JOE WORK.—Posters, Circulars, Bill Heads, Cards, Paper Books, Work of all kinds, neatly executed at the REPUBLICAN OFFICE, at reasonable rates.

READ.—The attention of our readers and friends is invited to the several new advertisements.

SAVE MONEY.—If you want posters, circulars, bill heads, cards, paper-books, first-class job work, plain or fancy, call at the REPUBLICAN OFFICE. All work done at Philadelphia prices.

A MONSTER.—Samuel S. Gray, one of the most enterprising farmers of Half Moon Pt., raised a steer, and fed it only a short time before he sold it to B. V. Black Esq., of this city. It weighed, on foot, 2200, and dressed net 1138 lbs. Can any of our farmers beat that? If so, we would like to hear from them. Mr. Black makes it a point to buy only the best of cattle.

FARM FOR SALE.—Persons desiring to purchase a first-rate farm, should call on, and at the REPUBLICAN OFFICE, or upon Bond Valentine Esq. This farm contains about 195 acres, forty acres of which are meadow. The buildings—house, barn and out-buildings—are all of the very best. It is located about 1 1/2 miles from Bellefonte. There is a great bargain in this farm. Farmers desiring a first-class farm, should call and see it. Terms easy.

NE PLUS ULTRA.—Persons wishing to see what a job of first-class plastering looks like, should call and examine the work at Daniel Garman's brick addition to his hotel, or the splendid mansion erected by Wm. F. Reynolds, on Allegheny street. The plastering in both these buildings was done by O. Lambert and O. W. Vanvalin. We have seen, and noticed in our columns before, work that we thought could not be beaten. But we must confess that the work above referred to surpasses any thing we have yet seen in Bellefonte. We are pleased to see the desire on the part of our mechanics to excel each other in the character of their work. It is creditable to the mechanic, while it secures good work for the employer. Lambert & Co., so far appear to hold the trump card. People wishing plastering done, should give them a call.

THE BROCKROTH HOUSE.—The Brockroth House, Housler & Krom, Proprietors, is one of the best and most justly celebrated Hotels in Central Pennsylvania. Its table is not excelled by any hotel in the State. The rooms, beds and bedding are all of the very best. It is, in every sense of the word, a first-class house.

We were led to these remarks upon seeing an article in the Look Haven Guide, which does Messrs. Housler & Krom great injustice. While it is creditable to them to advertise our business, we think a word of advice to our friends the Kinsale Bros., not out of place. It is this: While in your anxiety to bring your little paper into the notice of the public, you should be careful not to overdo the thing. And while you have a perfect right to praise any person, or hotel you may see proper, you have no right to speak disparagingly of, or to libel others. Such conduct will not pay.

THE MINERS IN LOCK.—Our old friend, J. S. Somerville has purchased a Miller's Lamp, for the purpose of burning the Danforth Petroleum fluid. It is not necessary for us to go into detail in describing the lamp. Suffice it to say that all minor can, by the use of these lamps, and three dollars per month, save from two to three dollars per month. The Stone Shop miners, we are informed, have thrown away their old lamps, and now use none but Mr. Somerville's patent. Truly, wasters never cease. And a saving of $2. per month is not to be sneezed at.

May, Loeb & Co., of Snow Shoof, and Loeb, May & Loeb, of Bellefonte, own the right to sell the Petroleum fluid in Centre, and Clearfield counties. We congratulate Mr. Somerville on his invention, and hope that May, Loeb & Co. may succeed in giving the people of the above named counties plenty of light.—More light is what we need; especially in Clearfield county. "Let there be light!"

DORMED IN ONE GRAVE.—A very singular occurrence happened on Saturday, the 17th inst., near Mill Hill, Clinton county, Pa. The facts, as we learn from our reporter, are as follows: A man about 65 years of age, named John Carr, and his wife, about the same age, lived near Mill Hill. They both died on last Saturday afternoon, under very singular circumstances. Mrs. Carr had been afflicted with an eating cancer on the breast for over two years, keeping on its terrible and fatal course all the time, until death relieved her, on the 17th inst., as above stated. Mr. Carr had been very feeble, and in bad health, for some years. Some time ago he had something like a stroke of palsy, which entirely disabled him. He lingered and suffered until last Saturday, about forty minutes after the death of his wife, when he also died. They were very poor people, and, for some time, were kindly supported, to the credit of the congregation by the aid of the Presbyterian church at that place.—Of this church they had long been exemplary members.

On Sunday, the 18th inst., they were buried in the same grave. Together they spent their younger days; they enjoyed the pleasures of middle age together; suffered in the same way; and were buried in the same grave together; and, it is hoped and believed, by all who knew them, that together they entered a blissful eternity, to go out no more forever. They had no children.

Our Western Letter.

Chicago, July 21, 1869.

DEAR REPUBLICAN.—In Mr. Slang's dictionary, among many other beautiful and expressive words and phrases, we have "red-hot." If interrogated on the subject, I think Mr. Slang would tell you that this phrase originated in Southern Illinois, for if there is a "red hot" country on earth, it surely is Southern Illinois. I was down there some days since—down in Egypt, "ferment" St. Louis. Notwithstanding the good quality of the rail, I found it so hot that I could scarcely maintain my equilibrium. I think "old sol" gets nearer the earth in that section, than any place I ever saw. He certainly has a warm side for the "Egyptians." So has the cholera bug. What's a cholera bug? I'll tell you all I know, and that is that the cholera bug is—a cholera bug; that's all. It is about the size of the point of a cambric needle, one-eighth of an inch beyond the point. I never saw a more friendly kind of bug. They stink a "heap" closer than a brother, or even a brother's wife, or a cousin. In fact, they are almost too familiar on short acquaintance.—Like some people you have seen. They don't generally await formal introduction; but have a way of introducing themselves.—They approach a stranger in a very feeling manner. You can't help but feel for them; but they ain't always there when you feel for them. They don't send up their cards when they call, nor do they wait their turns, but come regardless, and come in flocks, they don't seem to care whether you want their company or not. In this respect, they remind me of some people I have seen; people who, like a sore thumb, are always on hand at the wrong time; people who, like "bites," come just when and where you least expect or desire them. Whether these bugs ever get the cholera or not, I am not prepared to say; but I know they get cusses enough to give them almost any kind of disease. They are unfortunate little cusses. They have "no one to love, none to kress," leastwise, the cresses they receive are not very loving. I have seen many persons, however, take them into their arms; others take them into their eyes, nose, cars, mouth, or, in fact, any place they happen to light, which they are almost certain to do. I never saw one that didn't light. These bugs are a great nuisance; but are not half so bad as many of the people who inhabit that section of country. Regular Jayhawkers; many of them are from Missouri, and more from "old kaintuck." They have an overstock of ignorance, and no good breeding, though they seem to be good breeders, judging from the number of youngsters to be seen. I saw one woman with nine small children on foot, one at the breast, and several wards in her care. The children, too, are "heap smart." In this section, sitting in front of the "tavern" one evening, in conversation with a gentleman, we overheard some ragged wretches mention "the graveyard." The gentleman asked them if they had a "graveyard" at that town? "O, yes," replied a dirty little "urchin," but what to shoot a fellow like you to start one.

The "taverns" in this section are a good deal like the bugs and people—only worse. They are of the worst class, and the first of their class. The buildings are not so massive as some I have seen, though the architecture is of the Grecian style. Others are decidedly Doric in appearance, rather "bar-baric" than otherwise. I saw but little of the Corinthian and Ionic order, and but few interesting arches, clustered columns, and the like. There is, however, plenty of "open work" about most of them. The "square meals" at these hotels are not as square as some I have seen, nor the beds the most downy. I slept on one at Odia which was not down before morning. Guess the bugs eat the ropes off, or pushed the slats out of place, for the "tick" was on the floor in the morning. The bugs are first-class, if nothing else is; and they have first-class appetites, "you bet."

Went to one of these "taverns" one night, on the recommendation of a friend, who said it was a "nice quiet place." On entering, I saw the landlord, bare-footed and coatless, fast asleep on a chair. In the distance sat two matronly-looking women, (i. e., they were old.) In the foreground were old fashioned caps, and their toothless mouths were pipes; above their heads rose in clouds smoke, fragrant with "dorg-leg" tobacco. In the room, where resided this interesting old man, and these festive female women, was an old table, a few broken chairs and a box. There was also a rickety bed and another nigger. On the bar stood a tallow "dip," by whose dim light I saw upon the wall a picture of "Gen. Washington, the father of his country." "Gen. Jackson, a new Orleans," and a large 14x18 steel engraving, on wood, of the "marching of the pilgrims." Against the wall, too, hung a large looking glass frame, in the upper part of which was the "picture" of somebody's "mectin" house, under which was a piece of broken mirror. On a knotted string, on same nail, was suspended a large comb, with three teeth. While making my observations, one of the ancient sannies awakened the ancient note. Gazing on me with gentle ferocity, he inquired if I wanted a bed? "Open work" about most of them. THE NEWSPAPER BORROWER.—We clip the following opinion of newspaper borrowers from one of our exchanges. That Editor has a poor opinion of "sich." "We think he is a little too hard, but here is what he says: "The newspaper borrower is, as a general thing, the meanest person in the community, (always except those who subscribe for a paper and don't pay for it,) and is entitled to none of the courtesies which honorable men love to extend to each other. The newspaper borrower would borrow a tooth brush, if he wasn't too mean to lose that portion of his dinner which remains between his teeth. TAKE THE PAPER.—A very vigorous political campaign is now about to open. The nabob, Packer, against the honest and patriotic Free. Let our friends see to it, that no man, rich or poor, is without the REPUBLICAN.

Window for me!

In another direction.—Then the old man tried to "rock me to sleep," but his rocks missed me, and I escaped.

I will leave Egypt, and come back to Chicago where, at present, business is very dull, with no hopes of it getting better. The general feeling of depression which pervades the State, on account of the condition of the crops, leads heavily upon all branches of Chicago trade. The only men who seem to be in good spirits, are those who have grain carriages and reaping machines for sale. In many places, farmers are obliged to cut all their grain by hand, the ground being so soft that to run a reaper is an impossibility. Repair men have plenty of work on hand, while the supply of carriages and sickles run out long ago.—Dealers have telegraphed all over the country, where a grain car is made, and are gathering them in, in lots, large and small, and selling them at enormous prices. I would rather have plenty of these carriages now, than Chicago real estate. Money seems scarce, and collection difficult. Borrowers, in many cases, are paying 1 and 2 per cent a month.

Everybody seems to be going to the Pacific this summer. Any number of excursion parties have left Chicago since the completion of the road through.—Perhaps the most notable is Chicago's commercial excursion, a party of forty or fifty of her leading capitalists, bankers, merchants and newspaper men. Mr. Joseph Mehill, of the Tribune, is one of the party. They are looking up Chicago's commercial interests, living high, and drinking outspite. I think that what they took along to drink. It was some kind of "nip," at least. They called upon Brigham Young's wife, and were not informed whether any of the party became converts to the Mormon faith or not. I hope not. It would be a rash undertaking to attempt to support two or more fashionable wives in Chicago.—One is enough, as fashions range now a days. The party is now at San Francisco, having "high old time." The next excursion is to be a religious affair, looking to the conversion of the people along the route. They, too, will have a "high old time" before they get them all converted, for many of these people went from Chicago.

For the Republican. UNIONVILLE, July 24, '69.—Our harvest is about over; and, from all accounts, the farmers are well satisfied as to the result. In a previous article I spoke of a meeting to be held to take into consideration the propriety of building a new school-house. That meeting has been held, and with a satisfactory termination. We are to have the house, notwithstanding some severe opposition from a few old fogies. We must remember that we live in an age of improvement, and must go with the tide, or we shall go under. We will soon, I hope, dispense with our present old skin-freezing, cough-making, gravel-pain-producing house. A select school will be taught here this summer, beginning on the 9th of August, by Miss Clever, a teacher of acknowledged abilities, and extensive experience. That little Peter G., of Bellefonte, honored us with his presence this week.—The 5 p. m. train stopped for him to get off. And soon he was in solemn meditation, with a very slim number of the faithful; and, judging from the appearance of his Meek and lowly countenance, was anything but satisfied with his visit. His two or three particular friends, in this part of the moral vineyard, think if he does succeed in getting the nomination to that little office, which is the sugar-feast of his existence, he will be badly defeated.

A GRAND AND MERITED SUCCESS.—We learn that so great has become the demand for Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy of late, that instead of grinding and preparing the ingredients in our usual mortar, the proprietor has had recourse to a large set of French Bur Mill Stones, which are run by water power. When it is considered that it is but a short time since this remedy was discovered and put on sale, this may truly be said to entirely eclipse the success which has met the remedies of Aler, James, Moffat, Townsend, and the whole fraternity of proprietary medicine vendors. Where there is such success, there must be some merit. It is for sale in almost every drugstore in the land, and is also sold largely and sent through the mail at sixty cents per package.—Buffalo Evening Post, July 21, '69.
