THE LOCO FOCO KANSAS EMBROGLIO.

Forney on the Buchanan Administration. We cut the following letter from Col. Forney, the editor of the Press, from that journal of Saturday last.

WASHINGTON, March 12, 1858. I left Philadelphia on Wednesday on a hurried visit to some friends here, and will return, God willing, by this evening's train.

What a difference between March 1857 and March 1858! I dwell upon it with surprise and grief. One year ago the country was full of content, and at peace with itself.

And what a change has one year produced! I can hardly believe my senses that I am writing from the capital of my country, and that my old friend—be, to whom I have borne almost filial relations from my boyhood—be to whom I have confided my few hopes and fears.

What is the aspect now? One wide Reign of Terror. A test is erected here, like some horrid instrument of torture, upon which Democrats are tried and executed for their opinions.

It is at once caught up and carried; with no lack of exaggeration, to the ear of power. It is there on this round globe a race over despised in civilized society by any other, it is the race of reformers.

It is their vocation to make public opinion here against the intrepid sentiment of the people; to bully in the hotels, to infest the rooms of newsmen, to "pump" the new arrivals, to coax the doubtful, to intimidate the weak, to supply false motives for honest differences, to fill the town with rumors of defection among the friends of the Right, to flatter power, and to applaud to the echo everything that falls from the lips of greatness.

in a column in the West. It was natural that such a man should feel free to speak the truth without fear, especially to save his old chief, Mr. Buchanan, from harm.

treachery, every season produces its new quota of victims, until, if the bones of all were gathered together, an Egyptian pyramid would scarcely suffice for their interment.

The political catacombs are filled with curious specimens of departed politicians, whose impatient ambition has consigned them to premature oblivion—here a bold, adventurous legislator and partisan giant; there an orator of dashing, slashing, headlong eloquence, who saw no difficulties, obstacles, or dangers in the steep ascent to promotion, and was dashed himself to pieces in the fool-hardy adventure.

Gliddon and Nott could have added to their cheerful array of specimen skulls and nummies from the profane Golgotha of prematurely defunct politicians the unchanging and unvarying types which mark the species through continuously succeeding examples in a long line marching down from the earliest political eras.

Ex-President Comanfort, who has arrived at New Orleans is said to be the son of an Englishman, who was a cotton manufacturer at Puebla, and who married a Spanish lady— Says the Washington Union:

Comanfort was born in Puebla, received a liberal education, and has traveled extensively in the United States and Europe. He was not many years ago, a visitor in New York city, where he formed a number of acquaintances. He is said not to resemble a Spaniard in appearance, having a fair complexion, blue eyes, and light hair—marks of the Anglo-Saxon blood, inherited from his father.

The Ossawatimie (K. T.) Herald has the following: DEMOCRATIC TICKET. CONSTITUTION WITH SLAVERY. The above is a copy of the ticket which was supported by the national democratic party at the polls at Paola, Kansas Territory, on the 21st of December, 1857—none but national democrats, participating on the occasion, and the result will show them to be a rather scarce commodity. How do you democrats of the North like this specimen?
