From the Germantown Telegraph.

Cultivation for Indian Corn-Corn is a cereal which requires deep soil to produce a large crop. The ploughing should therefore be deep and well done. I have generally the droppings without affording the found two yoke of exen to make the animal that swallowed the grain any best team; for two years I have used more nourishment than fragments of two yoke of oxen to a heavy plow for turning the first furrow and one yoke to a light subsoil plow to follow them, without throwing the soil out of the furrow but simply to loosen it up.

Do not be afraid of turning up "that yaller stuff," but if the subsoil is cold and clayey, it is better to not bring to much of it to the surface; in this case the depth must be increased by degrees.

If the soil is stiff, let the field be first harrowed around and around the way- the plow went, diaognally in both directions, and lastly backward and forward, parallel to the longest zide.

If the corn is to be put in with hoes, mark out with a plow across the face of the hill, if the ground is rolling; then select a good, stiff pole twelve feet long, four feet from each end attach two ox-chains, which shl'd have one end dragging on the ground. Let a man and boy or two boys take each an end of the pole, and pass up the fence at right angles to the marking out of the plow, take care to keep the chain next to the fence parallel to the same, and about fout feet distant. In coming back, the end of the pole should be kent over the last chain mark. A common ox-chain, say ten feet long, will make a plain mark if the ground is in proper order.

Cover the corn carefully, and never more than from 12 to 2 inches grain but little. Teamsters may rest deep. If planted deeper than this, it assured that it will pay well for all will be longer coming up, and after it comes up it will grow very well until it is three or four inches high, when | Potatoes-Seed Required for an Acro. it will remain stationary for ten days or two weeks. By examining we will find that the first joint is below the ers is to allow ten bushels to the acre. surface of the soil, also that the roots | This is very indefinite. The amount are decaying, while new ones are be- of seed required for an acre depends ing thrown out from the joint; these new roots require some ten or fifteen days for complete formation, and during this the plant remains stationary as far as growth is concerned. As soon as the new roots are fully formed the old ones will entirely disappear, and the growth will proceed as usual. From actual experiments with grains taken from the same car and apart each way, you will have 4,840 the same parts of the car, I have arrived at the following: - Corn planted | potato in each hill, according to Mr. one inch deep came up in eight days; that planted 12 inches deep required nine and a half days; and that 2 inches deep, ten days; 24 inches deep, eleven and a quarter days; 3 three feet apart, and place your sets inches deep, twelve days; 31 inches deep, thirteen days; 4 inches deep, fourteen and a half days; 51 inches deep, eighteen days; 6 inches deep, twenty-one days. The last lot came up and grew until about three inches high, when it remained stationary for a long time and finally died. As soon as the rows are visible, the hoe-harrow should be passed twice in the middle of the row, but should not go to near the corn until it is three or four inches high. When the corn is about six inches high, remove the right-hand back-tooth of the hoe-harrow, and substitute for it a piece of boiler plate shaped like the mouldboard of a plow. This will hill the corn but not so high as if done with a plow. Do not work the corn when the ground is too wet, for nothing is gained by it. Work it often and well, for it will be a good investment. As soon as the corn is large enough to be broken by the swingletree, the latter should be shortened to one foot or eighteen inches.

Scurf of the legs of Poultry.-In some of the larger breeds of fowls -and as we have observed especially with the Brahmas, on reaching two or three years- the legs occasionally become much swollen, and covered with a scab of scurf. For the Republican. How to Bake Beans. - After washing your beans place them in a pot of cold water over the fire, let them boil until cooked through, but not soft, then place them in a bakepan with a piece of raw salt pork in the centre, distribute over the whole two or three table spoonfuls of melasses, then fill the pan with cold water and place them in the oven for three or four hours until brown on the top. when they are ready for the table. The oven should not be hot enough to burn them, and water should be added when occasion required it during the baking. Beans cooked any other way are not fit to be placed on the ta- low coated with butter for a good arble. So says BEANS.

It is an expensive system of management to feed whole grain to any kind of animals. All kinds of cereal grain are provided with a tough hull or skin, which the digestive powers of most animals will not dissolve; consequently, if the skin is not broken before the grain enters the stomach. the kernels will usually pass off with wood of equal size.

During the month of August last, the writer procured a quantity of horse manure for top dressing strawberry plants, and in a few days after the mulch was spread around the plants the broken kernels of oats vegetated, so that the entire surface of the ground appeared as green as a

This fact showed conclusively that much of the grain had never afforded the animals that swallowed it any nourishment at all.

Young horses having sound and sharp teeth will sometimes crush every kernel. But old horses with poor teeth will frequently swallow half their mess of oats without breaking the skin of the kernels.

When mills are at a distant and people will persist in feeding whole grain, it will always be found advantageous to soak the grain at least twenty-four hours before feeding it. Suppose, for example, a teamster is accustomed to feed a team eight Let the grain be put in a pail and covered with warm water every time the team is fed. This plan would require three pails when a team is fed three times daily. Warm water is far better than cold water, as cold water in cold weather, will soften the trouble to soak grain before feeding it.—N. Y. Times.

The general rule laid down by farm on the mode of planting, (whether in hills or drills, with cut or whole potatoes,) the kind of seed used, and the nature of the soil.

Every man of my acquaintance who attempted this year to plant an acre with cut seed in drills, using ten bushels, fell short form one-third to onehalf. If you plant in hills, three feet hills to the acre. One medium sized Harrison's plan, would require about 20 bushcls. The average number of mcdium-sized potatoes in a bushel being about 240. If you plant in rows, twelve inches apart in the rows, you require 14,520 sets. By measuring a peck or a bushel of the average size of your potatoes, and counting them, you can soon calculate the number of bushels you require.

Unless each hill yields as much as three stalks in a row, it would be less profitable to cultivate in hills than by drill.

Just weigh two or five pounds of seed for each method, and make the experiment, next season, for yourself-Acurate experiment is required, in or der to successful farming.

One barrel Early Rose cut to single eyes will make about 1400 eyes, and will plant an acre that will produce one hundred bushels, worth five dollars per bushel, or $500, next season

Cost of potatoes and cultivation, one hundred dellars; leaving a net profit of four hundred dollars per acre.

FEEDING STOCK.—Every returning spring the cow and horse doctors in the country have plenty of business but as soon as the grass start's so that the cattle can get a good bite, their occupation is gone; and why Simply because green food is natural medicine, and more effective than the cattle doctor's drugs. Perhaps you have neglected to raise root crops; if so, try and exchange with your neighbors, or purchase a supply, and do not say that your cattle have done well without them, and will do so again, because there is a chance of failing, and the fault will be your own. Would you like to be kept on member that your animals have a keen taste for good things as well, as language. FOR EARMERS SHORT OF HAY.-If the farmer is short of hay he should resort to the straw stack, the straw of which, if cut the proper length by the aid of a straw cutter, dampened with water, and meal, or even buckwheat or wheat bran sprinkled over it, at the rate of a quart of meal to a half bushel of shortened straw, will furnish a quality of food relished by horses, cattle or other stock, that will keep them in better health and at less expense than by purchasing hay.
