

BELLEPHONE REPUBLICAN

W. W. BROWN, Editor. A. B. HUTCHISON, Business Manager. Terms $2 Per Annum in Advance.

BELLEFONTE, PA., Wednesday Morning, Dec. 22, 1899.

ADVERTISING.—The BELLEPHONE REPUBLICAN has a larger circulation than any other Republican paper published in the county. Our merchants and business men will please make a note of this.

HOLIDAYS.—There will be no paper issued from this office next week, from the fact the holidays are here, and the foreman, jour, devil, and boss all wish to enjoy themselves.

A Word with Our Patrons and the Republicans of Centre County.

This number closes the first volume of the REPUBLICAN. We avail ourselves of this opportunity to thank the people for their kindly and generous support.

We have no complaints to make, for certainly we have met with the most unparalleled prosperity. Nobly and manfully have the Republicans of Centre aided us in our enterprise, declaring the necessity of a live, vigorous, reliable and energetic Republican journal in the county.

For the last six or eight years, or from the year 1892 to the beginning of the year 1899, the Democratic Watchman, filled with treason, and anti-war doctrines, and with vulgar and devilish literature, circulated all over the county without let or hindrance, without any one to contradict its falsehoods or to expose its rottenness.

Its Editor, Mr. Meek, following in the wake of that treasonable, false-hearted, anti-Democratic and anti-Republican man as Vallandigham, Wallace, Woodward & Co., permitted no opportunity to pass without attacking the friends of the Government.

Consequently every number was filled with appeals to the people to resist the draft; with the most treasonable and wicked doctrines; with abuse of the pious and best American Statesmen; with tirades upon the soldiers—the "Boys in Blue"—and encomiums upon the rebel General Lee and the confederate soldiers; with low and vulgar abuse of every loyal man, and especially of every Christian minister who, in obedience to the Scriptural injunction of rendering "unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's," came out manfully on the side of the Government, and against the slaveholders' rebellion.

No pure man—no legal and patriotic man—no minister—no faithful soldier could think as Meek thought, and, therefore, they, each in their turn, were made to suffer from the shafts hurled upon them by this treasonable and modern Ajax. The Democratic majority was increasing in the county every year, and the Court House Ring had become impure, haughty, powerful and sneering.

The Ring and Meek owned the Democratic party, and the Republican party (we appeal to the people for the truth of what we assert) was, or might as well have been without an organ.

In January last we commenced the publication of the REPUBLICAN. Daily and weekly our list increased, until we now have upon our subscription book 1672 bona fide subscribers. Without being egotistical, we must say we have made a pretty decent Editor of Mr. Meek, and the Watchman has tumbled down considerably, and notwithstanding the fact that it is yet filled with falsehoods, they are not such whoopers as formerly, and, therefore, powerless.

In the last campaign our party came within two hundred and twenty-five votes of electing half our ticket, while the majority against Governor Geary was less than it was in 1896, or in other words, Centre is the only county in the State, in which Governor Geary did better in 1899, than in 1896, all of which we consider a great victory, when we remember that over 300 Republican voters remained away from the polls. Our vote was increased by hundreds of Democrats voting our ticket.—Hundreds of them will do the same next fall.

In view of these facts, friends, we promise you the redemption of Centre county from Democratic misrule within the next two years, and to this end, we respectfully solicit the continuance of your support and encouragement.

Strange, isn't it? Every person knows that it is impossible for a man in a miscellaneous crowd to engage in denunciations of murderers, horse-thieves, or any other kind of thieves, without making said murderers and thieves feel that every word of the whole conversation is intended for them.

So it is with Meek. Last week, in answer to some of the Watchman's vain boasting, we had occasion to say "if we had the opportunity to play 'pincher' and 'rooster' in Harrisburg for two or three winters, we might, perhaps, be able to erect brick buildings, &c." Our readers will perceive that we did not say that Meek had played "pincher" and "rooster" while in Harrisburg, disgracing Centre county as her representative. Yet, upon the principle by which all thieves are governed, Meek thought we meant him, of course, or upon that other principle, as stated by Shakespeare, that "Conscience makes cowards of us all," Meek applies it to himself, thus acknowledging that he is guilty—that he did play "pincher" and "rooster," and that his brick building was built out of his ill-gotten gains. We did not say so; but we ask every intelligent man if Meek does not admit it by his ungentlemanly and blackguard reply. Yes, Meek, you have established your own reputation as a "pincher" and "rooster," and this explains the "milk in the cocoon" or the reason why James Burns, Esq., was so anxious to have you returned to Harrisburg this winter. But the people couldn't see it, and poor Meek was wifed.

"THE FOES OF SOCIETY."

A Sensational Sermon on Sensational Journalism.

Our readers, by this time, have no doubt, learned who Rev. Frothingham is. If not, they will soon know. He is the sensational preacher who officiated with Rev. Henry Ward Beecher at the Richardson-McFarland marriage and for so doing, called down upon his lawless and shameful conduct, the criticisms as well as the censure of both the Religious and Secular press of the country. He deserved all he got, and more. He knows his conduct was reprehensible and shameful, and, therefore, vines under the well-directed blows aimed, not so much at him, as at his unlawful and anti-Christian participation in a marriage which was in open violation of the laws of God and man. We have said he wined under the severe but merited exhortations of the press; but he is too proud and fool hardy to acknowledge his error.

On Sunday the 12th inst., he preached a sermon on the "Foes of Society," which, for the most part, was devoted to the press. He is said to have been exceedingly savage, and demonstrated not only to his hearers, but to the world, that he is as Christian as the religion he teaches; that he possesses not one particle of Christian charity. "Charity suffereth long and is kind; charity envieth not; charity vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up, doth not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not her own; is not easily provoked, thinketh not evil; rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth, beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things," and although Rev. Frothingham should speak with "the tongues of men and of angels and have not charity," he is, on the authority of the Bible, nothing but "a sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal."

Forgetting the sacredness of the pulpit, the high and honorable character of his calling, and in open profanation of the Sabbath, he lets his angry passions rise, and vents his spleen and vituperation upon editors, whom he classifies among the "cold-blooded" foes of society. We copy as follows:

"Sometimes the cold-blooded man is an editor. It is his business, as 'the market.' To sell his paper, it is his duty to attract the multitude; and, to do that, he must create a sensation; and, in order to do that, he has his spies through society—his reporters and his correspondents, who pry into the closets in the street, intrude upon the sacredness of homes, pass into parlors and lurk around chamber doors and libraries of good men and women; and to drag out some secret, and extort something from men, to be used against themselves, their wives, neighbors, or friends, is part of their business. If no story is told, then vituperation is dealt in; and if the story is deemed unsuitable, it is misrepresented by the reporter; when he leaves the door. Sometimes the editor is an atheist, and panders to the passions of the lower class of Roman Catholics, and would seek to arrest a clergyman in order to rescue an assassin from a merited doom or to blast the reputation of a defenseless woman. If the press were noble and worthy; if it really sought to educate the people; if it really meant to improve the condition of the community, by vindicating truth and exposing the cause of justice, it would be too powerful a despotism. If people could trust the press and give their reason over to it, the press would dominate over every other influence. But, because of its wickedness, people pay no heed to it and cast its slanders off. If it were noble it would not do these things—sneering into secrets, dragging the private interests before the world—'ry falsification to the dignity of a science, and bring malignity to the perfection of an art?'"

In giving utterance to the above, we presume the Rev. Frothingham had, in his minds eye, the Police Gazette, or the Days Dog, as these papers are to the newspaper world what what Rev. Frothingham is to the great body of Christian ministers—a scab, a tumor, a running sore, an eating cancer, a disgrace, a cheat, a humbug, a semi-infidel, an atheist in disguise.

How can he be anything else, when we take into consideration the fact, that he denies the main link in the great chain of the Christians creed—the Divinity of Christ.

A minister—a preacher of a Christless religion—is certainly not the man to indulge in bitter epithets, or in pouring vituperations upon the press; but is most emphatically the proper man to assist in lawful marriages, and to give utterance to blasphemous sentences in his prayers. We write nothing in malice. We hope Mr. Frothingham may repent and be saved. To this end we will close these strictures in the language of the Apostle: "Therefore I write these things being absent, lest being present I should use sharpness, according to the power which the Lord hath given me to defence and not to destruction."

The Chester Republican gets credit for the following ingenious definition of credit—"A wise provision by which Sheriffs and Constables get a living."

The Next Legislature.

The Contest for the Presidency—Necessity for Reform—The Bellefonte Republican Sustained—Voice of the Republican Press of Pennsylvania.

The Greensburg Herald, which has not heretofore been in favor of the reform movement, but quite the reverse, is now beginning to see the necessity of reform. After a review of the situation and a genteel and logical defense of Mr. Mackey, the present State Treasurer, (against whom, by the way, we have no personal animosities) gives utterance to the following strong and sensible points:

"When the Legislature assembles, should they adopt the policy of putting a man—worthy and fit—into all the positions they by law fill, we shall not only be content but rejoice. In that case, as we before took occasion to say, our own Borough has the man for State Treasurer, in the person of Geo. F. Huff, Esq. We can conscientiously say—that those who vote for him, need never fear of being assailed in the public prints for voting for one who could make an improper approach to any one for his services, or would fail to make a high toned officer, whose integrity and capacity would remain unassailed. Outside of Mr. Huff, we do not know who is represented by any of the names which will support. We have no objection with them that or any other subject that may possibly be before them. We confidently hope and trust, however, that on this and every other question both of legislative business proper, and especially on that which shall support for any position to be filled by that body—they will exercise their own discretion and judgment, and not allow themselves to act on the hints or suggestions of any one, who in pursuance of custom for years past, may assemble himself at Harrisburg in no sensible official position, and hang around to help this man or that man to a position, this bill or that bill, and fill his pockets with the money 'pinched' out of the interested parties, for services, at the expense of the character, it may be, of the purest representative in the body, whom he may have innocently and unsuspectingly persuaded to support his pet measure as a matter of policy. Beware of all such—come from what quarter they may. They hail from all points, and are apparently innocent chaps; yet their own hands have in the past filled their own pockets just as you who the representatives, who innocently did the work for him, remained pure uncontaminated by a single ill-gotten cent, how come home to be repudiated and blown on this and kindred topics, this, unfortunately, is the real history of the dissatisfaction with the doings of representatives. 'Be ye, therefore, wise as serpents and harmless as doves,' gives the hint to the only true path to avoid the rocks on which many have stranded. In the earliest days of our history, when only members and Senators went to Harrisburg to make laws, it was not so. It is otherwise now."

The Altoona Tribune, independent in politics, and a paper possessing great influence throughout the State, says: "Our former townsman, George F. Huff, Esq., is being strongly urged for the position of State Treasurer, by his friends in various portions of the State, and developing an amount of strength which cannot fail to alarm his older competitors. If ability, integrity, honesty and youth be his qualifications, he is the winning card with our Legislature, and his election would be a foregone conclusion, and the tax-payers would reap the benefits of having the State Treasury wisely and economically administered."

The Harrisburg Globe, a most excellent and ably edited paper, without expressing its preferences for any particular candidate for the State Treasury, makes use of the following somewhat amusing, but nevertheless, strong, figurative language: "We hope for the credit of the party and the State, that the Republican and the State, that the Republican and the State, that the Republican and the State, will act with decency and respect in the organization of their respective bodies, and not act like a parcel of boys, each one slobbering over the other in his haste to snare up the choicest bit of, which there are so many about our legislative halls. We are not of those who are eternally howling about the corruptions of our Legislature, but cannot see the object to the fact that much is done which ought not to be done, and hope that many of the existing evils may be corrected. The present Legislature can do much toward this end, and we trust that it may be done."

Horace Greeley. We learn from a statement published in the Democratic Watchman, signed by W. H. H. Brainard and J. W. Furey, that the great journalist and philosopher of the century, is to lecture in Bellefonte, on January 25th, 1870. This is right; but there is one sentence in the statement, as published in the Watchman, to which we object. It reads thus: "The fame of Horace Greeley is co-extensive with the English language, and though one of the most erudite, he is certainly one of the most remarkable men of the age."

How our friend Brainard could be induced to sign such a mixture of sense and nonsense, of truth and falsehood, of positive assertions, with so positive contradictions, all in the same sentence, we cannot imagine.

The fame of Horace Greeley is not only "co-extensive with the English language," but co-extensive with all languages, people's and tones, and while it may be true that Mr. Greeley is not infallible, the assertion that he is "one of the most erudite" men of the age, is barely and meanly false, to be promulgated, not ignorantly, but with the bright and effulgent rays of the light of the 19th century shining upon the very paper upon which it was written, proclaiming Horace Greeley "one of the most remarkable men of the age."

We are sorry our friend Brainard has committed himself to such an opinion of Horace Greeley, and signed his name to such a jumble of words, sense, nonsense, "erudite" rhetoric, miserable logic and Democratic hot-potch. We hope, however, he may be more careful in the future, and not let Furey pull the wool over his eyes for the purpose of stabbing the reputation of Mr. Greeley.

We hope that Everybody will come and hear Horace Greeley, and satisfy themselves that he is not only the greatest journalist, but the greatest man in America to-day.

PERSONAL.—The Hon. Samuel Calvin, of Hollidaysburg is spoken of as the successor of the Hon. Daniel J. Morrell, of Cambria county, for the next Congress. Mr. Calvin, at one time represented this county in Congress in connection with Blair Huntingdon and Mifflin counties. We are now in Mr. Calvin's Congressional District; but we know him personally and well. He is a warm-hearted, clever man, a true friend, never violates his honor, or his word, either in business or politics—is an able Statesman, a strong tariff man, and would make a first-class representative.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS. NOTICE. Whereas, my wife, Levena McCafferty, has left my house, deserted my bed and board without just provocation; notice is hereby given to all persons not named herein, that if they come to my house, or would fail to make a high toned officer, whose integrity and capacity would remain unassailed. Outside of Mr. Huff, we do not know who is represented by any of the names which will support. We have no objection with them that or any other subject that may possibly be before them. We confidently hope and trust, however, that on this and every other question both of legislative business proper, and especially on that which shall support for any position to be filled by that body—they will exercise their own discretion and judgment, and not allow themselves to act on the hints or suggestions of any one, who in pursuance of custom for years past, may assemble himself at Harrisburg in no sensible official position, and hang around to help this man or that man to a position, this bill or that bill, and fill his pockets with the money 'pinched' out of the interested parties, for services, at the expense of the character, it may be, of the purest representative in the body, whom he may have innocently and unsuspectingly persuaded to support his pet measure as a matter of policy.
