And now, Sir, on the eve of your de- parture, you find yourself surrounded by your neighbors and fellow citizens, of all ages, sex and condition, who have known you in all viscissitudes of life, assembled here, to bid you a God speed on your journey, and to carry with you their best wishes for the health, happinessand prosperity of yourself and family, hop- inz that, in the course of human events, you may be permitted to return again to your home, and as citizens of Bellefonie. Governor Curtin arose to reply. He never appeared to better advantage,— Always eloquent and dignified on the rostrum, it did seem to us that, upon this occasion. he surpassed himself—arising above self, forgetting that he had ever been basely slandered and maligned—he showed only his kind—his sympathetic feelings. We have not been furnished with his farewell address, and, while we might, from memory, report the greater part of it, we do not think it fair to do so. His speech was replete with love for his country, his State and his county.— He referred to the time when he was ad- mitted to the practice of the Law at the Centre county Bar, he referred to his cotemporaries at that time—the changes that death had wrought among the mema bers of the Bar, in the most feeling man-	in the complexion and texture of the skin, you must be healthy; and to be healthy, you must live in accordance with nature's laws; take an abundance of exercise, breathe purcair, and be tem- perate in all your habits.
