

From the American Agriculturist.

THE POULTRY YARD.

Now is the time to pash along the poultry. Don't wait till a week or two before Thanksgiving or Christmas to begin to feed the turkeys, geese, ducks and chickens, but treat them generously now, when they are making growth, and they will double their weight by the hollidays. Grasshoppers, of which the North-American world has been full the past season, are now about done with. The tarkies and chickens have had a good time with them, and grasshopper bone and muscle have been turned into those of the poultry with decided advantage to them, and saving to the grain bins. If there he no burry to eat the fowls, or take them to market, boiled potatoes, beets and carrots, may be given to them with any sort of grain meal you happen to have, or can make—the mere bran of any grain, is good for nothing, only securing them. This gives them growth, but not so much fat as if the grain, or meal be given them

We do not believe in confining poultry at this season of the year. When Winter sets in and heavy storms come on it will do, provided they be kept clean, and have plenty of good air and whelesome food. If they have the Labit of roosting on trees -which they oftentimes get in warm weather, and which is very wholesome for them-they should now come under shelter. It does no good, but positive injury for a turkey, or chicken to get wet in a cold rain, and they should not be exposed to it. In addition to generous feeding now promoting their growth, it shoots out their second growth of feathers to maturity--for ne old bird is good to eat while moulting, or a young one palatable while pushing out its second growth of feathers, which all young ones do in the Fall of the year. The young cock turkeys gobble and strut, and the pullets pipe plaintively, and walk by themselves with their mothers. The chicken cocks get their full plumage, crow lustily, and show their virility, while the pullets sing away their cheerful notes with the old hens, and take a turn at an occasional cackle.

The geese and ducks, if you have not picked them to death, through the Summer, are now in tull feather, plump, noisy and quarrelsome .--Give them boiled vegetables of any kind you have to spare, and some meal mixed with it .-Occasionally a little grain, and with their accustomed water exercise, they will go on rejoicing. Keep the dirty, waddling ducks out joicing. Keep the dirty, wadding ducks out of filth, if possible—they are filthy things, if they can get at filthy food—for it is sure to make filthy flesh. A clean fed duck is delicious food—otherwise it is little better than carrion. A goose is usually a clean feeder, and no flesh is better, or more nutritions than a &c fat gosling. "Roast-goose and apple-sauce," is a gourmand's dish, the world over: but it must be clean fed goose and a good variety of apples to make them of, or they are worthless.

A full assortment of Stoves will be kept constantly on hand, and sold at wholesale and retail, at prices to suit the times, and quality, warranted equal to the best eastern make.—
Machinery of all kinds repaired promptly.—

TRUSTING TO A SINGLE CROP. - There is no crop that does not fail sometimes, though there are a few which are never wholly cut off in any one season. Grass, for example, always yields a partial crop, and a person may, if need be, depend wholly upon this product as a means of subsistance. The same thing, however, can hardly be said of any other staple crop. Iunumerable illustrations might be given of the danger of depending upon a single crop. The danger of depending upon a single crop upon a single crop upon a result in Ireland of relying upon the potato crop is patent. The failure of the wheat crop, do almost any kind of work usually done in a Country Establishment. in many parts of this country, has involved thousands of farmers in debt, which it will take years of toil and economy to liquidate. A friend at the West had been so successful in raising peaches that he turned his whole attention to that crop. Last year he realized a large not profit, and looking for still greater results this year, he laid out his plans accordingly, and incurred considerable debts to be paid from the proceeds of his peaches. The result is, that from five or six thousand trees he gathers scarcely two busheles of marketable fruit.

THE pattnerstopre existing under the name and firm of Colvin & Robeson, in the Mercantile business has been this day dissolved by mutual consent.

All persons indebted to the late firm are requested to cell and settle their accounts.

J. E. COLVIN,

J. M. ROBESON.

A mixed cultivation is the safest, in the long run. If the potato crop fails, let there be corn, wheat, barley, or other gaain to fall back upon.

The chances of utter failure are diminished a thousand fold, where there are three or four different crops under culture. A season destructive to one is likely to be just the thing for another .- 16.
