

"Glorious Old Rosey."

Gen. Rosecrans briefly telegraphed to the Democratic authorities in Ohio that duty to his family and his creditors forbade his acceptance of the nomination for Governor. This dispatch has been supplemented by a letter in due course of mail, in which the General devotes two columns to a discussion of the Democratic situation. It is a trenchant composition, and goes far beyond John Quincy Adams, son, grandson and great-grandson, in the demand for a "new departure."

What of old gave the Democratic party its prestige and spirit? General Rosecrans says: "Was it profound faith in the capacity of man for self-government and progress, under institutions based on the great principles of liberty, fraternity and equality before the law, and its courage in carrying the life of its faith into action? These arose the discipline, order and progressive originality which have marked its history."

This is one of the most graphic and powerful statements of what the Democratic party of to-day is not, that we have come across. The party that Rosecrans pictures was the party of Jefferson, Madison, and Jackson. The party of to-day, under the leadership of Vallandigham, Pendleton, Jerry Black and Seymour, is its opposite in all the essential principles guaranteeing and protecting the rights of man. Then listen to this. Fanciful it being addressed to a Democratic Convention in Pennsylvania, or such audiences as Pendleton talks to in Ohio. Says the General:

"The country requires, and the Democratic party ought to be, a party of life and action and progress. Fossils and fault-finders do not properly belong to the party, and if found in it ought to be on the retired list, leaving to its opponents, of all shades and grades, all narrow and sectional roundels, all monopolistic favoritism, based on class, creed, race, color or national origin. The Democratic party of the United States ought to hold high the banner of universal freedom, impartial justice, and equality before the law, of all who live beneath the flag of our country."

Universal freedom, impartial justice and equality before the law, as Democratic symbols, would be the most stupendous joke of the day. Yet this is the Democratic General Rosecrans says he believes in and to which he is proud to belong. Who are his associates. We would like to know. Certainly not the men who make platforms at Albany, Harrisburg, Columbus, Indianapolis or Springfield. It is evident the gospel, according to Pendleton, has no favor with General Rosecrans. What would be more scathing than this denunciation of the quibbling greenback doctrine, remembering that it is addressed to Democrats:

"No local declarations inviting a popular prejudice of any legal questions about the terms of payment of the national bonds should impair the price of the public credit, at a time when it is so important to create the speediest means of ridding the country of these enormous oppressions; but every Democratic platform should tend to raise higher and higher the public credit, and to satisfy the people of Europe that the Democratic party is the last party in the United States that proposes to whine or act reluctantly about the payment of the public debt, even though its present holders should have bought it below its fair value."

But the most unkindest cut of all is the curt way Rosecrans dismissed the eleven stubborn jurors who may decline to acquiesce in his new departure. "Should there be Democrats," he says, "whose mental organization or temper does not permit them to recognize existing facts, or conform their action to great popular changes, let them, for the public good, abdicate the leadership, and leave the energies of the people free to act in the line of life and progress." This is sending the party to tophet with a vengeance.

CAMPBELL vs. LAOCK (4 Wright, 448.) This was a case in which one of two partners (Getty & Geissinger) sold out his interest to the other, who agreed to pay all the debts of the firm. Laock became security for Geissinger, the purchaser, for the performance of the contract. Campbell, a creditor of the firm, sued Laock upon his guarantee. Judge Williams held that the plaintiff could not maintain the action, and the Supreme Court affirmed the judgment on his opinion. Cannot we hear of one case from Mr. C. L. Pershing, of Cambria?

THE people should not forget that we never had a currency so convertible and sound as the greenback; that they were opposed by the Democrats from the first, and that if the Democracy succeed, we shall be thrown back upon the chipmunk and wild-cat notes by which labor was taxed and plundered in every State in the Union.

REPUBLICANISM has become the synonym for economy, and that of Democracy for extravagance. No better evidence of this can be found than

"GRANDFATHER'S STOVE."
Our grandfather's stove, what a funny old thing.
So deep, so wide and so tall;
Now the people would say, who are stylish and gay,
"It was only a hole in the wall."
It matters not what it was, it was pleasant to see
When night's mantle was flung over all;
Grandfather took down his good book and read
By the light from the hole in the wall.
The girls then were home spun, and so did their beaux,
For fire was a principle small;
And counting was done and hearts have been won
By the light from the hole in the wall.
The neighbors were friendly wherever they'd meet.
With a word of true kindness for all;
And joy was complete to hear voices so sweet
Ring round that old hole in the wall.
In these days we know, folks cared not for show,
Of improvements knew nothing at all;
But times really no joke, when great clouds of smoke
Rushed out from the hole in the wall.
But those days are now o'er, we shall know them no more,
And all those old fashions have flown;
Whilst the totems and gay are coming each day
To purchase the famous "Old Home."
Coming not only in couples, but in scores,
As hundreds of good and wise men and women have done before, to look upon this magnificent stove, which is acknowledged to be the best cooking stove of the age. Remember the place.
