is always to be found on Sunday. The boys in the troupe, aware of Jake's peculiar aversion, resolved to have a little tun at his expense, and accordingly "put up a job" on him. The landlord was let into the secret, the waiter feed, and the fun commenced on Jake's appearance at the breakfast table, where he was politely asked by the waiter:

"Will you have a few beans for break-

"No," was the emphatic reply, "I dond vant no peans." "Oh," said the waiter, "you must eat

beans; everybody here eats beans on Sun-With a look of extreme disgust Jake replied: "I told you I vont eat peans; vat's the madder; are you crazy. Gif me some sdeak and fried perdaders."

will have to wait till it is cooked." And wait he did for about fifteen minutes, when his temper getting the best of him ing any stain or blemish from both hands and face. he left the table to see the landlord and state his grievances. No sooner was he and Jake not finding the landlord was compelled to go without his breakfast. Resolved not to be cheated out of his breakfast he put on his hat and went in search of a lager beer saloon where he could get his favorite bologna and beer; but alss for poor Jake, the Sunday law in force, and nothing was to be had, so he had to wait to noon to satisfy his appetite, which was never poor. Well the dinner bell sounded, and up went our hero, who, as before, was met by the faithful waiter, who again approached him, and smilingly asked:

"Well, Mr. T., will you have a few beans to commence with?"

This was too much, and the answer. not couched in the most amiable tone, came

"No, py dunter, I tole you two dimes I vont eat beans."

"But you must have a few beans," persisted the waiter. "Mine Got in himmel, who der h-ll is vat I'm drying to find oud." "Oh, very well," responded the waiter. "If you can't speak civilly I shall not going to eat dis dinner, you or me; dat's

Up jumped the irate Dutchman to again find the landlord, which he did, and related his grievances, but was partially pacified on being told the waiter should be promptly discharged, and told him to go up stairs and get his dinner, while he in the meantime was going to take a short ride. Back went Jake, only to find that the boys had again locked the door; and he was wild. Seizing his hat, he again rushed out to make a more thorough search for something to eat, but with no better result than before. Ashamed to come back too goon, poor Jake waited until near supper time, when he again returned to the hotel, and seated himself in a corner, not a civil word could any one get out of him. Shortly, supper was an-

the table. Prompt to his case, the waiter again went for him, but before he could ask him for his order, Jake broke out:

nounced, and Jake was one of the first at

"Yaas, you may bring me some peans you was right this morning ven you say I moost eat peans; you may bring me some peans;" and for the first time and probably the last time in his life Jake, eat beans; but how the lager and bologna did suffer whan the company struck the next town!

A QUAINT sort of person, the Rev. Mark Wilkes, once introduced his text in this manner: "My hearers, did you ever see a cat? Did you ever see a cat walk? Did you ever see a cat walk upon the top of a wall? Did you ever see a cat walk The only lack probably in the way of upon the top of a wall covered with employment to the people, or close up act.
