

Execution.—Yesterday between one and two o'clock, in pursuance of his sentence, George Brown was executed on board the schooner Retrieve, at anchor in the East river, for the crime of murder and piracy. He was attended from the prison by two clergymen, by the civil officers and marines as stated in our papers yesterday. He confessed his crime, was penitent, and met his fate with fortitude. An immense concourse of people witnessed the melancholy scene; the wharves, windows and roofs of the stores, yards and rigging of the vessels at the wharves, were crowded with spectators.

The procession was formed in front of the Bridewell, in the following order:—

First—Two of our City Marshals.
Second—Eight U. S. Marines, with fixed bayonets.

Third—The U. S. Marshal and Sheriff.
Fourth—Eight U. S. Marines, with fixed bayonets.

Fifth—A Cart in which was a coffin, with the prisoner dressed in white, seated on it, attended by two Clergymen, who as they passed through the crowd, sung a hymn adapted to the occasion.

Sixth—Eight U. S. Marines with fixed bayonets brought up the rear.

The corps of Marines which discharged a painful duty on this occasion, under the direction of subaltern officers, acted in a manner highly honorable to the character of the navy.

It is astonishing that among the number of boats on the water at the time, only one was upset, in which were eight persons, two of whom were women, and three children! They were all saved by other boats.

There is no crime in the catalogue of offences equally black as murder, and particularly on board of a vessel where the unhappy sufferer may be far from help, and where his situation demands peculiar care and protection. This man was the mate of the vessel, the second officer, and bound to take as much care of the property, and exhibit as fair an example of character, as the commander; but, seduced by an "accursed thirst of gold," the root of so much evil, he inhumanly committed the crime for which he has suffered;—let his fate be a warning. The conduct of the Marshal, Mr. Morris, throughout this unpleasant affair, corresponded with his well known humanity and excellent character.

Brown in his confession states; that he is but little rising 22 years of age, and was born in the city of New York. The schooner Retrieve was lying in the port of Cadiz, in want of part of a crew; Brown made application to Capt. Lewis for a berth, and was employed as mate. On the voyage to New Orleans, thirst for gain induced him to impart to the crew his determination to murder Capt. Lewis which they assented to. On the voyage, the captain being seated on deck, Brown knocked him down with the tiller of the boat which rendered him insensible.—in this situation, after robbing and stripping him, he, with the aid of three others, threw him into the sea. The captain was heard to beg for his life, but his entreaties were refused, and he was left to perish. The vessel was then carried into Omoa, a port on the Spanish Maine, Brown assuming Capt. Lewis' name, and disposal of the cargo. The crew, except the cook and a seaman named Nicholas Palermo, entered on board other vessels. While at Omoa, in consequence of a beating Brown gave Palermo, the latter was sent to the hospital, and confined for some time when he made a disclosure of the whole transaction.

The three persons were immediately imprisoned, the others of the crew having made their escape. While in prison the cook died, and Brown and Palermo were brought to the United States for trial. Palermo was the evidence against Brown.

Maryland.—Complete returns of the October elections in Maryland have been published, by which it appears (says the Franklin Gazette) that 51 republicans and 29 federalists have been elected to the Assembly. The republicans will have a majority on a joint vote of both Houses, for Governor and two U. States senators. Mr. Pinkney and Edward Loyd, both able and distinguished republicans, are named as the contemplated senators in Congress from the state. Maryland may be considered as regenerated from Federal Misrule.

At the different seaports and naval stations of the Union, the flags of the shipping were displayed at half mast, and minute guns fired as a testimony of respect for the lamented Commodore PERRY.

The Surgeon of the French frigate Arethusa, while lying at N. York, a few days since, transmitted for publication in the Gazette the following remarkable cures:—

"During our stay at Annapolis a great many of the crew of the French frigate Arethusa were attacked with cholera morbus, which was quickly put a stop to by the use of rice water, very strong, with much sugar and a little laudanum in it, drank plentifully. Out of one hundred and forty sick, only one died."
