

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

Associate Judges.

At a Court of Common Pleas for the county of Bucks, a case was stated for the opinion of the Court, being a question of the law, depending principally upon the construction of Henry Jamison's Will. It was argued by counsel, and the judges differed in opinion; the two associate judges being in favor of the plaintiff, and the President of the court in favor of the defendants. After judgment thus given by a majority of the court in favor of the plaintiff, the defendants took a writ of error to the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania where the case was recently argued by counsel, and the judges of the Supreme Court unanimously confirmed the opinion given by the Associate Judges of Bucks county.

Peter A. Browne, for the plaintiff.
Matthias Morris, for the defendants.

It appears from certain official documents which have been published by the executive of Georgia that General D. B. Mitchell, late American agent with the Creek tribe of Indians, was dismissed from office by the President for being concerned in the illicit introduction of African slaves into that state, and for affording facilities to their transportation into Alabama. The President has done himself honor, and acted in accordance with the sentiments of the American people generally, in thus decisively setting the mark of his reprobation upon a public officer implicated in countenancing and abetting the nefarious practice of introducing Africans as slaves into the country in defiance of its laws and of every other law human and divine. *F. INTERESTING FROM BRAZIL.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Rio de Janeiro, to his friend in Washington City, dated

"H. M. F. Majesty has at last decided to send his eldest son to Portugal, with the title of Constable, and full power to grant an amnesty and re-establish the royal authority. This determination was made known on the 6th inst. to the ministers of England, Austria, Prussia and Russia, as representing here, with the exception of France, the high Allied Powers, and having been more or less engaged in producing it, I was soon afterwards informed, that the Prince would leave this as soon as possible after the confinement of the Princess, which was expected to take place on the 16th, and may now be looked for every day. On asking whether she would accompany her husband, I was answered, that if he insisted upon it, the king would not oppose her wishes; but that he would retain his children, as pledges to this country for the permanency of the throne among them. What effect however the revolution at Bahia, of which we have just heard, may have upon these determinations, is not known. As the king has adopted the measure reluctantly, he may seize the first pretext for delaying its execution, and thus thwart all the advantages which Count Palmella expected from it. Such my friends is the lamentable state of things here. As early as the beginning of December it was known here that Bahia hung upon a thread, and nothing has been done since that tend to strengthen the bonds which unite the different parts of this country. The consequence is, that Bahia shook off these feeble bonds on the 8th instant, and is now under a provisional government, which proposes to recognize no other power but that of the constitution which is to be framed for Portugal.

The revolution was brought about by the Portuguese regiments, and only cost the lives of a few madmen, who endeavored to check it. The King's Governor, Count Palmas, was called to preside over the newly formed government, but declined, on the ground of the oath which he had taken to his Majesty. The other members of the government were, it is said, chiefly lawyers, and men known for their talents.

Since hearing of this Revolution a considerable anxiety begins to manifest itself here—but apathy has become so habitual a state, that the King will, it is supposed suffer himself to be surprised here, as he has been elsewhere.

We have three regiments of Portuguese in garrison at this port, who are known to entertain sentiments similar to those of their brethren at Bahia. The government is justly afraid of them, and has either not the means or courage to send them away. A middle course was taken which was to ask of them whether they wanted to return to Portugal; and as they almost unanimously expressed that wish, and no preparations are making to satisfy it, they are more uneasy and eager for revolt than they were before. The native troops which are inferior to them in number and discipline, would not alone restrain them; and they do not look for opposition from the militia, which, like themselves are interested in a change. To render the king's situation still more alarming, he has a ministry composed of three persons who can agree upon nothing; is surrounded by sycophants, who are not even wise enough to be afraid, and show it; and what is worst of all, has himself an unconquerable repugnance for the institutions which his people ask of him. I fear that troubles await him."

To Bridge Builders.

Notice is hereby given, that the undersigned Commissioners appointed by an act of the general assembly, for building a bridge over the West branch of the Susquehanna river, near the mouth of Anderson's creek, where the turnpike crosses the same, will attend at the house of William Packer, in Clearfield county, on Wednesday the 9th day of May next, and receive proposals for building the said Bridge. The said bridge is to be constructed with good and substantial materials, with stone abutments and piers (if necessary) of a sufficient width, well compacted together with lime and sand mortar above low water-mark; well floored with oak plank, and covered with pine shingles. The contractor will receive the Governor's draft on the State Treasury for one moiety of his contract as soon as the piers and abutments are erected, and the balance will be paid in like manner when the Commissioners certify to the Governor that the work is completed. A detailed plan of the bridge and work will be expected with the proposals.

WM. ARMOR,

CHARLES CALLAGHEN.

Bellefonte, April 25, 1821.

Twenty dollars Reward.

THE subscriber was met on the evening of the 16th instant on the road leading from Bellefonte to the end of Nittany mountain, about three miles from the former place, and robbed of forty five dollars in Bank notes of the following description:—3 ten dollar notes on the bank of the United States—2 five dollar notes on a bank in Wheeling, and one three, and two one dollar notes on the bank of Steubenville. The robbery was perpetrated by two men, armed with two pistols one large and one small one, and a dirk with an ivory handle. One of the men was of a sandy complexion sandy whiskers, extending under his chin, about 5 feet 9 or 10 inches high, wore a straight bodied bottle green coat—dark coloured pantaloons with a broad fall down, and one or two bullet buttons on each side, his right eye was marked with a small white spot on the ball. The other was about five feet five inches high, of a pale complexion, black hair, and wore a coarse blue cloth coat with short skirts, and the buttons very far apart on the hanches. This little man was remarkably ferocious in his behaviour.

As the good of society indispensably requires that these two marauders should be apprehended and brought to justice, the subscriber will give the above reward for their apprehension and conviction.
